

SOLDIERS STILL SIGHING

FOR A TRAIN ON WHICH TO GO TO THEIR HOMES.

GOV. SHORTRIDGE IS ACTIVE.

But He Fails to Get Any Cars to Moving—North Dakota Militia Still in Camp—Jamestown Short of Coal—Republican County Conventions—General News of the Northwest.

REPUBLICANS IN SESSION.

Delegates Chosen to Next Week's State Convention.

Special to the Globe.

JAMESTOWN, N. D., July 7.—The state militia, because of the refusal of the "So" road to transport troops to junction points on the Great Northern, is still in camp. The governor made an effort to move the troops today, but as yet is not successful. Railroad men are favorable to the executive and militia, but fear for the interests of the order should the word go out that trains are running here. Eight companies of infantry are here, with no early prospects of release. The city has received but one mail since the strike began. The electric light plant has run out of coal and is burning wood today, with but a small supply on hand. The insane asylum has a two months' supply of coal.

REPUBLICANS IN SESSION.

Delegates Chosen to Next Week's State Convention.

Special to the Globe.

No eventful happenings have yet occurred in the products of the Third, and the drills and other routine progress smoothly.

A number of ladies visited at headquarters this evening.

Regular services will be conducted by Chaplain Plummer at 10:30 tomorrow morning.

Band will be in camp this evening and will probably remain for a day or so.

Populist Delegates.

Special to the Globe.

HASTINGS, Minn., July 7.—At the People's party county convention held today a number of delegates were selected to attend the state convention, to be held in Minneapolis next Tuesday. Michael Johnson, James Kane, Joseph Peter, T. Lahert, Patrick Quigley, C. C. Galt, Wm. O'Leary, D. F. Akin, Michael Sorg, William Hanson, Harvey Edlitt, Ignatius Donnelly, James McManara, F. E. Blake, Michael O'Rourke, T. Murphy, William Ryan, John Ryan and William Russell.

Traveling by stage.

BOZEMAN, Mont., July 7.—The engineers belonging to the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, A. R. U. They are taking no active interest in the strike, and say that they will go to work as soon as union crews are provided them. The first news Bozeman has had for several days came in the form of Anderson, a stage coach route has been established to Helena and Boulder, and many people are traveling that way.

Firemen Called to Chicago.

HUBON, S. D., July 7.—A telegram from the Chicago & Northwestern officers to the officials of the Dakota Central division here asked all unemployed firemen to report at headquarters in Chicago. The firemen held a meeting and decided not to go until advised for what purpose they were wanted. If it is to take the places of discharged firemen, they will go, but if to fill places made vacant by strikers, they will not go. No reply has yet been received.

South Dakota Runaway.

ABERDEEN, S. D., July 7.—The fact has just come out that H. W. Burnham, of Groton, son of the druggist, W. A. Burnham, who is the ex-member of the legislature and now member of the staff of Gov. Sheldon, eloped on the fourth with the seventeen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Hayes, of the same place. What adds great embarrassment to the affair is the circumstance that young Burnham already has a wife and family of two children, who are now visiting in Wisconsin.

Four $13 a Barrel.

MILES CITY, Mont., July 7.—The situation in this city is becoming desperate. Groceries, flour and provisions of all kinds are about exhausted. Flour has jumped up to $13 per barrel. Today made the tenth day since we have had a train through this city. Arrangements have been completed for putting in a line of boats on the Yellowstone river to carry freight and detained passengers to Missouri river ports.

Att. Wild Parsnips.

ECHE, Minn., July 7.—Yesterday afternoon four children of Lars Stethedahl, living four miles north of town, were poisoned by eating wild parsnips. One boy, nine years old, died within half an hour after being found. The other two are in a serious condition, but may live.

Trains Discontinued.

JACKSON, Minn., July 7.—On account of light business and the strike the depot clerks and freight men were discharged. After today the morning and evening trains will be discontinued. La Crosse will be discontinued.

Convention Postponed.

DES MOINES, Ia., July 7.—It was decided today to postpone the prohibition state convention from July 11 to July 25, and possibly later on, on account of the railroad strike.

Four Horses Burned.

WASCOA, Minn., July 7.—Fire destroyed the barn owned by Charles Ward, near this city, burning four horses. The loss is $1,000; no insurance.

Christians Are All Right.

CLEVELAND, O., July 7.—Rev. J. Z. Tyler, chairman of the Christian Endeavor committee of arrangements, attended the meeting of the Cleveland branch of the A. R. U. today, and he was assured that the members of the order everywhere would respect the request that there be no interference with passenger travel during the time the Christian Endeavor delegates were on their way to this city or going home from the convention. The union men also assured Mr. Tyler that they would see to it that freight trains carrying provisions were permitted to run during the convention.

ANARCHY ALL THE RAGE.

GERMANY GREATLY AROUSED OVER ITS REMARKABLE GROWTH.

LEGISLATION CALLED FOR.

The Entire Royal Family Had a Narrow Escape From a Dynamite Plot—Revolution of Feasting Regarding Von Kotze, Who Was Accused of Writing Anonymous Letters.

[Copyrighted, 1894, by the Associated Press.]

BERLIN, July 7.—Anarchy seems to be the question of the day, and there is no indication that official circles place faith in the efficiency of international measures for the suppression of anarchists.

As for the clamor for a revival of the anti-socialist laws, the language of the semi-official press shows clearly that it has not made an impression upon the government. Prince Bismarck's organs have been noisier advocates of exceptional legislation; but they are being reminded that at the very time these laws were being applied with the greatest vigor the most diabolical outrage ever conceived by anarchists was planned and was defeated, although laws, but by mere accident. Had not one of the conspirators betrayed the plot, every living member of the Hohenzollern family would have been destroyed at the inauguration of the German monument at Seidewitz.

It is stated that Chancellor von Caprivi has reported to the emperor that so long as every civilized government is ready to co-operate within its own frontiers and within the measure of its own laws for the detection and repression of crime, ANARCHIST CRIMES, there can be no need of a written compact to enforce the performance of duties which are equally prescribed by the common interests of society in every nation.

There has been a marked revulsion of opinion in regard to the Von Kotze affair since the latter's release by order of the emperor. Emperor William, to whom the documents in the case were submitted, is said to have ordered Von Kotze's release on the ground that there was no similarity between his handwriting and that of the letters and postal cards which caused so much annoyance among the aristocratic families of this city. "Berliner, however, insist that the handwriting of the letters found before the arrest of Von Kotze, who is now on his estate at Frisfelde with his wife and little daughter.

The name of another high official is now circulated as the culprit; but the solution of the mystery surrounding the anonymous letters seems no nearer than it was two weeks ago.

Von Kotze is awaiting Emperor William's return from his trip to Norway. It is considered almost certain that he will not only resume office, but it is believed that the emperor, after being satisfied of his innocence, will find some way to compensate him for his arrest.

The success of the commercial department, formed after the world's fair in connection with the German consulate at Chicago, has induced the government to extend the ideal to all the world.

IMPORTANT CONSULATES. Outside Europe, becoming the leading cities of South America, the duty of these new departments will be to furnish German merchants with a for the extension of Germany's trade.

The last returns of foreign trade for 1893 show an increase in exports of 137,000,000 marks and a decrease in imports of 56,000,000 marks. The returns for 1894 are expected to further justify the policy of the commercial treaty.

A sensation has been caused by the fact that the Vorwarts, the leading Socialist organ, has published another confidential circular, which the editor of that paper says he found on his table. The circular was issued by the administration of the Dierkhardt district, and dealt upon the burgomasters to furnish the government with the names of all conscripts known to sympathize with socialism and anarchism. The circular also instructed the burgomasters to make the necessary inquiries with absolute secrecy. The government will institute an inquiry into the leakage of official documents, which is BECOMING A SCANDAL.

The Army Gazette has just published the new regulations, compiled under the emperor's direction, for the protection of private soldiers against tyranny upon the part of their officers. No commissioned officers are warned not to touch the men during drill, and they are also cautioned against straining the neck by repeated repetitions of the same exercises.

The chief reform, however, is the rule which allows private soldiers to make a complaint directly with the captain commanding his company, and providing that the result of the inquiry shall be held to the private by his captain. A set of very heavy penalties are enacted to prevent frivolous and malicious complaints.

It was lately rumored here yesterday that the celebrated actor Ludwig had committed suicide. The supposed cause was the amount of his jewelry and other valuables at Cologne. The son, it appears, entered a jewelry shop and stole the amount of jewelry which he had as a motive for the crime, for young Ludwig is well off. He admits the theft, but he says he does not regret committing it. A curious feature of the case is that the young man is acting in a play by Paul Lindau called "The Other," in which the chief character is a law officer who becomes mentally affected by overwork, and who then turns burglar every night.

THE FIRE BUGS.

How They Carried on Their Deceitful and Destructive Work.

CHICAGO, July 7.—The railroad companies tonight are using extraordinary precautions to prevent a repetition of last night's burning of freight cars. They have, however, small hopes of preventing the burning if the strikers are determined to set fire to the cars. Friday night the officials of the Burlington road were warned that an attempt would be made to burn their cars, and a large number of watchmen were employed to guard against it. Despite the utmost watchfulness of the officers a car would suddenly burst into flames, and as the watchmen rushed to extinguish the fire another car a short distance off would blaze up. This was continued until midnight when the incident was pulled off. The fire bugs traveled in pairs and carried small bottles filled with an explosive which would burst into flames the instant the bottle was shattered against a car. The watchmen were utterly unable to detect the incendiaries or put a check on the roads to protect their property last night causes them great uneasiness for the future.

Completely Suspended.

CHESSNA, Wyo., July 7.—All business on the Union Pacific between Cheyenne and Ogden is completely suspended, and no trains have been moved today. A train is being made up here to go over the Cheyenne and Northern to Orin Junction, where the North U. S. cavalry from Fort Robinson will be met and brought here. The troops will be distributed along the line of the Union Pacific.

ODDS AND ENDS.

I was sitting in the easiest chair which a newspaper den can afford, doing a bit of my morning's work, when I saw to see what was said by those who had "left the mus's haunt."

To turn the crank of an opinion mill, I have been thinking of the matter for some time. Some intrusive fancy diverted my attention from the pages and sent my thoughts off on an uncharted course, leaving the muscular system alone to do the purpose for which my mind had freed itself, and when purpose again secured control I found that I had turned to one of those pages on which were displayed the multifarious little points of the community, which the paper was printed. These items possess more interest to the coffee-drinking man than to the floors up under the roof, where the interest in them is limited to the extent to which they can be carried to the pleasant and satisfactory which descends to the business office to receive the little communication from the cashier. I don't know why I paused at all to look over this page instead of throwing the paper aside and passing on to fresh pastures, but I did, and my eye was caught by the following advertisement under the caption of "Personal."

"Adoption—New-born boy; dark, handsome; also several other charming babies of excellent pretensions. Apply, etc." What a suggestive advertisement! What a flash-light it throws on the seamy side of society! What stories of love, unbridled passion, shame and ruined lives spring from it! What a picture of those inhuman moments at Seidewitz! It is stated that Chancellor von Caprivi has reported to the emperor that so long as every civilized government is ready to co-operate within its own frontiers and within the measure of its own laws for the detection and repression of crime, ANARCHIST CRIMES, there can be no need of a written compact to enforce the performance of duties which are equally prescribed by the common interests of society in every nation.

Some one passed under my study window the other night whistling "The Girl I Left Behind Me." In a flash the printed page of the Globe I was reading, became a blank, and my mind was busy with the scene the familiar tune brought up from memory's recesses of a village street looking out on Lake Michigan from its eastern bay, on whose waters a bright April morning's sun was glistening. Summer had been first on the Massachusetts troops had been assaulted by Baltimore's mob, and the irrepressible conflict was coming to a head. In the street is a company of young volunteers clad in the motley gear of the far-off campaign, the store and the school room, carrying the heavy obsolete Austrian muskets and wearing the pipe-clayed belts of a defunct militia company, disbanding by the alarms of actual war. The ranks are marching by platoon, and the music is playing on the railroad ground, where their elected captain puts them through the lessons in Karske which he had spent a good part of the previous night in studying, while at their head is old Sheriff, a veteran of the Mexican war, vigorously playing on his life "The Girl I Left Behind Me" to the accompaniment of a snare drum sometimes in and oftener out of time. The old fifer may have known other tunes, and have played them fogs, but this is his favorite, and he plays it often that it is so indolently associated with those glowing days when we feared that I never would get to the front, that I never heard the tune, how but the scenes of the early days of the war rush out of my memory.

Mr. Field, temporarily a resident of Montana, had been too free with other people's horses or too handy with his gun, or in some way had incurred the unpopularity of a jury, and had been sentenced to be hanged at Livingston by the sheriff. The sheriff, as master of ceremonies of this necktie party, set about it in Ward McAllister style. He had cards printed on the back of which was a photograph of the gentleman who was to be the chief attraction of the performance, and on the other side in heavy black borders was an invitation, couched in choice Montanese, asking the recipient to attend and enjoy the final act in the career of the soon-to-be-hanged felon. The invitation was sent by mail, and the sheriff had made a judicious distribution of these cards of admittance to the country whose voters must be present in the future contest for the shirvelly, and on the appointed gala day the little town was filled with people come to see the show. Among them were a few hundred cowboys who had fled from their ranches for a so-called night's round, expects their friends with the house and ready to offer their services in case the sheriff proved a bungler.

Very much to the disgust of the assembled multitude, the governor of the state decided to suspend the party to a future day, and, as the train was

SCHOOL TEACHERS.

Meeting of the National Council at Astbury Park.

ASTBURY PARK, N. J., July 7.—The second day's session of the national council of education was called to order by President Coy this morning. There have arrived many educators from here since the adjournment yesterday. The first thing in order was the presentation of tributes to deceased members of the council. John W. Cook, of Illinois, paid a glowing tribute to the late George Howland, of Chicago. The educational topic of the morning was the doctrine of formal discipline, by B. A. Ausable, professor of pedagogy of Michigan university.

N. C. Schoffer, state superintendent of public instruction of Pennsylvania, said that the purpose of all education was to teach the pupil to think for himself. President Cleveland's habit of thinking for himself on questions of finance was cited as an illustration of the right theory in education, and the discipline of the mind as well.

Charles De Garmo, of Pennsylvania, said that every operation of the mind tended to its development as a whole. Prof. C. E. White, of Cincinnati, said that every power of the mind is trained by its own activity; that the mind is a unit; that the schools of forty years ago were not broad enough; that the most prominent educators of the land had received their best powers in contact with the practical affairs of the world after their college life.

The subject was developed into one of the most interesting of the sessions thus far, and the discussion was continued at length by Frank Boone, of the Michigan normal school; Zaimon Richards, of Washington, D. C.; C. C. Rounds, of New Hampshire, and others. President Coy appointed a committee on nominations: Membership—W. T. Harris, Washington, D. C.; Nicholas Murray Butler, New York; C. C. Rounds, New Hampshire; James H. Canfield, Nebraska.

On nominations—D. A. Calkins, New York; N. C. Schoffer, Pennsylvania; D. D. Kieble, Minnesota. Auditing—N. C. Hewitt and M. Bradley, Illinois.

COREAN TROUBLE.

Russia Has Not Issued an Ultimatum to Japan.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Referring to the telegram published several days ago to the effect that the Russian government had presented an ultimatum to the Japanese government demanding the withdrawal of the Japanese troops from Korea, it can be stated on the best authority that no such ultimatum has been issued by any foreign government. The Korean government, several days ago, asked the intervention of the foreign representatives at Seoul to assist in securing the withdrawal of the Chinese and Japanese troops, alleging that the latter had been unjustly suppressed. The Japanese government denies the correctness of this statement, and asserts that not only is the revolt which in the first instance necessitated the presence of Japanese troops in Korea still unquiescent, but that the causes which brought it about are still potent, and will, unless something is done to remove them, continue to be a fruitful source of disturbance and danger to every foreign nation having interests in Korea.

Paralysis at Preston. Preston, Minn., July 7.—Freight business is entirely suspended and farmers are having trouble to get twine to bind their grain, much of which is dead ripe. Part of the passenger trains have been abandoned. The men here have not struck, but are laid off for lack of business.
