PARK RIVER, N. D., Feb. 28.—A terrible attempt at murder was made this morning in Dundee township, six miles north of Park River, followed by the suicide of the perpetrator. Thorston J. Rustgaard "baehed" it with his hired man, Khor Thompson. After finishing his chores outside this morning Thompson returned to the house and was met at the door by Rustgaard, who, without warning, raised a revolver and shot him in the neck. Thompson went to the nearest neighbor for assistance. He had not slept for ten nights. It is thought Thompson was temporarily insane. Rustgaard was a young man of good character and connections and well to do. He was undoubtedly temporarily insane. Thompson will recover.

SHOT IN THE BACK.

An Old Indian Receives Serious Injuries.

MANKATO, Feb. 28.—A full-blooded Winnebago Indian, called by every one "Old Chapp," over ninety years of age, was waylaid by unknown parties two miles north of Eagle Lake, and was shot in the back of the head, passing two and a half inches below the heart. The Indian was found in Naylor's barn badly wounded, but it is now believed that he will recover. He was able to make a statement of the assault. He said that three men had attacked him; one struck him in the face, and when he turned to run he was shot. The suspected parties live in this county, and one is believed to be a young man who bore a grudge against the Indian for some ill-treatment. The Indian lives at St. Clair and owns a farm well supplied with buildings, but is foolish and does not do any thing but sawing wood at 10 cents and "fat meat and black coffee to eat."

WED IN A SLEIGH.

Novel Nuptials of an Eloping South State Couple.

ARTESIAN, S. D., Feb. 28.—Quite a romantic marriage was performed here last week. Cash C. Arnold and Miss Emma Carlan, both of Roswell, being the parties. Owing to a mild family feud, Mrs. Carlan has been persistent in her efforts to separate the couple, because in so doing she would wreak vengeance on a party who would like to see the couple married. But the mother was outwitted by the young folks, and they came to Artesian ostensibly to attend a masquerade, but Mr. Arnold, armed with a license, went to Rev. Mr. White to have the nuptial knot tied, but was temporarily baffled because their license was only good in Miner county. But a young man ready to come to their assistance, and the couple, and preacher, they drove just over the line and in the sleigh were made man and wife. They drove back to Artesian and attended the ball in the evening.

Judge McDill was unconscious eleven hours preceding death. The end was calm and peaceful. Just before his death he spoke of the grand life of a Christian, as portrayed in Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress," as a life worthy of emulation.

TARIFF CAUCUS AT AN END.

NO INSTRUCTIONS FOR ANY CHANGES IN THE BILL.

VICTORY FOR THE COMMITTEE.

Majority of the Caucus Votes Against Placing Iron on the Dutiable List—When Senator Pugh Bolts It is Decided to Adjourn—Gorman, Brice, Hill and Others Hold a Meeting.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—The Democratic special caucus on the tariff bill is over, and both sides are claiming to have made progress. The outcome is in the nature of a victory for the Democratic members of the finance committee, who prepared the bill, and returned to them without any instructions to make changes. Immediately after the adjournment of the caucus Senators Gorman, Brice, Hill, Smith, Murphy, Camden and one or two others who have been known to be very much opposed to the bill of the finance committee, held a consultation, and their attitude was in direct contrast with the members of the finance committee. During the three days ending last night, but one vote was taken, and that but a few minutes before adjournment. This was on a proposition to instruct the finance committee to put iron on the dutiable list without any rate whatever, and this was lost by a vote of 19 to 17. Pugh, of Alabama, stated he would not be bound by the action of the caucus, and reserved the right to support his motion in the senate. Several senators since declared it would be useless to take any more votes if senators did not intend to abide by the action of the caucus. Then Senator Voorhes, chairman of the finance committee, moved that the caucus adjourn to meet at the call of the majority, and in so doing understood that the finance committee should continue its work and report as soon as possible. It is said Senator Brice passed the adjournment resolution to Voorhes to prevent.

It is said that the result could not be considered in the light of a defeat for those who were instrumental in bringing about the caucus. He claimed a great deal had been accomplished and that the committee would be able to meet the approval of a large number of senators. He also stated that he had heard of a hearing for every senator, and every Democratic senator between now and the time when the bill is reported will be accorded a hearing by the finance committee. The members of the finance committee are reticent, what they say indicates that they feel the caucus has resulted in a vindication of the bill which they have prepared, and instead of being instructed by the caucus they are free to present such a bill as they think best suited to the principles of the party and the necessities of the revenue. It is claimed that those who brought about the caucus expected to secure the instruction of the committee to place a duty on wool, iron ore, sugar, lumber, salt and a number of other articles to increase the duty on sugar and coal, and yet upon the strongest proposition they submitted they were defeated. It is also alleged that the caucus promoters endeavored to have the members of the committee bind themselves to abide the result of the caucus, and yet the men most interested in iron ore announced that they would not abide the result when the caucus was held.

Opinion seems to be divided as to whether the committee will now make any changes. The impression is that some changes of a minor nature will be made, as well as some concessions granted where the demands have been excessive. The bill, as now drafted, will not necessitate other changes in the bill. These matters were brought out in the conference which was held with the Democratic members of the committee in session. At that time Senator Voorhes talked about sugar. He said his constituents might sustain him in voting a duty on sugar because he felt toward Louisiana as he did toward a sugar grower here. He also stated that he would not sustain him in voting to give the sugar trust any advantage over the producers. The bill, as now drafted, will not necessitate other changes in the bill. SILVERITES GET A QUORUM.

BUT IT IS LOST BEFORE BUSINESS CAN BE TRANSACTED.

REED IS SOMEWHAT RATTLED.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—The deadlock in the house was broken today after two weeks of continuous filibustering against the Bland seigniorage bill, and no sooner had the quorum been procured than the house managers sought in special order to crush the filibusters and bring the bill to direct vote after two hours of additional debate. Although Mr. Bland secured 184 votes when the deadlock was broken, several Eastern Democrats, including Messrs. Cummings, Clancy and Mangier, Messrs. Tracy, and Dunn, of New York, refusing to act longer with the filibusters, Messrs. Doolittle, Altken, Ellis (Or.) and Lacey, Republicans, stopped voting on the next vote, and the previous question on the adoption of the bill cannot be sustained by one more than a quorum. When it came to adopting the special order, Messrs. Bowers, Lucas and Fickler, Republicans, and Dunn, Democrat, again joined the speaker's side, and the quorum was lost, only 176 members responding to their names. The first will be resumed when the house meets tomorrow, and if a quorum is not satisfied with the daily business, he has asked for four reports every day until all danger is past, or the end comes. The hearts of the watchers in the special car are very anxious tonight, as Mr. Wilson is so very weak that his life seems to hang by a very slender thread.
