Organize Their Passenger Association.

TRANSCONTINENTAL LINES

Threaten to Organize Independently if Some Agreement Is Not Reached.

AN OPEN WAR IN RATES

Between the Missouri and Chicago Will Result if Such Move Is Made.

CHICAGO, April 4.—The Western lines are about to make another effort to put their passenger association into effect. For the last five weeks absolutely nothing has been done, and as the rates in some portions of the asalized it is a case of necessity to have the association in working order. It is possible that if the Western lines do not get together in a short time that the transcontinental lines may call a meeting to consider the advisability of forming an association of their which shall be entirely independent of the Western lines. No steps towards organizing such an association have been taken, nor are any likely to be taken in the immediate future, but the disposition of the transcontinental lines to form an association will prod the Western lines into action. The main obstacle in the Western lines at present is the squabble between the Alton and Wabash roads over the East St. Louis rates. It is likely that eting of the Western lines will be called next week, and if no action is taken then the transcontinental lines may try their hands at forming an ciation of their own. There is much dissatisfaction expressed over the condition of passenger rates be-tween Chicago and the Missouri river. Much demoralization is said to exist at Kansas City, and there is bitter feeling all around among the lines interested. It is predicted freely that if Western lines do not form their association and the transcontinental lines form theirs, that an open war in rates between the Missouri river and Chicago will result. The situation is bad now, and will soon be much worse if the Western association is not speedily put upon its feet.

meeting of the division committee of the emigrant clearing house of the Western lines was held today, and arguments were made by the different roads on the subject of a proposed redivision of the emigrant business. A new division has become necessary on account of the opening of the Billings and one or two other changes which have taken place. No action of any kind was taken today, the orators consuming the entire session.

NOW FOR DEVELOPMENTS.

The Noble Defendant Promises Some Astounding Revelations.

LONDON, April 4. - There wa inabated interest today at the Old Bailey in the taking of testimony on the second day of the trial of the suit for libel brought by Oscar Wilde against the Marquis of Robert Fitzgerald has been received Queensberry. The audience was at the prison from Crow Wing county largely composed of lawvers and reporters. There were few notable persons present. The plaintiff arrived in court at an early hour, and took his seat at the table reserved for the solicitors. The Marquis of utes later, looking jaunty and confident. place on the witness stand, admitted that he had attended tea parties in the rooms of a man named Taylor, which were artistically furnished, and in which perfumes were burning. He denied, however that he had seen Taylor in woman's costume. Further questions on the part of Mr. Carson, counsel for the Marquis of Queens berry, brought forth the admission that Taylor introduced to Wilde five youths to whom Wilde gave money, and took them to a restaurant. Th plaintiff admitted that he was not aware that one of them was a valet and another a coachman, or that of W. L. Chambers, United States land Taylor had been arrested in a raid on house in Fitzroy square. Wilde, in his answers to the questions put to him, exhibited confusion, and contradicted himself frequently. He LOST HIS TEMPER. Mr. Carson's questions were, in the main, pitiless and unprintable. Mr. Carson's cross-examination of the plaintiff was concluded at noon, after having lasted, including the time of yesterday, over six hours. Sir Edward Clarke, leading counsel for Wilde, then began the examination of his client by putting in certain letters of the Marquis of Queensberry, in which he called upon his son, Lord Alfred Douglas, to cease his "infamous intimacy" with the plaintiff, saying that his "blood turned cold at the sight of their infamous faces." He added: "I hear that Wilde's wife will petition for a divorce on the ground of unnatural crimes. If you do not cease to let him disgrace us, I shall feel justified in shooting him on sight." To this letter Lord Alfred Douglas replied by telegraph to his father. saying: "What a funny little man

Most of the newspapers are printing the testimony in the suit almost verbatim, but the character of the estimony is such today that the St. James Gazette says: "The nature of the evidence and the whole circumstances of the case prove to be of such a character that we cannot report it." The Gazette adds: "The English public is at the present moment involved in one of those

After the noon recess the crowd in the court room was larger than ever, and the hall and stairs leading to it were filled ten deep with well-dressed men, who were awaiting a chance to enter. The Marquis of Queensberry lunched with several of his friends, and the sympathy of all in court seemed to be with him. Wilde kept the court waiting ten minutes, for which he apologized to Justice Collins, saying that he had been consulting his loctor. After the production of other letters, the case for the plaintiff was closed, and Mr. Carson began his speech for the defense. It was ter-

Lord Alfred Douglas was present in court for a short time during the morning, but he did not return in the afternoon. The speech of Mr. Carson for the defendant lasted until court adjourned at 5 p. m., and was not finished at that hour. He reviewed the evidence, denounced Wilde and said that the witnesses he would produce would prove to the jury beyond any doubt the guilt of the plaintiff. During the course of his remarks, Mr. Carson alluded in complimentary terms to the course of Beerbohm Tree in forwarding to the plaintiff a copy of the anonyactor, whereupon Justice Collins said: "There is no occasion to mention the name of Beerbohm Tree." Mr. Carson in reply remarked:

"Nor should I do so, my lord, had it not been that I received a cable message from him today asking that his connection with the case be fully explained." "Every one understands that Mr. Tree's connection with the case is in every way honorable and praiseworthy," said the justice, in conclusion.

Wilde returned to the court room for a few minutes before the adjournment. Among the letters pro duced in court and addressed by the Marquis of Queensberry to his son, Lord Alfred Douglas, was one saying that Wilde was a cur and coward of the Rosebery type.

WASHINGTON, April 4.- The report ommissioner to Samoa, dated Feb. 5, 1895, was made public today. Mr. Chambers was one of three commissioners appointed by the treaty powers of Great Britain, Germany and the United States under the provisions o the Berlin treaty to adjust and settle all claims by aliens to lands in Samoa. The final meeting of the commission was held Dec. 5, 1894, at Apia,. and its reports were turned over to the chief justice of Samoa as required by the treaty and are now in his custody. These reports include all the title papers to Samoan lands and are of considerable value. They give in detail the history of each of the 3,942 claims investigated. In view of these facts Mr. Chambers ports, which have already cost the three governments many thousands of dollars and involve the rights to property said to be worth many millions, should be published. He says he feels honored by the indorsement given this proposal by the United States and cannot understand why it has received so not at all in keeping with the standard little consideration on the part of the other positions propounded. But not understand why it has received so Great Britain, as the subjects of each of these governments in Samoa largely

OUTNUMBER AMERICANS, while their properties are many times other during the sessions of the conbe put into permanent form for preservation for about $10,000. An exhibit attached to the report shows that the total number of claims filed before the commission was 3,942. Of these 1,422 were German, 1,572 British, 307 Amercan, 326 French and 130 miscellaneous. The total claims aggregated 1,691,892 acres, while the island only contains 950,000 acres. Only 8 per cent of the claims were confirmed. The board claims amounted to 1,250,270 acres, owing to the fact that one man under a large number of deeds, claimed practically the island of Savii, which contains nearly half the acreage of the entire country. This same man also held large claims in other islands, but all except about 15,000 acres of his claims were rejected. The vast bulk of acreage claimed by Americans was also rejected because of the manifestly inadequate consideration given for it, and because the titles were defective under several of the provisions of the treaty. About 21,000 acres were confirmed to Americans, Most of them belonged to a corporation composed of San Francisco stockholders.

"At the time the investigation took place," says Mr. Chambers, "this cor-poration was insolvent, and is still reported insolvent. The titles were con firmed to certain trustees. None of the stockholders resided in Samoa, and so far as my investigation of the matter went, none of them had ever re-sided there; nor has the company nor its trustees an agent in the country. Deducting the land confirmed to this company, I think it a safe estimate that not exceeding 2,000 acres were confirmed to all other American claim ants. The land of this San Francisco company is known to be for sale, and more liable to be sold, if at all, to English or German subjects than to ducement there may be for English or German investment in Samoan land, I cannot see that there exists any reason for further American investments.'

Continuing, Mr. Chambers says he heard of only nineteen bona fide AMERICAN SUBJECTS in the country exclusive of officials and does not believe there are thirty Americans there all told, including the plaintiff a copy of the anony-mous letter handed to the English naturalization. He says there are several well-to-do Americans, engaged principally in mercantile pursuits, on of whom is the wealthiest man in the country. Some of these are married to native women, and probably will never return to the United States for that
