REUBEN LEFT HER. Mary E. Coffman's grounds for seeking divorce.

Mary E. Coffman has begun an action for divorce from her husband, Reuben, to whom she was married at Council Bluffs, Io., in 1878. She alleges that Reuben is a printer by trade, and earned good wages in this city ever since they came here, some ten years ago, but failed to provide for her support. On the contrary, she was compelled to keep roomers and boarders to provide for herself, and incidentally aid Reuben to get something to eat at times. She further alleges that she became possessed of some 320 acres of land in South Dakota, which she mortgaged for him, and finally lost it under foreclosure. She also mortgaged her household furniture, and has been struggling to pay up this indebtedness in addition to supporting herself. Notwithstanding all her self-sacrificing efforts, she has had to go to the city to get her good-bye, as usual, one morning after breakfast about a year ago and she has never seen Reuben since, though she is informed by the keeper of the proprietor of a paper at Marshalltown, Io. In addition to a decree of divorce, she asks for such other relief as the court may see fit to grant. Her husband is thirty-three years of age. They have no children.

TURNER HALL DEAL.

P. J. GLESEN HAS NOT PURCHASED THE PROPERTY AS REPORTED.

MAY FALL INTO HIS HANDS.

A MORTGAGE FALLS DUE WHICH WILL BE FORECLOSED.

THEN WILL COME A CHANGE.

If a Purchaser Cannot Be Found Extensive Improvements Will Be Made.

A Branch of the Society Formed in St. Paul.

In an interview yesterday afternoon R. D. A. Wade, the well-known Chicago architect, was asked by the Globe what he thought of the proposed deal for the Turner hall property.

"I am here in behalf of a number of your citizens to assist them in forming a branch of the Theosophical society in America," he said.

"Did we not have a society here?" "St. Paul has had an independent theosophical organization for some time," he said.

"The Theosophical society in America is an outgrowth of the theosophical movement which was inaugurated by Madame H. P. Blavatsky in New York city in 1875. The growth of the movement has been phenomenal and in the twenty years has established sub-sections and branches in every civilized portion of the globe. The headquarters of the organization was in Adyar, Madras, India. The movement outgrew its form; its officials were not in touch and complete sympathy with the Western needs and methods. Across the water, in many places, the first object of the society seemed to be the subservient to the other two, hence it was that the American society declared its authority at Boston, in April, 1887, and reorganized as the Theosophical Society of America."

"The objects of the American society are similar to the Indo-European organization. These are: First, to form a nucleus of a universal brotherhood without any distinction whatever, and second, to study ancient and modern religions, philosophies and sciences, and to demonstrate the importance of such studies, and third, to investigate the psychic powers latent in man."

"In America the prime object is to make the movement an ethical one, with a scientific basis. In other words to show the theosophic basis of ethics and the essential unity of man."

"How has the action of the Boston convention affected the movement?" "For the better. It is true that the portions of eleven branches in this country continued their connection with the Indo-European organization, and these local branches were not in sympathy with the American society, however, had one hundred and three branches scattered throughout the leading cities of the Union. The Western policy is proving successful and a new interest has been awakened in the movement."

"With what success are you meeting in St. Paul?" "On Monday last we formed the Unity branch of the Theosophical society in America. It has secured permanent quarters in room 27, Endicott Arcade building. Two closed meetings have been held for organization purposes, but these are the last closed meetings which will be held. It is the purpose of Unity branch to hold public meetings for the purpose of Sunday and Wednesday evenings at 8 p. m. On Sundays there will be a lecture given or a paper read, on some theosophical subject. On Wednesdays the branch will hold study meetings for the purpose of systematic study."

"Are these meetings free and when will they be held?" "Yes, all meetings are free. We propose to give our first public lecture at the Chicago club on Sunday evening next. I have accepted the invitation to deliver the first lecture, and my subject will be, 'Theosophy and the Theosophical Society in America.'"

Money deposited on or before Oct. 3rd at our State Savings Bank, Germania, 412-414 Wabasha street, entitled to 3 per cent. interest Jan. 1, '96.

COMMERCIAL CLUB. Special Class Applications to Be Received Until Oct. 15.

The boom to membership which the Commercial club has been enjoying has continued since the meeting of the board of directors Sept. 18, when 143 new names were added to the roll of membership. Oct. 15 was the date set for securing members in the special class, and yesterday evening thirty new applications were in, making 173 new applications for membership since Aug. 1. The original resolution passed by the board provided for the reception of applications in the special class from Aug. 1 to Nov. 1, but this was subsequently shortened to Oct. 1. But so many of the new members have applied for whom they desire to put in applications that there has been a general desire both among them and also many of the old members to extend the time for the special class beyond Oct. 1.

President Footner yesterday acceded to this sentiment and a special meeting of the board was held at which Dr. Shields, Horr, Pruden, McGill and Merrick were present and it was unanimously resolved to extend the time during which applications can be received in the special class until Oct. 15, with the expectation that by that time the membership can be raised to at least the 1,000 mark, making the representative commercial body one of the strongest organizations of its kind in the country.
