WHIZZING WHEELS.

They Were Turning for a Long Time in C. Reed Dewey's Brain.

THE STRAIN WAS TOO MUCH.

Peculiar Love-Lorn Bent of Mind Resulted From the Whirl.

PESTERED A YOUNG LADY

Who Never Spoke to Him, and Now He IsGoing to an Asylum.

C. Reed Dewey, an architect who had an office in the Manhattan block, has a set of wheels in his head that double discounts the clock-work in the cranium of the worst type of religious crank or love-sick swain, for Dewey combines both, and to such an extent that he was yesterday adjudged incourt, and was ordered committed to entrance. the asylum at Rochester. The case is an interesting one on account of the fact that one of the leading families of the city has been compelled to have Dewey arrested. For three years, past Dewey has been making love to a young lady in this family against her will, and his attentions finally became so annoying that there was no alternative but to have him arrested. She was a Sunday school teacher in a certain church attended by Dewey, and, though he had never been introduced to her, never talked with her or been given any reason to think that she knew or cared anything at all about him, he began writing letters to her, and continued to do so ever since, besides annoying her in into court. He also had written A BOX FULL OF LETTERS that he never mailed. Drs. Riggs and Sweeney were the jurors in the case, and after the statements regarding Dewey's conduct were made by the father of the girl and other friends Dewey took the stand and was told to go ahead and mak; his statement. He went on, and, in an apparently honest manner, gave the whole story, or, at least as much of it as was necessary to enable the doctors to judge as to his mental soundness. He confessed that he had continued to pay his addresses to the young lady, though he never had any reason to think she would be likely to reciprocate. In fact, the difference in their social positions was so great that he could not expect it.

The first time he ever noticed her of letters written by him was brought was when she moved up the aisle in church to her seat. He was in the gallery, and her charming personal appearance, and easy, graceful movements were too much for him. He was mpressed on the spot. About a month later he approached her while she was standing talking to some one in the church at Sunday school. "As I came close, she gave me a look that sank into my very soul," said Dewey, "and my will gave way. I completely lost all control of myself, though I did not know who she was. I was religious, religious. I had never thought of getting married, for my position in life had not yet seemed to warrant it. But when began to pray for a wife. I thought that young lady was just the woman I wanted. I believed God would send me anything I prayed for." Here Mr. Dewey put his hand before eyes and sat for almost a minute without saying a word. "Excuse me." he finally said, and then put his hand up again and sat for another spell, as if to collect his thoughts, or offer up a 'Did you ever have any vision?" was

Miners Intend to Stop Work in PITTSBURG, Pa., May 9.-President Cairnes, of the miners in this district, announced today that he would probably call out all the miners in the Pitts-burg district inside of a week. He included in this all the mines now paying the union price. He proposes have the miners' camp around the mines of the New York & Cleveland company, at Plum Creek, and those of the Pittsburg & Chicago company at Snowden and Finleyville. Mr. Cairnes said: "An agreement has been en-tered into with the Illinois operators to establish an equitable mining scale all over the country. The Illinois minvarious other ways. A whole stack ers have been granted the 69-cent rate, with the check-off system, whereby the miners will in reality only receive 60 cents, and the nine cents will be paid to the miners in this district to carry on the strike. It has become a mat-ter of national importance to stop the work in the Plum Creek and Snow en mines. They are the stumbling blocks to a settlement everywhere. We expect to establish a fair rate of wages, and the Illinois operators hope to get control of the lake trade by this mo With the money we get from the Illinois miners we expect to establish camps about the Plum Creek and Snowden mines, so that the non-unio camps in order to go to work, and we can win them over. There will be about 5,000 men in each camp."

TO BE AVOIDED IN FUTURE.

Ten-Dollar Rate From Denver to Missouri River Points Expires May 19.

CHICAGO, May 9 .- A meeting of the Western lines was held today, and steps were taken to prevent the demoralization which has been creeping into the rates ever since the inauguration of the homeseekers' excursions. The present East-bound rate of $10 from Denver to the Missouri river expires by limitation on May 19. It was decided that all other cut rates, whether made because of the homeseekers' excursions or because of the Denver-Missouri river rate, should be dropped on that day. No further cut rates will be allowed, and steps will be taken to prevent any reduction in the regular tariff through the business of the two additional excursions, which are yet to be run. Before the meeting convened there was some fear that the Union Pacific would not abandon its intention of making the $10 rate from Omaha to Denver, as well as from Denver to Omaha. The Union Pacific, however, showed that it had no intention of demoralizing rates, and it moreover made out a very strong case, in backing up its assertion that the cut in the East-bound rate between Denver and the Missouri river was due more to the fine work of some competitors of the Union Pacific than to anything done by that line before It agreed entirely with the resolutions, providing that the markets should be cleared and all manipulations stopped on May 19.

WHO IS LIABLE.

Chicago Terminal Operations

Furnish a Dispute. MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 9. - The culminating point in the triangular dispute between the receivers of the Northern Pacific, Chicago & Northern Pacific and Wisconsin Central over the liability incurred in the operation of the Chicago terminals came today, when George P. Miller, acting for the Northern Pacific receivers, filed separate objections to sixty-one claims growing out of the operation of the terminal property. The amount involved is but slightly over $60,000 but in the litigation following, in the proying of the claims, the question as to who shall pay the amount, together with other large sums involved, and the main question in dispute will be settled. There is no contention as to the validity of the claims against the companies, the question being, and it is a big one, just who is liable. In several cases objection is made as to the exact amount of the claim, but the differences are not material.

FIRING IT.

A Lesson in Pistols Given to a Mar

From Boston. New York Sun. "Coming East over the Atchison road from Las Vegas, N. M., to Kansas City," said J. F. Rankine, of Elizabeth, N. J., "our train was detained west of Dodge City two days by a washout. There was a crowd of the roughest sort aboard, some of them cattle men from the ranges, and others railroad men returning from the construction work of a railroad just completed. It was a hungry time, for there was nothing to eat, but there was plenty of beer and liquor aboard, and the passengers in the intervals of drinking amused themselves with cards and betting and by firing pistols from the car windows at the tele

"In one seat near a window sat a very young and innocent man from Boston, one of the many from that locality sent out to points along the line of the Achison road by the favor of the management to grow up with the country. He had come to the conclusion that the Back Bay and Cambridge were Western enough for his tastes, and he was on his way East. Beside him sat a stranger, a big ranchman, wearing a black som brero. Inspired by the example of some men who were firing from the car windows, the Bostonian took from his bag a pistol that must have been a gift of a doting female relative. It was an elegant little pearl-handled affair, its tiny barrel beautifully chased and ornamented. It looked more fit to be hung on a watch guard than to use as a weapon, but the owner, in imitation of the others, blazed away with it at a certain telegraph pole, with about the noise and effect that a firecracker would have produced.

"The ranchman beside him looked with surprise and then with a grim amusement at the Boston man's shooting, and, for the first time, seemed to take an interest in what his seat mate was doing. "'Let me look at that thing, stranger," he said.

"The Eostonian passed the pistol to nim with an expression of satisfac-tion on his face, as much as to say: 'This is rather a neat thing, don't you know, and I'm in the shooting as well as the others.' The ranchman handled the wee weapon with an affectation of admiring awe and ex ardired it with grave curiosity. "It's a great firearm and no mis-take," he pronounced. 'If 'twas rine, would you like to know how I d fire "The Bostonian looked pleased and nodded. The ranchman drew his own pistol, an immense long-barreled af fair which looked as if it ought to be mounted on a gun carriage. Calmly h stuck the barrel of the small pistol its capacious muzzle, thrusting the big weapon through the open window took a deliberate shot at the telegraph pole. The butt and barrel of the little pistol flew two ways as it struck the telegraph poie in the center, while the big bullet behind sent splinters flying as it plowed through the timber.

"Upon this worse than contemptuous treatment of his property the Rostonian looked with consternation at first was indignant. But he had some tact and a sense of humor de spite his nativity, and there being nothing better to do, he soon joined in with the others in the laugh that was raised. His big neighbor passed him a peace offering in the shape of a flask approaching an army canteen in size, the Bostonian pulled manfully at it and for the rest of the trip the two were most friendly companions. The ranchman took the tenderfoot under his protection, and would suffer no one to impose on him. A grand rush followed our arrival at the railroad dining station, where, after our two days' fasting, a meal for fifty persons was served to the 150 famished passengers. It was grab, everybody, and the big man loomed above the crowd as he strode, holding aloft a whole boiled ham in one hand and a loaf of bread in the other, back to the car to join his friends from Bos-
