This is the ticket which a united, determined and militant Democracy will carry to victory next November. It was a great convention, remarkable for its enthusiasm, as well as for its determination to avoid all acts that might be misconstrued by the opposition. The ticket nominated is remarkably strong one of the strongest ever named by the party, as much care having been bestowed upon the selection of candidates for the minor offices as upon those of most importance.

There were three hard contests in sight when the convention met: the first over the organization, the second over the nomination for state auditor, and the third against the nomination of

MARECK READS HIS SPEECH.

Judge Willis. The first two were intimately connected, while the fight against Willis might have amounted to more had Auditor Bierman's defeat been added to the defeat of Senator Leavett. The first skirmish came between ex-Mayor Winston, of Minneapolis, and Senator J. W. Leavitt, of Meeker. Mayor Winston was presented as the choice of the state committee for temporary chairman, while Senator Leavett was nominated "from the floor" Chairman Thomas D. O'Brien, of Ramsey. In this contest the Hennepin man had the large delegation from his own county as well as the big delegations from Stearns, Winona, Le Sueur, Dakota and Wright. Leavett secured Ramsey, St. Louis, Morrison, Houston, Meeker, McLeod and Wabasha and divided delegations like Blue Earth, Carver and Goodhue. The result was much closer than had been expected.

How Bierman Won. The next contest was over the nom-Ination for auditor between the present incumbent, Hon. Adolph Biermann, and John D. Kynaston. Over this there was a great deal of bitterness, it being openly charged on the floor of the convention that the railroads and the pine land rings were determined to defeat Mr. Biermann. This set the tide strongly in favor of Mr. Biermann, and he was nominated by a large majority. He had done no work to secure the honor, but his friends were not idle. and the delegates made up their minds to take no chances, and voted heavily in his favor. The unit rule worked badly in this contest for those sho had hoped to profit by it, and the big Ramsey and Hennepin delegations went solidly to Biermann.

ex-Lient. Gov. "Charley" Gilman and several other corporation agents, the popular St. Paul jurist was nominated by acclamation. In fact, the opposition barely raised its voice, and it was well that it did no more, for at that time the convention was thoroughly aroused and convention was thoroughly aroused and determined to repeat the lesson addetermined to repeat the lesson ad- and monopolies, which had thrown the simply meant the perpetuation of power convention in which so little attempt was make to force through a slate, the hard fight against Chairman Wins-ton and the nominations of Biermann and Willis showed that the Democrats will have nothing of the kind. No man Is More Popular with the Democracy of the state than Mayor Winston, but his popularity barely saved him. The results of this contest will be beneficial, and the party has reason to be glad that the house-cleaning was as thorough as it was. It was a family housecleaning, and when it was all over there were few delegates, if any, who did not feel enthusiastic over the admirable ticket selected. In point of numbers the convention was a surprise to all. Nearly the entire 784 delegates were present, and there present from many of the counties, making the entire attendance of these two classes nearly 1,200. The veterans of the party, like Gen. Brisbin, Hon. Levi W. Folsom, Frank Warner and Col. John H. Stevens, were present, as sentatives of the young and fight-

Hammond, of Watertowo; Editors King of Adrian, Schilplin of St. Cloud, Haines of Little Falls, Ryder of Rock, Johnson, of St. Peter; Hunkins, of Austin; Shields, of Faribauit, and of Austin; Shields, of Faribauit, and Stivers, of Brainerd. Among the orators were men like "Davy" Johnson, Frank Larrabee, Ald. Haynes, and Judge Lars M. Rand, of Minneapolis; Dan W. Lawler, Thomas J. McDermott, Thomas D. O'Brien, and J. J. McCafferty, of St. Paul; Frank L. Randall, of Winona; J. F. McGovern, of Wabasha; Frank W. Lyon, of Little Falls; C. F. Baxter, of Fergus Falls, and a host of others.

It was a great big convention, filled with able men and good Democrats, and demonstrated anew the fact that the Democracy of Minnesota is in excellent trim, and ready for a combat at

AT THE FIRST SESSION.

The Convention Was Not Long in Commencing Hostilities. An air of uncertainty and expectancy pervaded the opening scenes in the great Democratic state convention at the Auditorium yesterday morning. No man knew what was going to "happen next," and no man had his speech prepared, because no one knew who would be nominated for even secretary of the convention. This state of affairs was in strong contrast to late Republican gatherings where everything was cut and dried and worked by a prearranged The Auditorium was, of course, ap-propriately decorated for the occasion. Portraits of Grover Cleveland and Thomas Jefferson were suspended over the platform, the latter being con-tributed by Thomas McDermott, of the local committee.

country almost into despair. The party had done its utmost to remedy the evils it found, and while it might have failed in some respects it had done enough to convince the people that the Democratic party is the party of the people. The Republicans admitted by their demand for the repeal of Republican enactments that they had precipitated the financial troubles. They were convicted out of their own mouths. The McKinley law had been repealed, and while the law just enacted was not perfect it was the best law passed in thirty years. He briefly refailed in some respects it had done passed in thirty years. He briefly reviewed the course of congress and the administration, and was warmly applauded as he made telling hits upon the shortcomings of the house and senate.

Mr. Mareck then stated that the state central committee had presented the name of Hon. P. B. Winston, of Minneapolis, for temporary chairman of the convention. T. D. O'Brien announced that he was instructed by the Ramsey county delegation to favor the selection of this officer from the floor, and the only way he knew of to do this was to make a nomination. The Ramsey county delegation, he declared, had nothing to do with Republicans or Populists, and it proposed to state its position at once by asking for a chairman in sympathy with that sentiment. If the Democrats stood by that idea the Democratic ticket could be elected. The Ramsey county Democrats proposed to stand by Grover Cleveland, the Democratic house and the Chicago platform. He therefore nominated Senator S. W. Leavitt, of Meeker county.

"Gentlemen," he said, "if you are going to be Democrats, for God's sake stand by Democracy and place the power in the nands of the people."

He was applauded to the echo, and when D. B. Johnson, of Minneapolis, rose on the other side of the house everyloody knew.

everybody knew The Fight Was On. Mr. Johnson declared that Hennepin was as firm as Ramsey against fusion, and he challenged the county to produce a Democrat of better standing than P. B. Winston. "We will stand here till the crack of doom before we will sidd one inch to fusion." will yield one inch to fusion."

John J. Ryder, of Rock county, sec onded the nomination of Senator Leav D. W. Lawler opened the split in the Ramsey county delegation by saying that there had been no canvass of the delegation, and it was, he said, signifi-cant that the first second to Leavitt's nomination should come from a man and a delegation instructed for Owen. Mr. Ryder made a futile attempt to explain, but took his seat amidst howls of advice to "sit down."

"Here and now," said Mr. Lawler, "is the time and place to discuss these mat-ters and clear the Democratic air. Ramsey county and the state central com-mittee stand by every act of Grover Cleveland. Ramsey county Democrats are loyal, patriotic and faithful and I for one shake hands with Hennepin and second the nomination of P. B. Win ston." It had been the custom of the Democratic party, he said, since Sibley was governor, for the state central committee to nominate a candidate for chairman of the convention, and it was no indication of a slate or a machine that such had been done.

Hon. Frank Warner, of Carver, defended the position of the anti-Winston wing of the party, and declared that the outside counties should be heard from and heeded. The party of the state, he said, could not afford to wear a ball and chain on its neck, and the people must be given a word in the control of the party. After carefully preparing the way for such a declaration, he said the ticket could not win alone. At this point the chair called the gentleman to order, and to the surprise of all he seconded the nomination of Winston. Meeker county seconded the nomina tion of Leavitt. A. La Due explained the position of Rock county by stating that they were Washington for Leavitt.

Durant, of Washington, held that the delegates should select their chairman from the floor, and seconded the nomination of Senator Leavitt.

F. W. M. Cutcheon, and second and the stafe central committee, said that Ramsey county stood for the welfare of the next the rights of the head of the leaving the second second in the hands of a few. The party must be controlled by the masses. He had no attack to make on the state central committee, but he deplored the fact that that committee "had not had the manhood to indorse Grover Cleveland."

This declaration gave rise to many objections, and a point of order was successfully made that Mr. Cutcheon was out of order.
Mr. Doran declared that the Ramsey county delegation had taken no action on the selection of chairman, and he did not deny the right of the convention to select its own chairman. A motion was then made and carried to take the vote for chairman by coun-

Harmony for Awhile. T. D. O'Brien, Ramsey, moved to make the election of Mr. Winston unanimous, the motion being seconded by E. W. Durant, and was unanimously carried. The newly-elected chairman was called to the platform and introduced by Mr. Mareck.

Mr. Winston declared that he had prepared a speech in honor of Mr. Leavett, who was just as good a Democrat as he was, and he yielded in fidelity to Democracy to no mah. He accepted with thanks for the honor conferred upon himself and Minneapolis. Mr. King, of Nobles county, nominated John A. Johnson, of St. Peter, for secre

> Party of the People. The Fourth district candidate de-clared that he had not come to the convention with the expectation of making an address, but after congratulating the convention on its size and enthusiasm he proceeded to make a strong speech just the same. The Democratic party, he said, is not made for the success of any man, but for the triumph of ideas. He briefly sketched the history of the two great parties, showing that the Democratic party has always been the party of the people. The Republican party, on the other hand, has been the party of the classes. In closing, Mr. Darragh brought down the house by the blunt declaration that the Democratic nomines in the Fourth district is going nominee in the Fourth district is going to win next November. Contests All Settled.

The committee on credentials reported no contests from any part of the state, and recommended the admission of the list of delegates filed with the secretary. The counties of Cook, Beltrami, Isanti and Kanabec had no representatives present, and it was agreed that where there were absentees from a delegation the delegation should cast the solid vote of such county. The report of the committee on credentials was adopted.

Col. Crooks, chairman of the committee on resolutions, took the stage in response to calls, and road the declaration of principles which constitutes the party platform.

J. J. Ryder, of Rock, wanted a plank inserted in the platform touching upon the question of labor. C. J. Buell seconded the motion, and insisted that the plank to be inserted should be a good, strong one, well nailed down and given a conspicuous place on the front page. The report was then sent back to the committee for the incorporation of the proposed plank.

The committee on permanent organization reported a unanimous recom-mendation that the temporary organiza tion be made permanent. The report was adopted, Mr. Winston making a very brief address of acceptance. Mr. Johnson, the secretary, also made a neat little speech of acceptance, which was the gem of the day.

The chairman announced that the order of business would follow the call, being to nominate candidates for gov-ernor, lieutenant governor, auditor. treasurer, secretary of state, clerk of the supreme court and judges.

Nominations for governor being declared in order, Hon. D.W. Lawler took the stage. An Able Presentation.

When Dan Lawler takes the platform in a political convention the delegates always expect a rattling speech, and they are never disappointed. Yesterday was no exception, and the fact that he F. G. Winston, of Minneapolis, moved that all nominating speeches be made that all nominating speeches be made that all nominating speeches be made that all expected to be the next governor of Minnesota added to the interest of all.

As he walked down the hall Mr. Lawler motion to appoint a committee of five form, which invitation was promptly acon credentials was made by C. T. Baxter, which was amended by Goodine enlarging the committee to one from each judicial district.

The usual motion to have all resoluing that next to the honor of receiving a nomination himself he prized most highly the privilege of presenting the name of a man as a candidate for the leader of the party. Gen. Becker's distinguished services to the party and his adopted state were mentioned, as well as the history of the campaign of 1859, when Gen. Becker was the youthful standard bearer. "The party has grown since then." said Mr. Lawler, "and it is fit and proper that the leader of that great ampaign should again be nominated The young and fighting Democracy will take their place behind him, will take their place benind him, for his Democracy is of the stamp that endears him to all true believers. In this campaign of tariff reform against Mc-Kinleyism and the rights of the people against the privileges of the classes, no braver leader can be found than George L. Becker, of the state of Minneston."

He appeared, he stated, in response to the request of nearly all the delegates from the First congressional district. After calling attention to the fact that the Democratic party in Minnesota is a very much alive body, and the stories to the effect that the Democratic party is dead and that no candidates for the various offices could be found, he stamped as Republican lies. Ex-Mayor John Ludwig, of Winona, was his candidate, and he urged him for lieutenant governor in a speech that took with the boys. The nomina-tion of Mr. Ludwig was seconded by T. J. McDermott, of Ramsey, and several other delegates and then on motion of Louis K. Hull, of Hennepin, the nom-ination of Mayor Ludwig was made by a rising vote.

Mr. Ludwig was called to the platform, and amidst vigorous cheering made his speech of acceptance. He declared that no speech was necessary from him, but if elected he would conduct the business pertaining to the of-fice in a business like and honest man-

AMONG HINCKLEY GRAVES. Nearly All the Dead of That Town Are Buried. Special to the Globe.

HINCKLEY, Minn., Sept. 5 .- Horrible dreds of sightseers who came here today. The dead have been buried with the exception of a few straggling bodies being brought in from the surrounding country. These are taken to the cemetery back of the once beautiful town. placed in boxes and placed underground. It is no longer possible to keep them in sight for identification, as the rapid decay makes it necessary to bury them at once. They were burned so badly that, even without the long exposure to the cankerous worms that are fast eating away their flesh, they would not be recognized except by stray pieces of clothing. The cruisers and searching parties are still discovering more awful victims of the greatest horror of the country, but these scenes are so far from the railroad that the people who stop off from passing trains for an hour or two do not see them. One visitor who was here for the first time today said it appears more like a place where people are going over the ground to build a small town in a new settlement. Another remarked that it looked like the ground had been burned over preparatory to establish a town site and start a "boom town." There are a number of tents, a couple of new shanties on the ground and hundreds of people. In one place a number of horses are eating hay from a wagon. Along the railroads that cross here crews of men are working at putting tracks in shape, and other crews are working on the bridges on the Eastern Minnesota road. The wreck trains are busy on both roads and the attention of the majority of people has been diverted from the scenes of horror to the busy scenes attending the bringing of order out of confusion. The scene here is different from that at Pine City, where the relief committees are taking care of the distressed. There are many here yet, however, who still hear the ringing of cries of horror in their ears, and have visions of the past four days of horror before their eyes. Can or will they ever forget these scenes? There are many stout men who have not even lost a friend or property that came to do the work of relief and removing the objects of destruction and desolation, and who have grown emaciated with the mental and bodily strain of the few days just passed. They are worn out with work in the superheated atmosphere, their clothes filled with dust and their faces pinched by the severe mental strain and shocks to the nervous system. They look as distressed as do many of those who went through the hell of Saturday losing relatives and property. It is no wonder that many wno lost wife, husband, children and other relatives ars becoming insane in several instances, It would not be surprising to hear of many more cases of insanity, not only among the sufferers, but even among the stout hearts who came here to ade minister to the suffering. Those who have seen hundreds dead on the field of battle will admit that the scenes at Hinckley are more terrible. A more horrible sight can not be imagined than hundreds of bodies distorted and roasted in a fire, particularly when the bodies have been exposed to the hot sun for days until the flesh drops from the bones, the mouth, eyes and nose are vibrating with the exuberance of gases from the bodies, and the exposed vitals and entraits are creeping with masses of devouring larvæ.

The work at the burying ground is much diminished. The four trenches have been filled up with the baked clay, and the few additional bodies brought n will be placed in a fifth grave of the same character. There are still carcasses of horses and cattle about the place that are noisesome to the sight and offensive
