

GOMPERS WILL GO IN

Present President of the Federation Has No Opposition to Re-election.

O. K. PLACED ON BOYCOTTS.

Delegates Warmly Applaud Gov. Waite's Attitude in Strikes.

SECTARIANISM IN UNIONS

Denounced as Destined to Divide Labor's Forces—Work of Denver Convention.

Denver, Col., Dec. 12.—The second day's session of the annual convention of the American Federation was called to order at 9 o'clock, with a full attendance. President Gompers announced the following committees:

Resolutions—E. F. Bailey, Henry Cohen, J. W. Sullivan, J. J. Lincoln, J. H. McCarthy.

Organization—J. Brethel, H. O. Eichen, Patrick McBride, Rhody Kenehan, H. C. Samuels.

Grievances—William Anderson, W. D. Mahoney, L. M. Stern, A. Turnsteth, J. Branschweiler.

Labels and Boycott—J. B. Lennon, Henry Weisman, George W. J. Stout, A. McCullum, John F. Tobin.

Local Federation Body—Emil Ganung, Phila. Hooper, Evans, M. Daughars, A. McMillin.

The committee's rules are practically the same rules as heretofore governed.

A communication from Cigar-makers' Union No. 15 of St. Louis, asking the convention to take steps against any compulsory arbitration law, referred to the rules committee.

The executive council reported the following boycotts by local unions induced by that body:

Random-Nelly Publishing company, Chicago; Washburn-Crosby company, Minneapolis; Myer, Johnson & Co., cloak manufacturers, New York; School Seat Furniture company, Grand Rapids, Mich.; Pfaff Brewing company, Boston, Mass.; Western Wheel Works company, Chicago; Brewers' association, St. Louis; Clothing Manufacturers' association, Boston; Meske Bros., tin manufacturers, St. Louis.

It was announced that John Burns and David Holmes had arranged to hold meetings as follows: Omaha, Dec. 16; Chicago, Dec. 17; St. Louis, Dec. 18; Indianapolis, Dec. 19; Detroit, Dec. 20; Cleveland, Dec. 21; Pittsburgh, Dec. 22; Washington, Dec. 23; Philadelphia, Dec. 24.

The program was endorsed by the committee.

Messrs. Hysell and Patrick McBride, of the mine workers, and others made a plea to have Mr. Burns' program changed so as to give the miners of the Hocking valley a better hearing, and urged that Nelsonville, O., be substituted for Cleveland. The matter was finally referred back to the executive council with the request to call on the arguments of delegates in favor of various localities.

A large number of resolutions were read by Little and referred to the proper committees. Myron W. Reed, of Denver, addressed the convention briefly. He said that he was a dressmaker by profession, but I will guarantee you that you will get for work and food and sleep in your homes you will look like a tramp. Referring to the general methods of charity, he said it was much of it, conscience money given to rich robber-baron victims. Such movements are destined to divide labor's forces and produce bitter antagonism, as they Produce Religious Bigotry, provoke rancorous intolerance and divert the working people from working out their own emancipation from the galling slavery of the present social and political conditions.

Resolved, That we here now reaffirm as one of the cardinal principles of the trades union movement that the working people must unite and organize irrespective of creed, color, sex or nationality.

A motion to make the consideration of the political program a special order for Thursday morning at 11 o'clock was amended by substituting Friday morning and passed. It was decided to invite Gov. Waite to address the convention. President Gompers expressed himself in hearty sympathy with Gov. Waite.

At 12:30 the convention adjourned until 2 o'clock.

At the afternoon session a score or more of resolutions were presented and referred. The committee on credentials reported on the miners' union contest recommending that both factions be seated, and that the vote be divided among them, and that the incoming executive committee take the matter up and endeavor to effect a reconciliation. The report was adopted.

Delegates from the central trades council of Boston, introduced a resolution in favor of free coinage. It was referred to the resolutions committee, at 2:30 the convention adjourned to allow the committees to meet and prepare for tomorrow's work.

It is not believed that Gompers will be elected president with little or no opposition. There are no several candidates for the place, though several are said to have aspirations. President Prescott, of the Typographical union, who has been named as his strongest opponent, has stated that he will not be a candidate. President Gompers was quite ill when he came to Denver, but Awarded Highest Honors—World's Fair.

DR. BROWN'S

Most Perfect Made.

40 YEARS THE STANDARD.

is now somewhat improved, and says that he is not ill to make a fight, if necessary.

John Burns, M. P., has accepted an invitation to address the Woman-Club Saturday afternoon on "Woman—Her Social and Municipal Duties."

DEBS VS. GOMPERS.

A. R. U. Leader Talks Regarding Their Difficulties.

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—The board of directors of the American Railway union began its regular quarterly meeting this forenoon. All the directors were present except R. M. Goodwin. The day was spent in reviewing the work of the organization and in reviewing the reports of the directors. The reports showed that a number of the local unions were in a deplorable condition owing to the strike of last summer, but the officers say that they are more than satisfied with those found to be inactive. Seven new unions were reported as organized within the last thirty days. The difficulty between President Debs and President Gompers appears to be increasing. Debs today gave out the following statement: "Gompers' statement that I asked him to aid in the strike is a mistake. Gompers was asked to attend a conference of all of the labor leaders in the country, to be held in Chicago, to discuss the strike, but refused to come. After his own refusal, I refused to come to Chicago. He came because he was ordered to do so by the board of directors. At no stage of the trouble did I ask him to strike. When the conference was held here I stated the situation, but Gompers refused to attend. Gompers says otherwise I can disprove it. In reply to a question Debs said: "The board of directors of the American Railway union will last until Saturday night, unless it should be terminated by Judge Woods. The court will decide the matter. It is not probable that it will happen that there will be no directors left to go on with the meeting."

A GUEST AT THE CASTLE.

His Demise Causing Great Excitement in the Queen's Household.

WINDSOR, Eng., Dec. 12.—Sir John Thompson, the Canadian prime minister, expired here today after the meeting of the privy council, at which he was sworn in as a member. The Canadian premier was the first to arrive at Paddington railway station, London, this morning, in order to accompany the cabinet ministers and members of the privy council on the special train bound for this place, where a meeting of the privy council was to be held at the castle. Sir John waited on the platform of Paddington station for half an hour before the special train started, and during that time he conversed in an animated manner with Lord Breadalbane, the lord steward of the queen's household, and with Mr. Arnold Morley, the postmaster general; the marquis of Ripon, the colonial secretary; the Indian secretary, Mr. Fowler, and with Sir Charles Lennox Peel, clerk to the privy council. Up to the time the train started, Sir John had not shown any signs of fatigue or excitement. His appearance and manner did not give the slightest indication that he was suffering from any illness.

After the privy council meeting Sir John adjourned with the ministers and others to luncheon. Shortly after this he became suddenly ill.

Expired Almost Immediately.

Dr. Ellison, one of the surgeons in ordinary to the household at Windsor, was sent for promptly, but he was unable to save Sir John's life.

Up to 4 o'clock this afternoon the queen had not been informed of the tragic death of the Canadian premier. His body has been removed to one of the principal rooms of the Clarence tower at Windsor castle, where it awaits the inquest of the crown coroner.

The Marquis of Ripon says that Sir John also expressed the anxiety of the colonies in offering subsidies and aid to the Canadian government, and that the feeling of Canadians had been expressed in the most fervent terms. He said that the project of a union of the two countries was a matter of great importance to the British empire.

When the representatives of the Associated Press saw Sir John after the meeting, they looked very unwell, and appeared to be experiencing difficulty in breathing. But in a kindly manner he said: "I am not ill, and I am not suffering from any illness. I am only a little tired, and I will be all right in a few days. I may then be able to talk."

Sir John Thompson then drove to his home at Windsor, and retired immediately to rest.

The queen had invited Sir John to Windsor to dine and sleep at Windsor castle tonight.

The greatest excitement prevails at Windsor castle this evening.

CANADA IS BEREAVED.

Sir John Thompson, Canadian Premier, Suddenly Expires in England.

FELL DEAD AT WINDSOR.

Victim of Heart Disease, to Which, It Is Said, He Long Was Subject.

A GUEST AT THE CASTLE.

His Demise Causing Great Excitement in the Queen's Household.

WINDSOR, Eng., Dec. 12.—Sir John Thompson, the Canadian prime minister, expired here today after the meeting of the privy council, at which he was sworn in as a member. The Canadian premier was the first to arrive at Paddington railway station, London, this morning, in order to accompany the cabinet ministers and members of the privy council on the special train bound for this place, where a meeting of the privy council was to be held at the castle. Sir John waited on the platform of Paddington station for half an hour before the special train started, and during that time he conversed in an animated manner with Lord Breadalbane, the lord steward of the queen's household, and with Mr. Arnold Morley, the postmaster general; the marquis of Ripon, the colonial secretary; the Indian secretary, Mr. Fowler, and with Sir Charles Lennox Peel, clerk to the privy council. Up to the time the train started, Sir John had not shown any signs of fatigue or excitement. His appearance and manner did not give the slightest indication that he was suffering from any illness.

After the privy council meeting Sir John adjourned with the ministers and others to luncheon. Shortly after this he became suddenly ill.

Expired Almost Immediately.

Dr. Ellison, one of the surgeons in ordinary to the household at Windsor, was sent for promptly, but he was unable to save Sir John's life.

Up to 4 o'clock this afternoon the queen had not been informed of the tragic death of the Canadian premier. His body has been removed to one of the principal rooms of the Clarence tower at Windsor castle, where it awaits the inquest of the crown coroner.

The Marquis of Ripon says that Sir John also expressed the anxiety of the colonies in offering subsidies and aid to the Canadian government, and that the feeling of Canadians had been expressed in the most fervent terms. He said that the project of a union of the two countries was a matter of great importance to the British empire.

When the representatives of the Associated Press saw Sir John after the meeting, they looked very unwell, and appeared to be experiencing difficulty in breathing. But in a kindly manner he said: "I am not ill, and I am not suffering from any illness. I am only a little tired, and I will be all right in a few days. I may then be able to talk."

Sir John Thompson then drove to his home at Windsor, and retired immediately to rest.

The queen had invited Sir John to Windsor to dine and sleep at Windsor castle tonight.

The greatest excitement prevails at Windsor castle this evening.

marked that he looked fatigued. However, the ceremonies passed off all right, and Sir John adjourned with the cabinet ministers to the queen's household and the ministers who came for the ceremony were present. Sir John was seated at the head of the table, waiting, and Lord Pelham Clinton, the master of the queen's household. When the queen's household moved him to an adjoining room, administered brandy and summoned Dr. Reed. When Sir John was taken to the hospital, he was found to be suffering from a heart attack, and he died shortly after midnight.

Chicago Banker Is Opposed to the Various Currency Schemes.

CRITICISES THE BALTIMORE

And Other Plans as Too Radically Different From Present Methods.

PRESENT LAWS MODIFIED

He Considers Most Efficient—Eastern Financiers Before the Committee.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—A letter was read from Lyman J. Gage, the prominent banker and financier of Chicago, at the opening of the hearing of the house committee on banking and currency today. Mr. Gage had been invited to appear before the committee, but as he was unable to come his note was briefly summarized by letter. Referring to the recommendation of the president and secretary of the treasury, Mr. Gage says: "Agreeing with the criticisms made by these officers of the government as to the present weakness of our situation and the great desirability of separating the government from the direct responsibility of currency issues, I am persuaded that the plan proposed by the treasury is a commendable one as to the methods proposed. In making any change the methods should be so simple that all can comprehend it, and it should be seen that the incidental effects would not be in any direction disastrous to the commerce or industry. I believe the 'Baltimore' carries the true principles of a credit currency, but we cannot reach by any one step, and years may intervene before it can be realized. In my opinion, the way for a government to step out of the currency business and place the burden of redemption on the banks is plain.

Authorize the issue of $250,000,000 of 3 1/2 per cent bonds, payable at such time as the treasury may determine, to be used for the redemption of the currency.

Amend the National Bank Act so that banks can obtain note issue to the face value of bonds deposited as security for circulation of notes.

When the representatives of the Associated Press saw Sir John after the meeting, they looked very unwell, and appeared to be experiencing difficulty in breathing. But in a kindly manner he said: "I am not ill, and I am not suffering from any illness. I am only a little tired, and I will be all right in a few days. I may then be able to talk."

Sir John Thompson then drove to his home at Windsor, and retired immediately to rest.

The queen had invited Sir John to Windsor to dine and sleep at Windsor castle tonight.

The greatest excitement prevails at Windsor castle this evening.

London Press Eulogize the Dead Premier.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—The Daily News, in a leader on the death of Sir John Thompson, says it was one of the most noble and heroic deaths of the century in recent annals of the empire. He lived just long enough to enable the queen to execute her intention of making him a privy councillor. This was a great honor, and it was a fitting tribute to his services to the country. Sir John's death was a great loss to the British empire, and his memory will be long and brightly remembered.

To Canada for Burial.

Senator Sanford, with whom the Thompsons came to England, left yesterday evening for Paris with Miss Thompson, daughter of the late premier, who has been staying with Mr. and Mrs. Sanford. A telegram was sent to announce Sir John's death to the Canadian people, and Miss Thompson, who will return to this city tonight.

Queen Victoria has telegraphed her condolence to the Canadian people.

A meeting of the Constitutional club was held this evening and the following resolutions were adopted: That the death of Sir John Thompson was a great loss to the British empire, and his memory will be long and brightly remembered.

That the meeting bears with profound sorrow the death of Sir John Thompson, and gratefully acknowledging his eminent services to the British empire, particularly in organizing the recent inter-colonial conference at Ottawa, it desires to convey its sympathy to his family, to the Conservative party, and to the Canadian people.

Lord Breadalbane said: "I accompanied Sir John Thompson to Windsor. At luncheon he suddenly fainted and was taken to the hospital. He died shortly after midnight. He was a great man, and his death was a great loss to the British empire. His memory will be long and brightly remembered."

He then begged me to return to my luncheon, but of course I would not hear of it, and therefore I remained with him until he had completely recovered, and arose to accompany me back to the luncheon room. I offered him my arm, but he walked unaided, cheerfully remarking: "I am all right now, thank you."

"In the meantime Dr. Reed, the queen's physician, whom I had sent for, arrived. Within two or three minutes of Sir John's return to luncheon, and I saw him suddenly lurch over and fall almost into Dr. Reed's arms.

"At the doctor's request all the ladies left the room and the doctor and I, with some of the servants, alone remained. We did all we could, but I saw he was beyond earthly help.

"Dr. Reed held the same view, and it was happily proved to be but too true. The cause of his death was undoubtedly sudden failure of the heart's action."

Sir Charles Tupper also gave the following particulars of the death of the Canadian prime minister: "When Sir John was in Italy lately he had some difficulty in breathing and was completely unable to walk. He was taken to the hospital, and I advised him not to go to yesterday's evening meeting of the privy council. I knew he was ailing. However, Sir John said that he felt pretty well and I arranged to call at his hotel and drive him to the meeting. He was very weak, but he made only a short speech and not to excite himself. You know how he spoke. Well, at his hotel, I drove him to the castle, and he was there at 10 o'clock in good spirits. On arrival here, Sir Charles Tupper continued, he was taken to the hospital, and he died shortly after midnight. Sir John Thompson as a member of the privy council, several persons re-

GAGE'S POINTS OFFERS

Chicago Banker Is Opposed to the Various Currency Schemes.

CRITICISES THE BALTIMORE

And Other Plans as Too Radically Different From Present Methods.

PRESENT LAWS MODIFIED

He Considers Most Efficient—Eastern Financiers Before the Committee.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—A letter was read from Lyman J. Gage, the prominent banker and financier of Chicago, at the opening of the hearing of the house committee on banking and currency today. Mr. Gage had been invited to appear before the committee, but as he was unable to come his note was briefly summarized by letter. Referring to the recommendation of the president and secretary of the treasury, Mr. Gage says: "Agreeing with the criticisms made by these officers of the government as to the present weakness of our situation and the great desirability of separating the government from the direct responsibility of currency issues, I am persuaded that the plan proposed by the treasury is a commendable one as to the methods proposed. In making any change the methods should be so simple that all can comprehend it, and it should be seen that the incidental effects would not be in any direction disastrous to the commerce or industry. I believe the 'Baltimore' carries the true principles of a credit currency, but we cannot reach by any one step, and years may intervene before it can be realized. In my opinion, the way for a government to step out of the currency business and place the burden of redemption on the banks is plain.

Authorize the issue of $250,000,000 of 3 1/2 per cent bonds, payable at such time as the treasury may determine, to be used for the redemption of the currency.

Amend the National Bank Act so that banks can obtain note issue to the face value of bonds deposited as security for circulation of notes.

When the representatives of the Associated Press saw Sir John after the meeting, they looked very unwell, and appeared to be experiencing difficulty in breathing. But in a kindly manner he said: "I am not ill, and I am not suffering from any illness. I am only a little tired, and I will be all right in a few days. I may then be able to talk."

Sir John Thompson then drove to his home at Windsor, and retired immediately to rest.

The queen had invited Sir John to Windsor to dine and sleep at Windsor castle tonight.

The greatest excitement prevails at Windsor castle this evening.

London Press Eulogize the Dead Premier.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—The Daily News, in a leader on the death of Sir John Thompson, says it was one of the most noble and heroic deaths of the century in recent annals of the empire. He lived just long enough to enable the queen to execute her intention of making him a privy councillor. This was a great honor, and it was a fitting tribute to his services to the country. Sir John's death was a great loss to the British empire, and his memory will be long and brightly remembered.

To Canada for Burial.

Senator Sanford, with whom the Thompsons came to England, left yesterday evening for Paris with Miss Thompson, daughter of the late premier, who has been staying with Mr. and Mrs. Sanford. A telegram was sent to announce Sir John's death to the Canadian people, and Miss Thompson, who will return to this city tonight.

Queen Victoria has telegraphed her condolence to the Canadian people.

A meeting of the Constitutional club was held this evening and the following resolutions were adopted: That the death of Sir John Thompson was a great loss to the British empire, and his memory will be long and brightly remembered.

That the meeting bears with profound sorrow the death of Sir John Thompson, and gratefully acknowledging his eminent services to the British empire, particularly in organizing the recent inter-colonial conference at Ottawa, it desires to convey its sympathy to his family, to the Conservative party, and to the Canadian people.

Lord Breadalbane said: "I accompanied Sir John Thompson to Windsor. At luncheon he suddenly fainted and was taken to the hospital. He died shortly after midnight. He was a great man, and his death was a great loss to the British empire. His memory will be long and brightly remembered."

He then begged me to return to my luncheon, but of course I would not hear of it, and therefore I remained with him until he had completely recovered, and arose to accompany me back to the luncheon room. I offered him my arm, but he walked unaided, cheerfully remarking: "I am all right now, thank you."

"In the meantime Dr. Reed, the queen's physician, whom I had sent for, arrived. Within two or three minutes of Sir John's return to luncheon, and I saw him suddenly lurch over and fall almost into Dr. Reed's arms.

"At the doctor's request all the ladies left the room and the doctor and I, with some of the servants, alone remained. We did all we could, but I saw he was beyond earthly help.

"Dr. Reed held the same view, and it was happily proved to be but too true. The cause of his death was undoubtedly sudden failure of the heart's action."

Sir Charles Tupper also gave the following particulars of the death of the Canadian prime minister: "When Sir John was in Italy lately he had some difficulty in breathing and was completely unable to walk. He was taken to the hospital, and I advised him not to go to yesterday's evening meeting of the privy council. I knew he was ailing. However, Sir John said that he felt pretty well and I arranged to call at his hotel and drive him to the meeting. He was very weak, but he made only a short speech and not to excite himself. You know how he spoke. Well, at his hotel, I drove him to the castle, and he was there at 10 o'clock in good spirits. On arrival here, Sir Charles Tupper continued, he was taken to the hospital, and he died shortly after midnight. Sir John Thompson as a member of the privy council, several persons re-

SHADOW ON SUGAR.

Freekinridge, who was in charge of the bill, in which he defended the income tax, attributed the late Democratic disaster to divisions among the leaders, and predicted that the younger Democrats would suffer the same fate. Governor Wood returned to congress and power along with a purified party, general debate closed, and Mr. Bartlett moved to strike out the five-minute rule, when the vote on the Bartlett amendment was taken by teller. The amendment was defeated, 54 to 127.

CRITICISES THE BALTIMORE

And Other Plans as Too Radically Different From Present Methods.

PRESENT LAWS MODIFIED

He Considers Most Efficient—Eastern Financiers Before the Committee.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—A letter was read from Lyman J. Gage, the prominent banker and financier of Chicago, at the opening of the hearing of the house committee on banking and currency today. Mr. Gage had been invited to appear before the committee, but as he was unable to come his note was briefly summarized by letter. Referring to the recommendation of the president and secretary of the treasury, Mr. Gage says: "Agreeing with the criticisms made by these officers of the government as to the present weakness of our situation and the great desirability of separating the government from the direct responsibility of currency issues, I am persuaded that the plan proposed by the treasury is a commendable one as to the methods proposed. In making any change the methods should be so simple that all can comprehend it, and it should be seen that the incidental effects would not be in any direction disastrous to the commerce or industry. I believe the 'Baltimore' carries the true principles of a credit currency, but we cannot reach by any one step, and years may intervene before it can be realized. In my opinion, the way for a government to step out of the currency business and place the burden of redemption on the banks is plain.

Authorize the issue of $250,000,000 of 3 1/2 per cent bonds, payable at such time as the treasury may determine, to be used for the redemption of the currency.

Amend the National Bank Act so that banks can obtain note issue to the face value of bonds deposited as security for circulation of notes.

When the representatives of the Associated Press saw Sir John after the meeting, they looked very unwell, and appeared to be experiencing difficulty in breathing. But in a kindly manner he said: "I am not ill, and I am not suffering from any illness. I am only a little tired, and I will be all right in a few days. I may then be able to talk."

Sir John Thompson then drove to his home at Windsor, and retired immediately to rest.

The queen had invited Sir John to Windsor to dine and sleep at Windsor castle tonight.

The greatest excitement prevails at Windsor castle this evening.

London Press Eulogize the Dead Premier.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—The Daily News, in a leader on the death of Sir John Thompson, says it was one of the most noble and heroic deaths of the century in recent annals of the empire. He lived just long enough to enable the queen to execute her intention of making him a privy councillor. This was a great honor, and it was a fitting tribute to his services to the country. Sir John's death was a great loss to the British empire, and his memory will be long and brightly remembered.

To Canada for Burial.

Senator Sanford, with whom the Thompsons came to England, left yesterday evening for Paris with Miss Thompson, daughter of the late premier, who has been staying with Mr. and Mrs. Sanford. A telegram was sent to announce Sir John's death to the Canadian people, and Miss Thompson, who will return to this city tonight.

Queen Victoria has telegraphed her condolence to the Canadian people.

A meeting of the Constitutional club was held this evening and the following resolutions were adopted: That the death of Sir John Thompson was a great loss to the British empire, and his memory will be long and brightly remembered.

That the meeting bears with profound sorrow the death of Sir John Thompson, and gratefully acknowledging his eminent services to the British empire, particularly in organizing the recent inter-colonial conference at Ottawa, it desires to convey its sympathy to his family, to the Conservative party, and to the Canadian people.

Lord Breadalbane said: "I accompanied Sir John Thompson to Windsor. At luncheon he suddenly fainted and was taken to the hospital. He died shortly after midnight. He was a great man, and his death was a great loss to the British empire. His memory will be long and brightly remembered."

He then begged me to return to my luncheon, but of course I would not hear of it, and therefore I remained with him until he had completely recovered, and arose to accompany me back to the luncheon room. I offered him my arm, but he walked unaided, cheerfully remarking: "I am all right now, thank you."

"In the meantime Dr. Reed, the queen's physician, whom I had sent for, arrived. Within two or three minutes of Sir John's return to luncheon, and I saw him suddenly lurch over and fall almost into Dr. Reed's arms.

"At the doctor's request all the ladies left the room and the doctor and I, with some of the servants, alone remained. We did all we could, but I saw he was beyond earthly help.

"Dr. Reed held the same view, and it was happily proved to be but too true. The cause of his death was undoubtedly sudden failure of the heart's action."

Sir Charles Tupper also gave the following particulars of the death of the Canadian prime minister: "When Sir John was in Italy lately he had some difficulty in breathing and was completely unable to walk. He was taken to the hospital, and I advised him not to go to yesterday's evening meeting of the privy council. I knew he was ailing. However, Sir John said that he felt pretty well and I arranged to call at his hotel and drive him to the meeting. He was very weak, but he made only a short speech and not to excite himself. You know how he spoke. Well, at his hotel, I drove him to the castle, and he was there at 10 o'clock in good spirits. On arrival here, Sir Charles Tupper continued, he was taken to the hospital, and he died shortly after midnight. Sir John Thompson as a member of the privy council, several persons re-

Pond's Extract cures CUTS, BURNS, CATARRH, SORE THROAT and ALL PAIN.

BEWARE OF SUBSTITUTES, WHICH DO NOT CURE. AN INTEREST IN A GENUINE

GOLD MINE TEMPORARILY FOR SALE.

Victor Consolidated Gold Mining Co., Of Cripple Creek, Denver and Colorado Springs, State of Colorado.

THE VICTOR CONSOLIDATED GOLD MINING COMPANY.

INCORPORATED UNDER THE LAWS OF THE STATE OF COLORADO.

THE GLOBES GREAT OFFER: Life-Size Crayon Portraits $1.75.

JOIN THE CROWD TAKING ADVANTAGE OF THE GLOBES GREAT OFFER.

THIS COUPON TOGETHER WITH $1.75 WILL PAY FOR A Life-Size Portrait!

THE ST. PAUL GLOBE.

THE WORLD'S SWEETEST SONGS.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

SKINS ON FIRE.