WASHINGTON, April 2.—Great expectations have been focused upon the cross-examination of Col. W. C. P. Breckinridge by ex-Congressman John Wilson, particularly here in Washington, where the abilities of both men are appreciated. The expectations began to be realized after the noon recess today, when the colonel was delivered into the hands of his opponents. He had continued his story of the intrigue with Madeline Pollard through the morning, making many denials of various statements by her, and relating his own version of the interviews with the Washington chief of police, and of the correspondence between himself and the plaintiff. He had been testifying for nearly two court days when his direct testimony was finished, and, although Mr. Wilson pulled him with questions all the afternoon, the cross-examination seemed to have been just begun. It had been expected that the colonel would be requested to reconcile his position as a churchman and a moralist with his course of conduct, and this expectation was not a misguided one, for the examination took that direction from the start. It seems that O'Brien, in company with Dell Clark, a tough from Biwabik, made the rounds of the saloons and intimidated persons into giving them drinks. On Thursday another attempt to get more money from Corrigan failed, when Clark pulled a revolver and struck O'Brien three shots, wounding O'Brien and snatching the gun from Clark and fired four shots at Corrigan, one grazing his forehead. Corrigan then pulled a gun and fired three shots, wounding O'Brien fatally, all the shots taking effect. After the shooting, Corrigan gave O'Brien $25 and paid his way to Fort Francis, where the nearest physician resided. It is reported that O'Brien died soon after reaching his destination. Corrigan is under arrest. Clark skipped.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Every indication today points to the immediate appointment of Mr. McCafferty, St. Paul, as district attorney, and Charles W. Field, Minneapolis, collector of internal revenue. Friends of other candidates who are now in Washington have practically given up the fight, and it is known that the president, Secretary Carlisle and Attorney General Olney last week each expressed a strong desire to definitely settle the pending Minnesota appointments. On Saturday Mr. Olney had three names before him, viz.: McCafferty, Calhoun and Nettleton. He carefully examined papers filed by each of these candidates, and expressed his opinion that the president would appoint McCafferty. Secretary Carlisle listened to the friends of Mr. Field today, and while he gave no direct assurances, he left the impression that Field seemed to be a very satisfactory candidate, as between L. Hannan and Harries. At any rate, it is known that both attorney and collector could not both be taken from St. Paul, and Harries has been an impossibility from the first.

O. O. Cullen for mayor. J. J. McCarty for comptroller. Conrad W. Miller for city treasurer. John Twoby Jr. and M. L. Countryman for judges of the municipal court. The above is the ticket thus far selected by the Citizens' committee of fifty-five. The names were placed on the banner at a meeting held behind closed doors last night in room 901 of the New York Life building. There were forty-seven of the committee present at the meeting of the committee this year, and the session lasted until after 11 o'clock. The members who left earlier in the evening had their own warm debates during the evening. There was not much difference on many points, but Daniel W. Doty stuck out for a prohibition tinge to the platform and ticket, and, not getting his wishes, announced that the prohibitionists would put a full ticket in the field.

Mayor Wright and the Pioneer Press.

How they stand as bosses of the Republican party. The Republican party yesterday gave them to understand that its bed was not in their vest pockets. It seems that the would-be bosses, when they found that their Wheaton scheme didn't go down as they expected, undertook to get their feet on the other side of the street. They went around among the believers in McGill, and told them that McGill would withdraw in favor of Wheaton, never suspecting that the story wouldn't be swallowed with a healthy gulp. But it turned out that the story wasn't swallowed. Some eight or ten of the men who had been mistaken for "suckers" started for the office of Gov. McGill, in the Price-McGill building, to interview him on the subject; but before they got there their number swelled to fifty-eight true-blue Republicans, who were smothering their wrath. By the time Gov. McGill's office was reached there were so many of them that they couldn't get inside, and they were therefore invited into the large stockroom. There, after a brief discussion as to how best to accomplish the end desired, it was decided to appoint a committee of seven to call upon the governor in his office to ascertain the facts in the case.

Wright's Partner, Eugene Stillwell, was a prominent figure, called upon by Gov. McGill.

The committee consisted of the following: First ward, George C. Stevens; Second ward, T. F. Coiro; Fourth ward, D. F. Reese; Seventh ward, Eli Warner; Eighth ward, James A. Johnson; Ninth ward, Tim Reardon; Tenth ward, Assemblyman Schuetz; Eleventh ward, A. C. Clausen.

The first thing done by the committee was to inform the governor that fifty-eight men were assembled in the stock room wishing to know what the governor would do about the nomination. It was decided to call a general meeting of the hall over Yerxa's store, corner of Cedar and Seventh streets, this evening, at which every Republican who favors a nomination by the Republican masses, and not by the present mayor, shall have recognition on the floor.

The fifty-six present thirty-six were members of the city convention of two years ago that nominated Wright. An hour after this meeting adjourned a committee of seven from the Wright-Wheaton following, of which Mayor
