SPICY INTERVIEW WITH DR. C. H. PARKHURST. HIS ATTACKS GIVE HIM FAME.

He Explains the Purposes of the Movement of Which He is the Head, and Gives His Views on Municipal Reform—He is in Favor of One-Man Power and Shows Its Feasibility.

Correspondence of the Globe. [Copyright.] New York, Feb. 3.—Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst is today the most conspicuous figure in the New York pulpit, not alone by reason of his ability as a speaker and writer, but also because of the determined crusade for social and municipal purity, of which for three years past he has, as president of the Society for the Prevention of Crime, been the intrepid and unswerving leader. Dr. Parkhurst is a born fighter, and grit, pluck and singleness of purpose mark his every word and action. The views of such a man are always interesting, and they are especially interesting at the present moment. The following interview is authorized by Dr. Parkhurst, and has been revised and corrected by him: "Doctor," said I at the outset, "tell me how you came to engage in your present crusade for social and municipal purity?" "I will tell you, but first let me say that our point of attack is not the social question; it is the collusion, the alliance between the police and the justices on one side, and the criminal classes on the other. Well, I was first drawn into the movement on account of my interest in the young men of my own church and congregation. I became knowing of certain difficulties they had to encounter, and certain temptations they had to meet, and I raised the question in my own mind whether there was not any means by which these temptations could be diminished and the pressure made less. I bestirred myself in regard to the matter, and the first thing I discovered was that these elements of difficulty and temptation were themselves under the patronage of the authorities, so that we ran directly against the powers that be.

done in the way of turning on the light on the present attitude of things does so much towards developing the sentiment that will be able to assert itself victoriously at the polls. The other day Inspector Williams complained that in our charges against one of the police captains, instead of privately and quietifying him, Williams, we made public matter of the same. All the reply I have to make to that is that it is just what we are doing; we are turning on the light. We should have accomplished nothing by communicating privately to Williams, the inspector. We are trying to develop and educate public sentiment in regard to the matter, hence, everything we do is done above board.

"Can anything be done by legislation under present conditions?" "I don't know that there is any necessity for legislation. We have got laws enough, if they were enforced." "What do you regard as the duty of the churches under present conditions?" "Well, I can only state what I have myself tried to do, and the members of my church are with me in it. I don't know that I would say any more than what is illustrated by my own course. I believe that this is primarily a work for the churches. Whenever a question comes up for consideration that has in it any elements of right and wrong that is the point for the church and the pulpit to assert itself, and certainly the air is full of these questions here. The same thing holds true of the fight in Brooklyn and in New Jersey. At our last election there the pulpit came well to the front, especially in New Jersey, and for the reason that the elements involved in that debate and discussion in New Jersey were moral elements. So far from it being the duty of a clergyman to keep out of those things it is most important of all the world that the church should go into it. There is no use of having any churches if they are to remain silent in a fight where moral issues are involved.

"Speaking in a general way, doctor, in what way can our large cities be purified most directly and most thoroughly?" "By arousing and quickening the sentiment of the better elements; that is the only way I know of."

"How can the better class of men be interested in municipal politics?" "That many neglect to take an active part in politics there is no doubt, and present conditions are partly due to their inactivity. It has not been considered part of the education of an American citizen to know about municipal politics, and the fault, I should think, is away back in the common schools. There is a lot of things in the common schools that I would like to have rooted out, and something of this kind put in. There is a great deal of principles of American law. The Jews in olden times were very rigid in their instructions of the youth in the old law. While the old Jew made no additions, still I think we can imitate their example in that respect."

"Do you believe in restricting instead of trying to extirpate the social evil?" "I believe in treating crime as crime. The instant you adopt a policy of local action or a policy of license you put the municipal, governmental stamp on vice. That we cannot afford."

actor of our municipal affairs we have got to educate and elevate the tone of the average citizenship. There are hosts of people here in our own city who are as ignorant of American methods and of the American genius, as they were before they emigrated. There are a great many who are not even touched by our own American civilization. As soon as they learn to speak English they pass under the influence of Tammany leadership and under the power of the Croker grogery, and the city missionary gets left every time."
