KNIGHTS AT PLAY.

THEIR FAMILIES AND FRIENDS PICNIC AT WHITE BEAR LAKE,

AND HAVE A ROYAL TIME.

THEY PLAY AN ALLEGED GAME OF BALL, AND HAVE PLEN-TY OF OTHER FUN.

WHOLE DAY IS GIVEN TO IT.

Knights Are Present From St. Paul, Minneapolis, Stillwater and Elsewhere.

Several thousand people from St. Paul, Minneapolis and Stillwater participated in the Knights of Pythias union picnic at White Bear lake yesterday. The attendance was not as large as had been expected, owing, no doubt, to the number of other attractions, particularly the cops' base ball game and Hibernians' picnic. A splendid programme of sports was presented, including a base ball game that would have done credit to Manager Comiskey's aggregation. The day was pleasantly spent, those who did not care to witness the sports, indulge in a r-r-r-s-s-s-s down the toboggan slide or to throw eggs at a "colo'ed pusson" at the rate of three for 10c, having an opportunity to pass the time dancing. There was only two contestants in the bicycle race from here to White Bear. This was on account of the rain the night before making the road so heavy that but few of the cyclers cared to put forth the exertion required to plow through the But Charles Maralius and P. McArthur were not to be balked by a little mud, and at the hour set for starting, both reported for duty at the East St. Paul station. A large crowd had gathered to see them off. Doc Whitcomb, who was starter, and a friend who went out to take care of his remains in case-However, Doc got them away with a good start and plenty of mud, and they still had the mud when they reached Ramaley's pavilion at Lake Shore forty-five minutes later, Maralius in the lead. The run has been made in thirty-five minutes, so it is evident that the road was in bad condition. But the gem of the day was the base ball game between nine knights from the St. Paul and nine from the Minneapolis lodges. Laconically, the story is told as follows: Game, two innings; score, St. Paul 22, Minneapolis 5; errors, St. Paul 15, Minneapolis 102; time of game, 2:091/2. For the benefit of the future historian, the story is extended so as to include the names of the men who composed the teams. They are as follows: St. Paul-Claytor, Fremming, Jim Brandt, R. Malone, Jack Sheridan, J. J. Holly, Dr. Whitcomb, A. G. Johnson and A. F. Hunt. Minneapolis-McMahon, Stahl, Wilson, Grindall, Hayes, Fournie, Murphy. Fleichinger and Waskuwich. It may be added that while the game was in progress every man in each team played every position, and it was the unanimous verdict of the rooters that he was just as good in one as in the other. The game would have lasted longer and the score have been larger had there been a different umpire, but just think—a man from Stillwater filled that honorable position. There were some lively athletic contests. The following is the result of the athletic contests:

TWO OPINIONS GIVEN.

Attorney General Childs Renders Them on Special Subjects.

Attorney General Childs delivered resterday morning to Gov. Clough the following opinion defining the state aw relating to the business of storage companies: law relating to the business of storage companies:

I beg to acknowledge receipt of your communication of the 12th inst., enclosing the letter of a certain corporation, in which it is asked, in substance, whether companies operating under the provisions of General Laws, 1895 (No. 50, Pop. Ed.), are authorized to do business under the provisions of General Laws 1885, chapter 202.

The legislation upon the subject of storage companies has become somewhat invoived by reason of the passage of the said act of 1895. It is evident that the legislature intended to preserve the law of 1885, as it is not only expressly referred to in the later law above cited, but was also amended at the same session in which that law was passed. (G. L. 1895, No. 173.)

The legislature must be deemed to have narrowed the scope of the application of the law of 1885 to the extent that it now applies only to railroads or transportation companies holding goods in cars, freight houses or warehouses for a period not exceeding twenty days. All other transportation or storage companies, except those receiving grain in bulk, fall within the contemplation of the law of 1895.

While this seems the most rational view to take of the law, it does not perfectly harmonize all of the various provisions.

It is expressiv provided that when a ransportation company transfers It is expressly provided that when a transportation company transfers goods to a storage company and collects therefrom its proper charges, the latter shall have a lien upon the goods enforceable under sections 1, 2, 3 and 4, of the law of 1885. To that extent at least, the earlier law still applies to such companies. It is to be observed that it is expressly provided in section 9, of the law of 1895, that "it shall be unlawful for any person, persons" or warehouseman in this state." All storage companies must therefore be brought under its provisions, and it follows that the only bond required will be the one therein provided, viz.: A bond of $5,000. Furthermore, replying to a suggestion of the inquiring company, the law recognizes no such classification as general and special warehousemen. A person or corporation engaged in storing one or more classes of merchandise for the public for hire, is a storage company within the meaning of the act of 1895.

He also gave County Auditor Nye, of Hennepin county, the following onin-

Herakes gave County Auditor Nye, of Hennepin county, the following opinion as to the intent of the legislature in those portions of the state game law that refer to "birds" and "dogs." It appears that the law has, by amendment, been rendered very obscure:

been misplaced. This is manifestly so when reference is had to the pre-existing law. Section 9 of the law of 1891 prohibited hunting "with hounds or dogs any elk, moose, deer, antelope, buck, doe or fawn at any time." But that section was radically amended in 1893 (chap. 124, sec. 7), so as to eliminate all reference to the animals originally named therein. Section 13 of the law of 1891 did not in terms refer to section 9, but when the act was revised in 1893 the first-named section was so amended as to read as at present. Generally, if not always, the terms "animals" and "birds" are contradistinguished in the statute. As illustrative of this see sections 8, 15, 23, 24, 25 and 27. Section 11 of the present game law is the section which refers to the animals mentioned in section 9 of the act of 1891. If, therefore, the prohibition against hunting with dogs is still in force, it must, in my opinion, be deemed to apply to section 11, rather than to section 9. The question is, however, of such a nature as to render it impossible to determine with the utmost confidence what construction will meet with the approval of the courts. Genovia Danneker, a German widow, aged sixty-six, crazed by liquor and la grippe, hung herself from the front porch of 1828 Carroll street early yesterday morning. This is the residence of John Peters, day janitor at the Prior avenue police station, who is a widower with four children, and who has employed Mrs. Danneker as housekeeper for the past six years. Since an attack of the grip two years ago the latter has often exhibited temporary signs of derangement, and for many months she has threatened to commit suicide. Of late she has grown very intemperate, so much so that Mr. Peters was forced to notify her that, unless she reformed, she could no longer retain her place. Yesterday she became much intoxicated, and repeated her threats of selfdestruction. Mr. Peters, therefore, sat up until 2 o'clock yesterday morning to watch her. At that hour she retired. Soon the children reported that she was sleeping quietly, and the rest of the household also went to rest.

important feature of Ringling Bros. World's Greatest Shows. Those who have attended the exhibitions of this great amusement enterprise in the past have always accorded to it the leading place among all others in this respect. In studying the popular taste Hingling Bros. have always been quick to appreciate the effect of melody upon great audiences, and they have never failed to meet public expectation in this regard. This season they conceived the idea of combining with their vast exhibition, a musical feature so grand, so greatly above anything of the kind ever before attempted, as to mark a distinct era in the annals of amusement. To do this it was necessary to secure the greatest bandmaster and the greatest of all band is offered to the public as a gratuitous feature in connection with an already stupendous amusement institution. This superb musical organization embraces sixty well known musicians, every one of whom is a capable soloist. It is under the personal direction of the greatest of all band-masters and virtuosos, Sig. A. Liberati. This famous director is a native of Italy, and won many of his signal triumphs in that land of art and poesy. In recent years he has established a reputation in the great cities of the United States such as no other maestro has ever succeeded in doing. Under his magic baton almost every great soloist now in this country, and many in Europe, have been proud to appear. No musical festival in America during the past decade has, been complete without the great Liberati. His remarkable power in blending to gether large numbers of musicans in a homogeneous organizati When Mr. Peters came down stairs yesterday at 5:30 a.m., his attention was attracted by a swinging shadow in the sunlight across the front porch. He opened the door. The shadow was cast by the white-robed. emaciated form of his old housekeeper, hanging lifeless from the roof of the porch. She was attired in her night dress. Her long, grey hair had blown in a tangled mass over her bosom and shoulders. Her hands were tightly clinched, with the nails almost piercing the palms. The eyes and mouth were widely opened, giving the haggard, wrinkled face an expression of fear and horror. The bare feet almost touched the floor. It was manifest that the old woman had arisen, gone to the stable, cut off a convenient length of small clothes line, and, returning, fastened the line to the roof of the porch. She had then contrived an effective slipknot, climbed the front railing, placed the rope around her neck and jumped off toward the house. The body was quite cold and stiff, and had been doubtless hanging for several hours. Mr. Peters cut the suicide down, and at once informed the Prior avenue station and the coroner. The latter inspected the remains two hours later. He decided that an inquest was not needed, suicide being self-evident. The body was sent to the undertaking establishment of Gothunz & Rock-stroh, on East Seventh street. Wendeln Danneker, the woman's husband, died nine years ago in Germany. The couple had never had any children. Three years later Mrs. Danneker came to this country and was at once engaged to take care of Mr. Peters' four children and household. Six weeks ago the old woman, having saved some money, went back to Germany. She was well received by her relatives there, but soon tired of the old home, and again arrived in St. Paul last Monday. At once she resumed her place at Mr. Peters'. Yesterday, in the father's absence, the semi-intoxicated nurse told the children that she was going to kill herself. She cried over the little ones, and gave to the eldest daughter her trunk, her few dresses, all her little knickknacks, and the $20 which remained of her savings. The girl was much affected, and sent a note to her father asking him to come back and watch her old nurse. The result has been stated.

Mrs. Danneker has no relatives in America, except a brother and sister living in Hennepin county. The money which she gave to the Peters child was expended yesterday in purchasing a coffin for the demented, yet affectionate, old creature, that she may be decently buried today.

The police believe that Hartley is most undesirable as a temporary resident of any city. It will be recalled that he was recently discharged in Minneapolis, whither he was taken from Baltimore by the Pinkerton agency. He was suspected of being one of the men by whom several banks in Minneapolis, as well as the Bank of Minnesota and the Germania bank, of St. Paul, were defrauded of large amounts some months ago. Some Saving to the State.

Auditor Dunn reports that he has again succeeded in saving some money for the state. The Oliver Mining company has been in the habit of rejecting a lot of mined ore which did not appear to be of a grade high enough to pay for shipping. The auditor has caused the president of the company to issue orders that all this rejected ore from state lands shall be accounted for in the royalty settlements.

A black dog, with a stump tail and a wicked lear in his eye, ran across the diamond and threw a shadow over Bill Erwin's vision yesterday afternoon at Aurora park. It was in the second inning of the base ball game between the St. Paul and Minneapolis policemen. The dog was imported from Minneapolis by an enthusiastic rooter, and his personal idiosyncrasies were relied on to hoodoo anything they reflected on. Consequently Umpire Erwin became afflicted with a strabismal trance, it is alleged, when the black dog's shadow crossed his path. In that inning the St. Paul peelers made eight runs, and went so hopelessly ahead that the thief-takers and peace-preservers from up the river never caught up. They never got within hailing distance even until the last inning, when the same black dog was chased across the diamond by James Nugenti Austin in motley garb. As he dodged from the far bleachers to the visiting players' bench he ran directly over the tender left foot of Officer Sweeney, the St. Paul pitcher. Right there the prize twirler's effectiveness ceased, and before they got tired hitting the ball the Mill City coppers had

BATTED OUT EIGHT RUNS and were in danger of making it anywhere from nine to twenty until Hagerty, for St. Paul, made a catch that caused even Capt. Rouleau to applaud. In the excitement that ensued, the Minneapolis athletes were hypnotized. They evidently thought that such a catch ought to retire any side, and so, in the language of Sergt. Jerry Sullivan "they blew the game and piped all hands to the wagons." This move left the score 29 to 28-and there it stands, two men out, all out, and the umpire gone to rest beneath the shady side of his big bouquet, presented by Capt. Rouleau at the opening of the uled for Today.

There was a large crowd at Lake Como yesterday afternoon to witness marvelous performances on a wire rope by Prof. Dugay. The performance, however, did not come off, owing to a failure to adjust a rope. The professor is the man who recently made the sensational walk across a rope stretched above the falls at Spokane, which was witnessed by 30,000 people. Prof. Dugay will give performances Monday and Tuesday. Among other things he will do will be the placing of a minature cook stove at the center of the wire and there cook and eat a meal prepared by himself. The wire rope—a one-sixteenth wire, by the way—will be stretched across one end of the lake, and the concluding performance will be the wheeling of a barrow over it. Today—afternoon and evening—there will be a rope performance given by Mons Casido. Casido comes to the city with a world-wide reputation as a rope-walker. It would seem as if there was nothing he could not accomplish on it, and at the close of a number of phenomenal exhibitions he is undercontract to turn a somersault. This is something thrilling, and has been described as "an unequaled feat."

Danz's band will give two concerts today, and this will conclude their engagement at the lake—probably for the season. Other first-class bands are expected before the season is closed.

Superintendent Smith, of the street railway company, has announced all the accommodations necessary for the large crowds that are usually drawn to Como Sunday. In view of the special attractions provided for the day, a larger attendance than usual is indicated.
