Hood's Sarsaparilla

This is proven beyond doubt by the thousands of wonderful cures accomplished by this medicine. We rest our case not upon what we say, but upon what the people say about Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier. Weak, tired, nervous men and women tell of new strength and vigor, and steady nerves given by Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier. Sufferers from dreadful Scrofula sores, salt rheum, and the severest forms of other blood diseases rejoice in cures by purified blood, accomplished by Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier. The testimonials we publish are not purchased, nor are they from our employees, nor are they written up in our office. Every one is strictly reliable, and as worthy your confidence as if it came from your most trusted neighbor. Such a testimonial as this no other medicine can produce. It is one of thousands possessed by Hood's Sarsaparilla, and proves the merit of this medicine. Reliable, honest, industrious, is what all say of Mr. Bennett. TO THE HIGH COURT

The St. Paul & Duluth Railroad Appeals on a Writ of Error

FROM THE STATE LAW

Which Requires All Passenger Trains to Stop at County Seats.

ITS UNCONSTITUTIONALITY

Is the Basis of the Appeal—Attorney-General Childs Notified.

The St. Paul & Duluth railroad has appealed to the United States supreme court, on a writ of error, in the case of its engineer, who was fined for failing to stop his train at Pine City, the county seat of Pine county, last July, in accordance with the law passed by the state legislature requiring all passenger trains on all roads to stop at all county seats. Attorney General Childs was served with the papers in the case yesterday afternoon, and notified to appear in Washington on Oct. 2, 1895, in order to make a test case at all county seats. This case ought to be well remembered by the readers of the GLOBE. Certain trains of the Duluth road had not been in the habit of stopping at Pine City, and James Thomas, in order to make a test case, determined the constitutionality of the law, bought a ticket from Rush City to Pine City, well knowing that the train had not stopped at Pine City in years. The train on which Thomas took passage did not stop at Pine City. The case was carried through to Hinckley. Thereupon he swore out a warrant for Morris S. Gladson, the engineer of the train, and on the return trip Gladson was arrested and jailed. He was taken before Judge Hogan, a justice of the peace in Pine City, and fined $25 for not stopping his train, the fine being imposed in accordance with the state law. The case was appealed and the constitutionality of the law passed upon and the law declared good. While the amount involved is trifling, the case is of great importance, and that chapter 60, Laws of Minnesota of 1893, which requires that all passenger trains shall stop at county seats, violates the clause of the United States constitution which confers upon congress the power to regulate commerce between states. The appeal to the highest court in the land is made in the name of Engineer Gladson, but, of course, is really the appeal of the Duluth road. While the amount involved is trifling, the principle is of vital importance and interest to the Duluth, as well as all other roads in the state of Minnesota, and the case will be fought out to the end.

CLOSED THEM UP.

Chief Clerk Takes a Rap at Fake Cigar Stores.

The alleged cigar stores located on Eighth street, between Robert and Jackson streets, were closed by the police. Chief Clerk issued the order yesterday. These stores have caused the police much trouble. While ostensibly a retail tobacco and cigar business, they were, in fact, houses of ill fame on a small scale. The police also suspected of drugs and thieves, who have blackmailed many a victim out of his money.

PEGELSON FINED

For Failing to Report Possession of Milton Griggs' Benny.

Pegelson, the pawnbroker, was fined $25 in the police court yesterday for failing to report a report of possession of Milton Griggs' Benny. The overcoat pledged with him. The overcoat in question was stolen from M. C. Griggs a few weeks ago. It was an overcoat of Charles W. Thompson in Pegelson's pawnshop, but the latter made no report of it, as required by the ordinance. It was subsequently found in his store, however, though he had previously denied that he had the coat. Mr. Pegelson paid his fine.

To Quiet Title.

Carrie T. Umphenour yesterday filed a petition in the district court for an order declaring her guardian ad litem, Frank C. Cunningham, a minor, for the purpose of bringing an action to quiet title to some real estate left by his mother at her death, and Scott, who is only seventeen years of age, claims an interest. She also files a petition to have this claim of Thomas set aside.

Thompson Loses.

The jury in the libel suit of Tindale Palmer against George Thompson, of the St. Paul Dispatch, yesterday returned a verdict for $50 in favor of the plaintiff. This is merely nominal, and will hardly pay the expenses of the plaintiff bringing the suit. The suit was for $50,000.

Over the Road.

Judge Kelly yesterday passed sentence on Martin McHugh and John E. Scott, the two convicted of grand larceny a few days ago for stealing goods from the residence of W. J. Scott, which they burglarized some time ago. McHugh was sent to the penitentiary, on the reform plan, and Scott, who is only seventeen years of age, was sentenced to the reformatory.

Split the Reward.

Judge Bell yesterday made an order in the matter of the application of Louis Rondo, E. T. Williams and Clarence Thompson for the reward provided by the law for the capture and conviction of Fred Delano, the horse thief. The order is that Rondo have $50, Williams $25 and Thompson $25.

NORTON THE ROGUE

A Swindling Book Agent in Town Is Reaping a Harvest

WITH INNOCENT WOMEN

Through the Medium of a Biography of the "Little Corporal"

AND EMPRESS JOSEPHINE

He Collects $2 Down, and the Biographies Never Show Up.

There is a swindler abroad in St. Paul who has been reaping quite a harvest during the past ten days. He calls himself W. S. Norton and pretends to represent a Chicago book concern, which is issuing a series of pictures illustrating the vivid colors, the life of Napoleon Bonaparte. Mr. Norton is, of course, a most plausible individual. His manner is gentle and ingratiating, his voice persuasive, and his speech voluble. He is about thirty-five years of age, rather under-sized, and has a sandy complexion, with bright, keen, laughing eyes. He dresses in somber black, but his clothes are stylishly cut. He wears no jewelry save a small diamond bracelet on his left wrist.

TWO SIDES TO A TALE.

COURT REPORTER HILLMAN DISCHARGES THREE MEN.

They Kicked Because He Was Making Entirely Too Much Money.

There was trouble in the office of Official Court Reporter Hillman yesterday, and as a consequence, Robert S. Taylor, William Higgins and Walter Taylor, three young men who stand in high favor with all who have engaged in the stenographic and court stenographers, were released, and are now out of jobs. Like all cases of the kind, there are two sides to the circumstances that culminated in the discharge of these men.

The employees' side is that Hillman is given a salary of $10,000 a year, and all the fees for making transcripts and doing other extra work in addition. These fees, they claim, amount to upwards of half his salary, making the receipts of his office from $15,000 to $16,000 a year. Work has to be done for all his help. But this, they claim, takes but a comparatively small part of his income, leaving him a profit entirely out of proportion to the amount of work he does, as compared with the employees, who frequently have to work until 10 or 11 o'clock every night, and do the same amount of work for which he gets paid.

"The employees have been agitating for a change in the system, so that they might have a divvy out of these fees, but Mr. Hillman could not see it that way. In his tone that completely disarms all suspicion. If Mrs. — is in, Mr. Norton sees her, principally because his behavior arouses curiosity. As soon as he finds himself in the presence of the lady of the house, whose name he has learned by consulting the directory, Mr. Norton draws from beneath his overcoat a roll of what looks to be velvet. Untying it causes it to unroll, and there is revealed to the gaze of the lady of the house a picture of a woman in a long, flowing dress, representing an imaginary scene between Napoleon and his ill-fated Josephine. The picture is really very striking, and the likenesses of the "Little Corporal" and the empress are splendid, so far as this age can judge. Mr. Norton, well knowing what a fad the study of Napoleon Bonaparte's life has become this season, reminds the lady of the revival of interest in and incidentally touches her social pride by mentioning the names of prominent society leaders in St. Paul and other cities who have taken up the study of the only conqueror Alexander the Great and Julius Caesar. Then Mr. Norton talks a little business. His firm will issue two dozen of these gorgeous illuminated plates, and they will be accompanied by a graphic biography of Napoleon. The price of the twenty-four pictures will be $30, and the biography will be thrown in. The pictures will be sent to the subscriber at the rate of six a week.

If Mr. Norton succeeds in inducing the lady to buy, and his record shows that he has rarely failed, he collects $2 from her on account, signs a contract to deliver all the pictures within four weeks from date, leaves the contract with her, and takes her order for the goods, as well as the $2. He explains that his firm requires the money to collect the $2 in advance as a guarantee of the subscriber's good faith. If Mr. Norton were not so exceedingly smooth and plausible, so entertaining and refined in manner and speech, he might find a difficulty in securing the money, but as it is, his well-assumed enthusiasm disarms suspicion.

It is hardly necessary to add that the "lady of the house" never receives any pictures of Napoleon, or any other thing. There is no Chicago firm such as Mr. Norton represents. It is even doubtful if Mr. Norton is really Mr. Norton. But the numerous $2 installments he has collected are not unreal, as those who parted with them can testify.

Norton has been reported to the police by some of his dupes, and the chances are that if he continues his work he may be caught.
