GALLOWES TO BE USED

For the Hanging of Ermisch and Wonigkeit, Murderers of Lindhoff.

RELATING THEIR CRIMES.

The Condemned Pair Amuse Themselves by Recounting Them.

THEY SHOW NO CONTRITION.

Speak of Their Approaching Doom in the Most Careless Manner.

The cut here presented is the gallows that awaits Charles Ermisch and Otto Wonigkeit, who are under sentence to be hanged before sunrise on Oct. 19 for the cold-blooded murder of William Lindhoff.

Sheriff Chapel has not determined upon the day he will erect the scaffold, but he will not put the carpenters to work until within a day or two of the date fixed for the execution.

The place selected is in the court adjacent to the jail, formed by two wings of the court house and city hall. The windows in the building will be boarded up for the occasion, so as to comply with the provisions of the law that the hanging must be done within an enclosure visible of persons on the outside. The law specifies that the hanging must be in the county jail, if it is so arranged to be possible, otherwise it must be adjacent to the jail. In this case the jail is not suitable for the purpose.

The execution of the sentence must be by the sheriff and his assistant, Reuben Clewett, for many years a deputy sheriff, and at present marshal of White Bear, will probably be the assistant to the sheriff in this instance for one prisoner and Frank Pielka for the other condemned man. Sheriff Chapel does not feel very much elated over the work.

But Will Not Shirk His Duty when the time comes. County Physician Ancker will probably be present in his official capacity. The law specifies that only a few persons may be present, they being limited to the sheriff and his assistants, a priest or clergyman in attendance upon the prisoner, not exceeding three persons to be chosen by the condemned, a physician or surgeon to be selected by the sheriff, and not to exceed six other persons to be selected by the sheriff. The sheriff is authorized by law to call upon the military to preserve order, and this will probably be done to guard against any jam by the curious.

The condemned men have not yet been notified that the day of their doom has been fixed. The sheriff has not yet decided who will read the death warrants to the men, but he can not delay the matter many more days, as it is barely a month until the Friday on which they will pay the death penalty.

Neither of the men are permitted to see the newspapers, nor to receive visitors, and they are kept in solitary confinement, as directed by Gov. Nelson in the death warrant signed last Saturday. Mrs. Schmeizer, the mother of Ermisch, who is still in jail awaiting indictment for conniving at the escape of her son, has not been notified of the fact that the hanging of her son is near at hand. It will not be many days until the men will have to be informed of the day of fate, and given time to prepare for their end. They will be entitled to spiritual advice, and to prepare for the final separation from the few friends they have.

The men are confined night and day in their cells on the top story of the jail. Ermisch is in cell No. 1, and Wonigkeit in cell No. 2, both facing the side of the jail on Fifth street. The cells are side by side. The present guards are Deputies Cortez and Schultz, who take turns of twelve hours each in watching the men. One is on duty in front of the cells during the day and the other at night. Frank Pielka takes a turn occasionally, so that the two mentioned can change water, and one will not be given night turn all the time.

The Felons Pass the Time in talking to each other, and in reading such novels as are furnished them by the sheriff or his deputies. They talk lightly of their approaching end, making such remarks as "The time is getting shorter, and we will soon have to be getting down upon our marrow bones if we expect forgiveness."

Since the attempt to escape, when Ermisch shot Deputy Sheriff Horst in the wrist, they have given up all hope of living much longer, and talk freely of their coming fate and of past deeds. They have a reckless air, and have as yet shown no contrition. One of the deputies says they talk over their various exploits in a way that shows that they are greater desperadoes than the public has any idea of. They talk over crimes they have committed not only in this city, but in other cities and states reaching to New York. Before they went to the reform school they had committed various crimes, and they engaged in several hold ups and robberies in the two weeks intervening between

LINCOLN CLUB DOOMED.

Demand That John H. Ives Shall Go to the Senate.

The Republicans of this city are striving to heal the wide breach in their ranks occasioned by the campaign of last spring, and until they do the placing on its feet of the proposed Lincoln club will be in doubt. There is a contention over the precinct primary plan, but that would be easily settled if a certain woodchuck could be smoked out. That small animal is the real cause of the trouble, although on the surface the contention seems to be over a difference as to how the delegates to the county convention should be selected. Some of the party workers are not slow to go to the bottom of the affair, however, and to declare with hard set teeth and curses that the woodchuck and the crowd that ran the things in the last city campaign will have to give up before the nominations or they will be snowed under at the polls.

This side claims to belong to the street and the other side to the city and asserts that the other side has its strength in the Republican league clubs which were organized on the well known platform of municipal reform, but which is said to be nothing more nor less than the faction party abated in which so much has been said. The latter have become so strong that they have refused to yield and are fighting for control of the party machinery.

A beautiful fight between the two factions last Friday night in the Eighth ward. The old Republican club had a meeting in progress and refused to admit the league club that had demanded admission, and being refused by the league club, the latter proceeded to end in bad feeling and almost blows. The fight between the factions was renewed at the meeting of the committees Saturday last and was so bitter that the call for the county convention was postponed.

It is asserted that the executive committee selected by the county and the city committees will not dare open the doors of the Lincoln club until it is decided which faction will give in on the plan of campaign proposed. The executive committee as agreed upon is said to favor F. B. Doran, O. B. Lewis or F. G. Bryant for president, and its members will be thrown to the league club. The selection of F. C. Stevens or F. W. Zollman as officers of the club had to be abandoned for the sake of harmony, but the disposition of that question did not harmonize the different factions, and the same thing will give the party over to the control of the league clubs. A former deputy sheriff says that Sheriff Chapel is so fed up by the leagues that his defeat for re-election is now sure, and even if he does get the nomination he will be killed by a great many Republicans. The fight between the factions has grown so bitter that several candidates for office have drawn out to let things simmer down, and it is expected that the party will be divided into two camps, one of high moral ideas.

Ives for the Senate. Delegations and individuals have been waiting upon Hon. John H. Ives, asking him to be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for state senator in the Twenty-sixth district of this city, and Mr. Ives has consented to enter the list of aspirants for the office, which is now open to all citizens of legal age, in speaking on the subject, said: "I have been asked to give a reason for desiring to be elected in this position, and would say that it is because I believe he is the best man that could be named in the city. He has had the experience of two terms in the legislature, and he knows the needs of the city better than almost any man here. He is a lawyer, and he is a man of law. He is familiar with our character. He is a forcible speaker, and is just such a man as we need to protect her interests in the coming legislature. He has a very large acquaintance throughout the state, and his jovial disposition and ability to enter into the work of the legislature makes him a strong man with the lawmakers. In the last legislature he was the strongest man on the county delegation. The city needs him, and it is a mistake not to send him to the legislature. He is strong before the people, and would surely be elected if nominated."

Committee Organized. The new executive committee of the Seven Corners Young Men's Democratic club met and organized last night. T. R. Willerscheid, the first vice president of the club, is ex-officio chairman of the committee. William Knobloch was chosen as secretary and the new assistant secretary. The club rooms will be open day and evening to the admission of active and passive members and their friends. The executive committee will hold meetings every Friday evening at 8:30. Some changes in the constitution will be recommended to the club for action. A resolution was adopted asking the central Democratic county committee to inaugurate or more primary voting places in each ward. A committee was named to secure persons to address the club from time to time.

Meeting Scheduled. The German-American People's party club of the Eighth ward will meet tonight at the corner of Adams and University avenue and Dale street.

The Eighth Ward Banner Democratic club will meet Thursday evening at Braund hall.

The Sixth Ward Banner Democratic club will meet this evening at their hall, corner of South Wabasha and Colorado streets.

The Sixth Ward Pops will meet tonight at Heethoven hall, corner of Concord and Ontario streets.
