

AT THE METROPOLITAN.

"Said Pasha" the Bill of the Columbian Opera Company This Week.

Manager Scott has again proven that when he promises anything to the public that promise is more than kept. In announcing the summer opera season, introducing the Columbian Opera Company, his words were: "It will be the best summer opera company in the Metropolitan's history, and as far as that is concerned, it will compare most favorably with the leading operatic organizations touring the country from year to year at regular prices." This announcement has been more than realized in every respect. The presentation of "The Black Hussar" last week was most excellent throughout.

Beginning with tonight, and for the charming figure and voice to advantage. As Balah Miss Sylvester Cornish, the company's contralto, and, by the way, one of the very cleverest in her line ever heard in St. Paul, will undoubtedly add to her laurels. The excellent impression made by the members of the chorus last week will be more than duplicated, the costumes will be all new and of most elaborate and original designs, and Manager Scott's scenic artists have succeeded in equipping the production most elaborately.

STAGE GOSSIP.

Tid Bits Culled From Theatrical World.

"Tabasco" with Thomas Q. Seabrooke as its star, is in every way a success, and its visit to the Broadway theater, New York, has been extended from four to six weeks. Mr. Seabrooke has been presented with a small yacht

AT THE GRAND.

"The Soggarth" by the William Morris Company Monday Night.

The week past has been an exceedingly encouraging one for the William Morris company, whose excellent presentation rapidly found favor with our theater-goers, especially with the better element of society, which predominated in the audience during each performance. "Rosedale" will this week give way to "The Soggarth." The lovers of pure Irish comedy and pathos may anticipate a rare treat in the production of this play. Not alone on account of the peculiar fitness of the company for the portrayal of this piece, but also of the intrinsic worth of the drama. Unlike the usual Irish play "The Soggarth" should prove of interest to the average theater-goer, as the down the strong, emotional scenes with an exceptional naturalness. Ben Johnson will specialize his first appearance with this company Monday night, by his portrayal of Maj. Herbert De Brette.

ALUMNI REUNION.

The High School Alumni Will Meet on June 15.

Departing from the usual customs, the alumni of the St. Paul High school will this year give up part of the program to a play. The play chosen for the first feature is Sheridan's comedy, "The Critic," and from the ability of the people in the cast and the amount of time spent in preparation, a thoroughly enjoyable entertainment may be expected. The names of those who are to take part were given in last Sunday's GLOBE. Collectively they form a company capable of giving a more than amateur show, and individually their talents are well known.

Almost all of those in the cast have in their time made an enviable dramatic reputation for themselves at the high school, and some of them have continued their amateur successes even to the present time.

OTTAWA GETS IT.

Forester Convention Is Ended.

It was nearly 5 o'clock yesterday morning before the Foresters finished their all-night session, and adjourned to meet in Ottawa one year hence. The choice of a city for the next meeting took up some hours of the early morning, but finally all the contestants were narrowed down to two, Springfield, Ill., and Ottawa, Canada. The latter won on a close vote, and the hearts of the Canadians were made glad. Ottawa next spring will have the two conventions in the same order which have just visited St. Paul, the B. of L. E. and C. O. F.

The selection of the next convention location was the last business done, being preceded by the election of six trustees, as follows:

Col. P. M. Clowry, Henry Schomer, Adolph Fournier, J. J. Chileski, John F. O'Brien, Valentine Schmitt.

The delegates were a hazy-looking lot in the morning. It was a great convention of royal fellows, and the best wishes of St. Paul followed the delegates. Some have not yet started for home. Many went to see Minneapolis and the fort yesterday, and others went to see the city and the fort. The present officers go tonight on a special Milwaukee sleeper to Chicago, where they will arrive at 10 o'clock, and the Chicago & Grand Trunk carried most of the 450 delegates.

WORK FOR THE NEEDY.

Relief Agent Hutchins' Practical Efforts.

To the Editor of the Globe.

A few weeks ago you kindly inserted a notice for us, to the effect that a large number of men and women who were anxious to work and do odd jobs were daily at the office of the relief society, and would be glad to go out and work, even though it was but one-half day. On account of your inserting the same a large number of citizens applied for men and women, enabling us thereby to send to work quite a number. If possible, I wish you would repeat such a notice, in order that we might remind those who have work to be done about their promises that we have the men, women and boys here who will be very glad to get anything to do. Very respectfully,

M. L. HUTCHINS, Secretary.

Miss Etta Hawkins, of St. Paul, who was ushered into the profession in the part of Patience, in the Chicago Church Choir Company, shortly left the operatic stage and joined the Madison Square Theater, of New York. Her light upward in her chosen profession was speedy and pronounced. She is an accomplished young actress, whose work at all times seems to be permeated with the hand of genius. Her work has so far been mostly confined within the narrow limits of the ingenue parts. Essentially a comedienne, her portrayals of her various characters have at all times been imbued with brightness, vivacity and naturalness which have placed her in a prominent position amongst this class of players. She has, moreover, won distinction in parts requiring force and power, conspicuous among which is her portrayal of Rosa Leigh in "Rosedale," which gave evidence of pronounced ability for more serious work. During her professional career she has at all times been under the management of Daniel or Charles Frohman.

Few actors in the annals of theatrical history have attained the pinnacle of fame with the rapidity which has marked Mr. Morris' ascendancy in his chosen profession. Among the theater-goers of New York city he is the prime favorite. Fresh in the minds of the theatrical patrons are his masterly creations of William Prescott in "Men and Women," Ruben Warner in "The Lost Paradise," and Lieut. Hawkesworth in "The Girl I Left Behind Me." Mr. Morris' first professional appearance was at the Boston Museum at the age of fourteen. With this capacity for comedy of errors, closely upon which followed an engagement with Rossi, the Italian tragedian; Augustin Daly's stock company and the New York Madison Square stock company. He then for two years started successfully in South America and the West Indies. On his return, Mr. Morris engaged as leading support to Miss Madeline, and the following year he won unstinted praise playing such parts as Romeo, Orlando, Don Caesar in Rome, and the Duke of Albany. Then comes another starring tour in Jamaica, a short season as leading man of the stock company of San Francisco, and subsequently his engagement with Charles Frohman.

Of the many young actors who played their first professional engagement with Ben Johnson, who is now a member of the William Morris company. He made his first appearance with this organization in the fall of '88, in the part of "Cool" in "London Assurance." After a season's engagement with this organization he joined the elder Salvini, playing such parts as "The Merchant of Venice," "The Taming of the Shrew," "The Merry Wives of Windsor," and "The Merry Wives of Windsor." The following season we find him allied with the forces of the younger Salvini, in whose company his ascendancy in his chosen profession has been pronounced and rapid. His greatest hit was perhaps made in the part of Jacques Strop in "Robert Macaire." His portrayal of the diadem of distinct delineations of character parts.

balance of this week, Richard Stahl's beautiful Oriental comic opera, "Said Pasha," will be the bill, presenting all of last week's favorites, and introducing two new members, viz.: Tom Martin, in the comedy role of Nockey, and George Mitchell, in the title role. Both of these gentlemen are wide and favorably known as among the very best in their respective lines, and will undoubtedly prove themselves worthy additions to such a popular and splendid organization.

Douglas Flint, an old St. Paul favorite, and who added much to his already large contingent of friends through his clever work in the "Black Hussar" last week, will enact the role of Hadad in the new bill, a character which has made him famous for two seasons as a member of the Calhoun Opera company.

Flint and Calhoun as Hadad and Nackey in "Said Pasha."

The role of Terrano, the Mexican, will be handled by George Lyding, Frank Sisdale, the leading baritone of the company, will, as Hassen Bey, appear to more advantage than he did during the first week, and undoubtedly establish himself a prime favorite. Mr. Chayer, the funny little Willie Piffkow, will prove his great versatility in the part of the Rajah. In Serena Miss Helen Lamont, the company's prima donna, will find a character to which she is splendidly adapted, it being both musically and dramatically strong. Her splendid interpretation of Minna last week has made her a favorite. Miss Julie Calhoun will assume the role of Ali, which she has hitherto assumed with much success, and which is said to exhibit her
