

SAINT PAUL. DEMOCRATIC TICKETS. STATE TICKET. Governor, GEN. GEO. L. BECKER. Lieutenant Governor, JOHN LUDWIG. Sec'y of State, CHARLES J. HAINES. Treasurer, CHARLES A. LAMBERT. Auditor, ADOLPH BIERMANN. Atty Gen., LOGAN BRACKENRIDGE. Supreme Court Clerk, THOS. C. KURTZ. Justices of the Supreme Court, Chief Justice, NICHOLAS SMITH. Associate Justice, JOHN W. WILLIS.

CONGRESSIONAL TICKET. Congressman, E. J. DARRAGH.

COUNTY TICKET. Clerk of Courts, WM. A. VAN SLYKE. Sheriff, ANTON MIESEN. Auditor, M. F. KAIN. Treasurer, JOHN S. GRODE. Register of Deeds, PERCY BUTLER. Abstract Clerk, WILLIAM KOCH. Judge of Probate, JOHN B. OLIVIER. Coroner, DR. E. B. WHITCOMB. Surveyor, DAVID L. CURTICE. District Judge, HENRY K. HALL. County Sec'y of Schools, JOHN A. HOGAN.

LEGISLATIVE TICKET. Senators, Twenty-fifth Dist., L. E. REED. Twenty-sixth Dist., JOHN H. IVES. Twenty-seventh Dist., C. I. WARRICK. Representatives, First Ward, F. W. RAHE. Second Ward, H. B. KELLY. Third Ward, EDWARD J. SCHURMEIER. Fourth Ward, WITTE K. COCHRAN. Fifth Ward, GEORGE T. REDINGTON. Sixth Ward, WM. B. HAWTHORNE. Seventh Ward, E. H. HALL. Eighth Ward, GEORGE GERLACH. Ninth Ward, CHARLES JESSRANG. Tenth and Eleventh wards and outside towns, WILLIAM H. BORDEN.

PICKED UP ON THE RUN. It is payday at the city hall tomorrow. Success services and sermons at the temple at 6 o'clock this evening and 9:30 tomorrow morning.

Minnesota Naval Veterans, all hands on deck at six o'clock in the afternoon watch at 144 East Fourth street, Oct. 14.

The ladies of the board will be at the "Woman's Christian Home," 480 North street, Friday, all day, to receive their friends, and donations of any kind will be thankfully received.

The women of the Episcopal church will hold a meeting Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. in the guild room of Christ church, to consider entertaining the auxiliary at the time of the general convention in October, 1912.

The date for the big meeting at Market hall, under the auspices of the Trades and Labor assembly, has been fixed for Oct. 30. W. W. Erwin will address the audience on the A. R. U. and the defense of Debs.

A number of society ladies in Minneapolis have hit upon the novel idea of giving a burnt cork social for the benefit of a hospital at that city. Great preparations are under way for the event, which will come off at the Grand on Nov. 6 and 7.

The ladies taking part in the affair have invited a large audience, to consider entertaining the auxiliary at the time of the general convention in October, 1912.

Exclusively the Boston. This applies to the new "Bell Bottom" Overcoat shown on page 8.

WELCOME. When he arose to make a brief speech, which was heartily applauded, and he hoped he would have an almost unanimous election.

Anton Miesen was given a most hearty reception when introduced, and pleased the audience with a talk on party unity. He urged the voters to beware of scratched tickets in the interest of independent candidates. He said that he always seemed to be unfortunate enough to have independents pitted against him. He also asked them to be careful not to encourage booters against the other candidates.

Assemblyman Strouse spoke next, and made a very eloquent address to his own people. He alluded to the party of liberty given the Jewish people in this country, and the equal privileges accorded them. He alluded to the knowledge that the Republican party had held two meetings in the neighborhood in the hope that they would prevent this meeting being a success.

John S. Grode said he was surprised on this, the first occasion that he had ever met a large audience, to find it so enthusiastic in party feeling. He followed with a brief discussion of campaign issues, in German.

William Koch was given a hearty welcome when he arose to make a brief speech, which was heartily applauded, and he hoped he would have an almost unanimous election.

Anton Miesen was given a most hearty reception when introduced, and pleased the audience with a talk on party unity. He urged the voters to beware of scratched tickets in the interest of independent candidates. He said that he always seemed to be unfortunate enough to have independents pitted against him. He also asked them to be careful not to encourage booters against the other candidates.

Assemblyman Strouse spoke next, and made a very eloquent address to his own people. He alluded to the party of liberty given the Jewish people in this country, and the equal privileges accorded them. He alluded to the knowledge that the Republican party had held two meetings in the neighborhood in the hope that they would prevent this meeting being a success.

John S. Grode said he was surprised on this, the first occasion that he had ever met a large audience, to find it so enthusiastic in party feeling. He followed with a brief discussion of campaign issues, in German.

William Koch was given a hearty welcome when he arose to make a brief speech, which was heartily applauded, and he hoped he would have an almost unanimous election.

Anton Miesen was given a most hearty reception when introduced, and pleased the audience with a talk on party unity. He urged the voters to beware of scratched tickets in the interest of independent candidates. He said that he always seemed to be unfortunate enough to have independents pitted against him. He also asked them to be careful not to encourage booters against the other candidates.

Assemblyman Strouse spoke next, and made a very eloquent address to his own people. He alluded to the party of liberty given the Jewish people in this country, and the equal privileges accorded them. He alluded to the knowledge that the Republican party had held two meetings in the neighborhood in the hope that they would prevent this meeting being a success.

John S. Grode said he was surprised on this, the first occasion that he had ever met a large audience, to find it so enthusiastic in party feeling. He followed with a brief discussion of campaign issues, in German.

William Koch was given a hearty welcome when he arose to make a brief speech, which was heartily applauded, and he hoped he would have an almost unanimous election.

Anton Miesen was given a most hearty reception when introduced, and pleased the audience with a talk on party unity. He urged the voters to beware of scratched tickets in the interest of independent candidates. He said that he always seemed to be unfortunate enough to have independents pitted against him. He also asked them to be careful not to encourage booters against the other candidates.

Assemblyman Strouse spoke next, and made a very eloquent address to his own people. He alluded to the party of liberty given the Jewish people in this country, and the equal privileges accorded them. He alluded to the knowledge that the Republican party had held two meetings in the neighborhood in the hope that they would prevent this meeting being a success.

John S. Grode said he was surprised on this, the first occasion that he had ever met a large audience, to find it so enthusiastic in party feeling. He followed with a brief discussion of campaign issues, in German.

William Koch was given a hearty welcome when he arose to make a brief speech, which was heartily applauded, and he hoped he would have an almost unanimous election.

Anton Miesen was given a most hearty reception when introduced, and pleased the audience with a talk on party unity. He urged the voters to beware of scratched tickets in the interest of independent candidates. He said that he always seemed to be unfortunate enough to have independents pitted against him. He also asked them to be careful not to encourage booters against the other candidates.

Assemblyman Strouse spoke next, and made a very eloquent address to his own people. He alluded to the party of liberty given the Jewish people in this country, and the equal privileges accorded them. He alluded to the knowledge that the Republican party had held two meetings in the neighborhood in the hope that they would prevent this meeting being a success.

John S. Grode said he was surprised on this, the first occasion that he had ever met a large audience, to find it so enthusiastic in party feeling. He followed with a brief discussion of campaign issues, in German.

William Koch was given a hearty welcome when he arose to make a brief speech, which was heartily applauded, and he hoped he would have an almost unanimous election.

Anton Miesen was given a most hearty reception when introduced, and pleased the audience with a talk on party unity. He urged the voters to beware of scratched tickets in the interest of independent candidates. He said that he always seemed to be unfortunate enough to have independents pitted against him. He also asked them to be careful not to encourage booters against the other candidates.

Assemblyman Strouse spoke next, and made a very eloquent address to his own people. He alluded to the party of liberty given the Jewish people in this country, and the equal privileges accorded them. He alluded to the knowledge that the Republican party had held two meetings in the neighborhood in the hope that they would prevent this meeting being a success.

John S. Grode said he was surprised on this, the first occasion that he had ever met a large audience, to find it so enthusiastic in party feeling. He followed with a brief discussion of campaign issues, in German.

William Koch was given a hearty welcome when he arose to make a brief speech, which was heartily applauded, and he hoped he would have an almost unanimous election.

Anton Miesen was given a most hearty reception when introduced, and pleased the audience with a talk on party unity. He urged the voters to beware of scratched tickets in the interest of independent candidates. He said that he always seemed to be unfortunate enough to have independents pitted against him. He also asked them to be careful not to encourage booters against the other candidates.

Assemblyman Strouse spoke next, and made a very eloquent address to his own people. He alluded to the party of liberty given the Jewish people in this country, and the equal privileges accorded them. He alluded to the knowledge that the Republican party had held two meetings in the neighborhood in the hope that they would prevent this meeting being a success.

John S. Grode said he was surprised on this, the first occasion that he had ever met a large audience, to find it so enthusiastic in party feeling. He followed with a brief discussion of campaign issues, in German.

William Koch was given a hearty welcome when he arose to make a brief speech, which was heartily applauded, and he hoped he would have an almost unanimous election.

Anton Miesen was given a most hearty reception when introduced, and pleased the audience with a talk on party unity. He urged the voters to beware of scratched tickets in the interest of independent candidates. He said that he always seemed to be unfortunate enough to have independents pitted against him. He also asked them to be careful not to encourage booters against the other candidates.

Assemblyman Strouse spoke next, and made a very eloquent address to his own people. He alluded to the party of liberty given the Jewish people in this country, and the equal privileges accorded them. He alluded to the knowledge that the Republican party had held two meetings in the neighborhood in the hope that they would prevent this meeting being a success.

John S. Grode said he was surprised on this, the first occasion that he had ever met a large audience, to find it so enthusiastic in party feeling. He followed with a brief discussion of campaign issues, in German.

William Koch was given a hearty welcome when he arose to make a brief speech, which was heartily applauded, and he hoped he would have an almost unanimous election.

Anton Miesen was given a most hearty reception when introduced, and pleased the audience with a talk on party unity. He urged the voters to beware of scratched tickets in the interest of independent candidates. He said that he always seemed to be unfortunate enough to have independents pitted against him. He also asked them to be careful not to encourage booters against the other candidates.

Assemblyman Strouse spoke next, and made a very eloquent address to his own people. He alluded to the party of liberty given the Jewish people in this country, and the equal privileges accorded them. He alluded to the knowledge that the Republican party had held two meetings in the neighborhood in the hope that they would prevent this meeting being a success.

John S. Grode said he was surprised on this, the first occasion that he had ever met a large audience, to find it so enthusiastic in party feeling. He followed with a brief discussion of campaign issues, in German.

William Koch was given a hearty welcome when he arose to make a brief speech, which was heartily applauded, and he hoped he would have an almost unanimous election.

Anton Miesen was given a most hearty reception when introduced, and pleased the audience with a talk on party unity. He urged the voters to beware of scratched tickets in the interest of independent candidates. He said that he always seemed to be unfortunate enough to have independents pitted against him. He also asked them to be careful not to encourage booters against the other candidates.

ABLAZE WITH SPIRIT.

Hebrew Democrats Hold a Glorious Meeting in the Sixth Ward.

REPUBLICANS DROWNED OUT At Meetings They Attempted on Both Sides of the Democrats.

GREAT ARRAY OF ORATORS. Samuel E. Hall Democratic Nominee in the Seventh for Legislature.

The Sixth ward Hebrew-American club held a rousing and enthusiastic meeting last night on the lower flats. The hall was decorated with banners and portraits of the state candidates, as well as Congressman Darragh, and smaller ones of local candidates. The large hall was filled to overflowing and the meeting lasted until 11 o'clock.

There has probably not been so good a Democratic meeting in the ward for years. Many of the county officers, as well as ward candidates, were present. The candidates thought they would not be able to stay long, as they wanted to go to another meeting, but the spellbinders held them all to the last. Space will not permit repeating very many of the good things said, but the whole may be summed up in the expression, "It was a great and enthusiastic rally."

The Hebrews demonstrated that they are loyal to the party that betrays them. The Republicans tried to get up a meeting on each side of the Democratic one, to draw the Jews away, but they failed, and their speakers, including Gebhard Willich, Leon T. Chamberlain and E. J. Darragh, were certainly entertained and probably enlightened. Oscar Tankenoff presided and opened the meeting with a speech. A. Popeney seemed to share the delight at the success of the meeting, which closed with enthusiastic cheers for the ticket.

Hon. John H. Ives was introduced by President Tankenoff as the first speaker, and at once began a vigorous speech, prefaced with the remark that he was glad to see the Jewish people alive to their own interests and to the Democratic party, their best friends. He asserted that the only stock of ammunition of the Republicans is "hard times," and it is getting so wet that before the campaign is over it would leave them unable to fire a gun. Taking up national affairs, Mr. Ives argued that the Republican party had turned over a bankrupt government to the Democrats and then blamed the latter party for industrial depression. A review of party policy of the last few years was made by Mr. Ives in a way to impress the point that the Democratic rule is the only hope of a perpetuation of the present form of government, and that the rule of the Republican party is detrimental to the interests of the masses of the people.

Discussing local politics, Mr. Ives challenged the statement that Democrats are not friendly to the Jewish race. He mentioned a number of names, including Henry J. Strouse in his ticket, and it had been fair and would do justice to the race. The excellence of the party ticket was discussed.

W. R. Hawthorne, the Fourth ward candidate of the ticket, gave the audience a practical talk on local issues that was received with close attention and applause.

M. F. Kain came in response to an invitation to the club and confessed surprise at the large audience, and his understanding the fact that the Republican party held two meetings in the neighborhood in the hope that they would prevent this meeting being a success.

John S. Grode said he was surprised on this, the first occasion that he had ever met a large audience, to find it so enthusiastic in party feeling. He followed with a brief discussion of campaign issues, in German.

William Koch was given a hearty welcome when he arose to make a brief speech, which was heartily applauded, and he hoped he would have an almost unanimous election.

Anton Miesen was given a most hearty reception when introduced, and pleased the audience with a talk on party unity. He urged the voters to beware of scratched tickets in the interest of independent candidates. He said that he always seemed to be unfortunate enough to have independents pitted against him. He also asked them to be careful not to encourage booters against the other candidates.

Assemblyman Strouse spoke next, and made a very eloquent address to his own people. He alluded to the party of liberty given the Jewish people in this country, and the equal privileges accorded them. He alluded to the knowledge that the Republican party had held two meetings in the neighborhood in the hope that they would prevent this meeting being a success.

John S. Grode said he was surprised on this, the first occasion that he had ever met a large audience, to find it so enthusiastic in party feeling. He followed with a brief discussion of campaign issues, in German.

William Koch was given a hearty welcome when he arose to make a brief speech, which was heartily applauded, and he hoped he would have an almost unanimous election.

Anton Miesen was given a most hearty reception when introduced, and pleased the audience with a talk on party unity. He urged the voters to beware of scratched tickets in the interest of independent candidates. He said that he always seemed to be unfortunate enough to have independents pitted against him. He also asked them to be careful not to encourage booters against the other candidates.

Assemblyman Strouse spoke next, and made a very eloquent address to his own people. He alluded to the party of liberty given the Jewish people in this country, and the equal privileges accorded them. He alluded to the knowledge that the Republican party had held two meetings in the neighborhood in the hope that they would prevent this meeting being a success.

John S. Grode said he was surprised on this, the first occasion that he had ever met a large audience, to find it so enthusiastic in party feeling. He followed with a brief discussion of campaign issues, in German.

William Koch was given a hearty welcome when he arose to make a brief speech, which was heartily applauded, and he hoped he would have an almost unanimous election.

Anton Miesen was given a most hearty reception when introduced, and pleased the audience with a talk on party unity. He urged the voters to beware of scratched tickets in the interest of independent candidates. He said that he always seemed to be unfortunate enough to have independents pitted against him. He also asked them to be careful not to encourage booters against the other candidates.

Assemblyman Strouse spoke next, and made a very eloquent address to his own people. He alluded to the party of liberty given the Jewish people in this country, and the equal privileges accorded them. He alluded to the knowledge that the Republican party had held two meetings in the neighborhood in the hope that they would prevent this meeting being a success.

John S. Grode said he was surprised on this, the first occasion that he had ever met a large audience, to find it so enthusiastic in party feeling. He followed with a brief discussion of campaign issues, in German.

William Koch was given a hearty welcome when he arose to make a brief speech, which was heartily applauded, and he hoped he would have an almost unanimous election.

Anton Miesen was given a most hearty reception when introduced, and pleased the audience with a talk on party unity. He urged the voters to beware of scratched tickets in the interest of independent candidates. He said that he always seemed to be unfortunate enough to have independents pitted against him. He also asked them to be careful not to encourage booters against the other candidates.

Assemblyman Strouse spoke next, and made a very eloquent address to his own people. He alluded to the party of liberty given the Jewish people in this country, and the equal privileges accorded them. He alluded to the knowledge that the Republican party had held two meetings in the neighborhood in the hope that they would prevent this meeting being a success.

John S. Grode said he was surprised on this, the first occasion that he had ever met a large audience, to find it so enthusiastic in party feeling. He followed with a brief discussion of campaign issues, in German.

William Koch was given a hearty welcome when he arose to make a brief speech, which was heartily applauded, and he hoped he would have an almost unanimous election.

Anton Miesen was given a most hearty reception when introduced, and pleased the audience with a talk on party unity. He urged the voters to beware of scratched tickets in the interest of independent candidates. He said that he always seemed to be unfortunate enough to have independents pitted against him. He also asked them to be careful not to encourage booters against the other candidates.

Assemblyman Strouse spoke next, and made a very eloquent address to his own people. He alluded to the party of liberty given the Jewish people in this country, and the equal privileges accorded them. He alluded to the knowledge that the Republican party had held two meetings in the neighborhood in the hope that they would prevent this meeting being a success.

John S. Grode said he was surprised on this, the first occasion that he had ever met a large audience, to find it so enthusiastic in party feeling. He followed with a brief discussion of campaign issues, in German.

THE SAINT PAUL DAILY GLOBE - SUNDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 14, 1911 - SIXTEEN PAGES.

TRAITORS.

Shameful Attacks on a Popular Candidate.

Disgruntled, chronic office-seekers are to be found in all parties. They are occasionally recognized and given a trial. When, through some mismanagement of the office entrusted to them, they are turned out and relegated to private life, like vipers, they will invariably turn against their benefactors, against the party that has warmed them into life, and against the tried and true men chosen by that party as their nominees.

One of the much-abused victims of these rascals is Paul A. Lavallee, the fearless young advocate of the people's rights against the greediness of unscrupulous county contractors.

Born in this county in the year 1883, Mr. Lavallee obtained a common school education, and when thirteen years old he entered the employ of A. H. Lindbeck & Bro. as cash boy, where he remained for two years. He then obtained a position as clerk with Michael Bros. In 1888, when only eighteen years of age, and without a dollar, he started out for himself in a retail grocery business, and succeeded in building up one of the largest establishments in this city. He continued until 1891, when he entered the ice business, taking the responsible position of secretary and treasurer, a position he now holds.

In 1888 he was elected on the board of county commissioners, and has ever since been known as one of its most capable members. Every citizen of this county is now familiar with the printing matter under the Burns contract. Mr. Lavallee was then chairman of the committee on printing, and was instrumental in recovering the sum of $5,300 overcharges to the county treasury.

When Mr. Lavallee was elected the county of Ramsey was paying from $200,000 per year for its printing and stationery. At the present time, through the sagacity and untiring efforts of Mr. Lavallee, the total cost of the printing and stationery of Ramsey county does not exceed $6,000 per year. To Mr. Lavallee is due the credit of the enormous savings. His fearless stand in all matters where the interest of the county were at stake has made him some enemies among that class of people who subsist at the expense of the public treasury and were foiled in their attempts at defrauding the county of large sums of money.

These are the people who are now circulating anonymous slanders on the character of one of our truest public officials, and are afraid to show their hand for fear that the contrast would be too open to the public.

Two years ago, Mr. Lavallee was elected by a majority of over 3,000, and all right-minded citizens will endorse his course at the polls next November.

In 1882, when barely twenty years of age, Mr. Lavallee married Miss Rose Pepin, an adopted daughter of Alfred Pepin, and had seven children, of whom four are still living. He has recently become interested in the French paper of this city, and has always devoted his time and energies to the faithful discharge of his official duties and the welfare of his fellow citizens.

ROUSER IN THE FIRST.

Democrats Out There Are Enthusiastic.

The First Ward Democratic club held a large and enthusiastic meeting at Finlandia hall, 942 Payne avenue, last evening. The lecture was given by the chair and Thomas E. White performed the duties of secretary. President Buckley informed the members of the club that the county committee from the First ward and his two assistants would hold a meeting at 942 Payne avenue this Sunday afternoon at 6 o'clock to confer with the judges of election and ballots and their clerks regarding registering voters next Tuesday.

All Democrats living in the Seventh ward are requested to meet at hall corner of Dayton and Western at 7:30 Monday evening, to organize the Seventh Ward Democratic club. The general members of the precinct organization who took part in last spring's election are requested to be present.

The Fourth Ward Banner Democratic club will meet tomorrow evening at Gray's hall, 507 St. Peter street. The campaign is now red-hot, and a full attendance is requested, as all good Democrats should be on the alert.

The Third Ward Independent club was organized last evening at a hall on Seventh street, with a membership of forty-six. It is the purpose of the club to secure the election of the men best qualified to represent the ward. Their next meeting will be on Tuesday evening.

The German Central Democratic club will hold a meeting on Wednesday, Oct. 17, at 8 o'clock, at Stahel's hall, corner Third and Minnesota streets.

The Eighth Ward Independent Republican club will meet Monday night at 8 o'clock, at the corner of University and Farrington avenues. This club organized in the interest of Capt. John Harris for sheriff. He will be there and promises some sensations. F. L. McGhee, the colored orator, is also billed to speak, and it is believed the meeting will be a warm one.

The Eighth Ward Polish Polak club will meet Monday night at Jarosz hall corner of Thomas and Gaultier streets.

Celebrated "Plymouth" $3 Pants. And $10 suits. Initiated by many, equaled by none. New fall styles now ready. "Plymouth" corner, Seventh and Robert.

Thief Quickly Taken. C. Clark, twenty-one years of age, about 11:30 last evening stole an overcoat belonging to E. S. Thompson, a street car conductor from the barber shop at 438 Rice street. The coat pocket contained forty five-cent pieces. Clark made a desperate run with his booty, followed by a number of boys. He was captured by Officer Goven, and the thief captured the thief in an alley near a lively crowd. The coat was locked up in the central station.

Capt. C. J. Stees has just returned from an extended trip in the east. The captain attended the G. A. R. national encampment at Pittsburg to assist in inducing the G. A. R. to pitch their tents in St. Paul in 1915, after Louisville carried off the prize he struck out of the line of march for his old home, Philadelphia, where he enjoyed himself to his heart's content amount of contracts and schoolmates. While there he visited the various important G. A. R. posts of the city.

FIELD, MAHLER & CO.

CONTINUED.

and heavy wale chevots, in black, brown and navy.

NEW HANDKERCHIEFS.

A very large importation has just been received from Ireland. See the display in our Wabasha Street Window.

Special Sale of Sheer Embroidered Pure Linen Handkerchiefs, scalloped edges or plain hemstitched, in fancy boxes, $1.50 per box containing six handkerchiefs. Six different patterns in a box.

Sheer Linen Initial Handkerchiefs, half-inch hems, 25 cents each.

NEW SILKS.

Here also many new things have been received during the past week.

New Taffetas, black, with fancy weaves in block patterns, $1.25.

Novelty Plaids, 24 inches wide, $1.00.

Black and White Satin Duchesse, extra heavy qualities, a dozen different styles, $1.25 to $1.75.

New Bayadere Corde, in figured changeable effects, the very latest things for waists and sleeves, $1.25 a yard.

Black Taffetas for Skirts, the rustle kind, 59 cents; worth 85c.

Black Moire Antique, very soft and lustrous, $1.75; worth $2.50.

Black Moire Miroir for Dress Skirts, $2.00.

Fancy Black Taffetas, 69 cents; worth 85c.

TRIMMINGS.

All the desirable Trimming Furs - Astrakhan, Mink, Mink Tails, Otter, Black Marten, Etc., Etc., in correct widths at moderate prices.

Ostrich Collars and Boas are scarce everywhere but here. We received quite a big lot yesterday. Prices, $3.00 to $22.50.

Chiffons and Mousselines, 48 inches wide, white, cream, black and evening shades, $1.25 a yard.

Satin Back Colored Velvet Ribbons in all the new shades at lowest prices.

THE SAN FRANCISCO Wine Co.

498 St. Peter, Corner Exchange St., Peter Streets.

MAKES A SPECIALTY OF FAMILY TRADE IN FINE BOTTLE GOODS!

PHIL. POTTS, Manager.

NEW YORK STORE. MILLINERY!

A NEW STORE.

We have recently purchased the entire stock of Trimmed Hats manufactured by Whitebeck, Jones, Marcus & Willoughby, 610, 612, 614 and 618 Broadway, New York, the largest manufacturers of Fine Millinery in America, which we will place on sale Monday morning in our store, 67 and 69 East Seventh Street, between Cedar and Minnesota sts.

We will divide them into two lots. Lot 1 consists of 358 Velvet Hats, Turbans and Toques stylishly trimmed, also Felt Hats and large hats for children, all handsomely trimmed and worth $3.00, $3.25, $3.50, $3.75, $4.00. All go at one price, 99c.

Lot 2 consists of 487 handsome Velvet Hats, large, small and medium shapes, crimped, crinkled, poke and straight effects, trimmed with Jets, Wings, Birds, Ribbons, Half-Plumes, Tips, etc., worth $4.00, $4.50, $4.75, $5.00, $5.50 and $6.00; some worth $7.00; all go at $2.00.

None on approval. None charged. No alterations without charge. Sale positive. No deviations in price. Get prices in other stores before you come.

67 and 69 E. Seventh St. LARGEST STORE IN THE NORTHWEST.

FIELD, MAHLER & CO.

CONTINUED.

and heavy wale chevots, in black, brown and navy.

NEW HANDKERCHIEFS.

A very large importation has just been received from Ireland. See the display in our Wabasha Street Window.

Special Sale of Sheer Embroidered Pure Linen Handkerchiefs, scalloped edges or plain hemstitched, in fancy boxes, $1.50 per box containing six handkerchiefs. Six different patterns in a box.

Sheer Linen Initial Handkerchiefs, half-inch hems, 25 cents each.

NEW SILKS.

Here also many new things have been received during the past week.

New Taffetas, black, with fancy weaves in block patterns, $1.25.

Novelty Plaids, 24 inches wide, $1.00.

Black and White Satin Duchesse, extra heavy qualities, a dozen different styles, $1.25 to $1.75.

New Bayadere Corde, in figured changeable effects, the very latest things for waists and sleeves, $1.25 a yard.

Black Taffetas for Skirts, the rustle kind, 59 cents; worth 85c.

Black Moire Antique, very soft and l