

BULLETIN OF THE ST. PAUL GLOBE.

Weather for Today— Fair and Warmer.

PAGE 1. Great Parade of Veterans. Welcome to the G. A. R.

PAGE 2. Parade of Firemen.

PAGE 3. Reception at Hotel Ryan. Campfires by the Seave. G. A. R. Election Gossip.

PAGE 4. Editorial. Prof. Laughlin's Sound Money Talk.

PAGE 5. Encampment Convention Today. Medal for Mr. and Mrs. Walker.

PAGE 6. Ladies Praise St. Paul Hospitality. Delegation of Ladies' Headquarters. Renovation of New York Dragoons. State Department Commanders.

PAGE 7. Saints' Feast on Hoosiers. Millers Take Third From Detroit. Gentry Gets a New Pacing Record.

PAGE 8. Banner Day at the State Fair.

PAGE 9. Sketch of W. R. C. Department.

PAGE 10. Work of Sound Money Convention. Organization to be Permanent. Text of Sound Money Platform.

PAGE 11. Minnesota's Soldiers' Home.

PAGE 12. Major Arabella.

PAGE 13. Hammond's Story of Transvald Raid.

PAGE 14. Minnesota's War Governor. Wisconsin's Heaviest Regiment.

PAGE 15. Bar Silver 66 Cents. Cash Wheat in Chicago 55 3-8c. Stocks Strong and Higher. Wants of the People.

PAGE 16. McDonough May Die. Work of the Hospital Corps.

EVENTS TODAY.

Metropolitan—Alabama, 8.15.

Grand—Woman in Black, 8.15.

University and Gravit—Pompeii, 8.

Wildwood—Free Vandeville Sports. Hamline—State Fair.

Camp Mason—Salute, 9.15.

Excelsior—Carriage Drive 9 a. m.

Hamline—National Guard 10.

Hamline—Review Nat'l Guard 10.15.

Auditorium—Opening Evening 10.45.

Capitol—Review Nat'l Guard 10.45.

Market Hall—Amateur 8.

West Side Opera—Lampire 8.

Ladies' Club—Reception 2 to 6.

MOVEMENT OF STEAMSHIPS.

NEW YORK—Arrived: Tonawanda, from Liverpool.

ROCHESTER—Arrived: Maasdam, New York, 8.15.

ST. THOMPSON—Arrived: Paris, New York, 8.15.

LIVERPOOL—Sailed: Britannia, New York, 8.15.

EMERALD—Sailed: Britannia, New York, 8.15.

As an indicator of national results, Mr. Bryan has no use for Vermont.

It is a pity Mr. Bryan cannot take Ben Thirman out of politics with him next November.

The dimensions of John P. Altgeld are taken at last. In a nutshell, he is for civil war and flat money.

Roswell P. Flower uses English pretty effectively sometimes. He characterized Bryan as a "demagogue and word juggler."

If Mr. Mark Antony Hanna thinks the people of this country love him, he has lots of time to get himself put up for some office.

Mr. Bryan says a bright thing occasionally, even if it isn't true. He says gold bugs are destroying more crops than army worms.

The Wisconsin bicycle thief is getting it rather severely. A man who stole a wheel at Marinette was sent to Waupun for a year.

One of the Chicago cable roads has put its conductors into white shirts. A distinct cheer was immediately thereafter heard on Laundry avenue.

The name of Grover Cleveland was enthusiastically cheered in the Indianapolis convention, whereupon the president resumed his fishing with increased vigor.

Scientists say that in a few years it will be extremely difficult to find a golden-haired woman. The red-headed girl and the white horse will, however, remain with us.

When Gen. Mason's aides on bicycles passed Summit and Third yesterday afternoon a horse ran away and into a telephone pole and broke his neck. Who knows but that this horse, heart-broken over its prospects, deliberately committed suicide?

UNDER THE FLAG THEY SAVED.

VETERANS OF THE REBELLION MARCH IN A PARADE OF PEACE.

TWENTY THOUSAND IN LINE.

CHEERED BY A GRATEFUL PEOPLE ALONG FLOWER STREWS PATHS.

OVATION TO COMMANDER WALKER.

Paceant Equal in Every Detail to Those of Former Encampments.

The day of days for the disarmed martial hosts of America.

The news of happiness for the old comrades in blue.

The one event of each twelve-month which tens of thousands of Union soldiers await with eager impatience—the annual parade of the Grand Army of the Republic of America.

It was the greatest event of the year, the richest pageant from a point of sentiment, ever seen on the streets of St. Paul. No one expected it to be marvellous for its military exhibition, or its martial aspect. It was in the wealth of sympathy and festivity which hovered over that great spectacle which enthused the 20,000 people who saw it, and caused them to break forth time and time again in loud acclamations of joy.

Long lines of brilliantly uniformed soldiers, with shining guns and brilliant accoutrements, marched in review, pleased the eye better, but the heart needs those dismounted and ragged lines, those halting steps, those tattered and dirty battle flags, those unpolished brass buttons aroused an enthusiasm which nothing else could have afforded.

Yet all the steps were not falling and feeble, nor all the uniforms ragged. In the ranks were dozens of Grand Army posts whose members still appear to be in the full vigor and strength of manhood. But the majority, the big majority of those thousands of patriots are fast succumbing to the battle of life, and hundreds who marched yesterday under the eyes of the nation, will never pass in review again until the archangels sound the clarion for the final assembling.

When the heart of the great American people is stirred, joy and gratitude knows no bounds. The people of the North are not a passionless race, and the heart is touched. Gratitude and love witness the faintest of their marching, and the nation's heart needed to stir the people than the spectacle of yesterday.

Thousands of those aged boys in blue had passed under the steadfast, soldier gaze of Abraham Lincoln, the eye of Sheridan, of Grant, of McClellan, of Sherman, and a host of other gallant generals. But then it was in the full memory of war, when marching was grim duty, and not pleasure, Sherman, or Grant, or Sheridan, was not a whit prouder of that resistless army, than was the smallest and most juvenile spectator of yesterday. The row of muskets were gone. The plume of the saber was not seen. But a truer patriotism, a keener gratitude, a deeper love of country were the weapons which carried the nation's attention to the marching yesterday.

It seemed as if everyone in the entire Northwest was in the city and standing on the line of march. Some place the estimate on the number of spectators at half a million, and perhaps this is no exaggeration. All of St. Paul was on hand. Half of Minneapolis was there, which alone makes over 300,000 people, and add to this the countless thousands who are within the gates of the Twin Cities from abroad. They climbed the tops of tall buildings. They filled every window, three or four deep. They sat on narrow ledges and cornices at the peril of their lives. They were lined twenty deep along the curb, and lined twenty deep on the top of the stairs. And to some of the highest grand stands about the city, and to some of the most elevated places of the city, they were seen the gray-haired army pass.

HOW THE PARADE FORMED.

Veterans Get Into Line Promptly and Without Confusion.

From early morning the old soldiers in Camp Mason and from points in other sections of the city were moving toward the rendezvous on St. Anthony hill. The promissiveness with which the veterans responded to the call at the appointed hour, the lines were almost entirely in place, awaiting the pleasure of the commander-in-chief and the officers of the day.

The only confusion was in the narrow streets of the point of assembly, was in a misunderstanding on the part of some of the veterans who thought they were to form in line in the order of the states from which they were mustered into service, instead of marching with veterans of the state in which they were now living.

The morning was beautiful. The sun, which had been obscured during the early hours, peeped through the clouds about the hour for the parade to move. A pleasant west breeze was blowing, and clouds were unnecessary. The change in temperature was very grateful after the cool weather of the previous days and nights.

So perfect were the arrangements that there was no hitch in the formation of the line, and the duty devolved on the officers to direct the march.

At 9 o'clock, most of the veterans were already formed in the places assigned. The line was organized by the superior drum major, who was assigned in the parade without instruction. Next came mounted horsemen from Pennsylvania, bearing banners, falling into place in the division with regard to rank or seniority. Within half an hour after the first post arrived the territory about the central point between Dayton avenues was crowded with veterans and spectators to the number of 75,000.

The crowds kept increasing in number until, when Commander Walker arrived at 10:30, there were fully 100,000 persons in the streets about the rendezvous. Nearly every state in the union was represented in the divisions, of which there were eleven as follows:

First Division—Capt. E. S. Bean, first aide-camp; Capt. H. Kuhl, second aide-camp.

Second Division—Capt. J. M. Appleton, first aide-camp; Capt. J. A. Green, second aide-camp.

Third Division—Capt. W. H. Hays, first aide-camp; Capt. J. M. Appleton, second aide-camp.

Fourth Division—Capt. J. M. Appleton, first aide-camp; Capt. J. A. Green, second aide-camp.

Fifth Division—Capt. J. M. Appleton, first aide-camp; Capt. J. A. Green, second aide-camp.

Sixth Division—Capt. J. M. Appleton, first aide-camp; Capt. J. A. Green, second aide-camp.

Seventh Division—Capt. J. M. Appleton, first aide-camp; Capt. J. A. Green, second aide-camp.

Eighth Division—Capt. J. M. Appleton, first aide-camp; Capt. J. A. Green, second aide-camp.

Ninth Division—Capt. J. M. Appleton, first aide-camp; Capt. J. A. Green, second aide-camp.

Tenth Division—Capt. J. M. Appleton, first aide-camp; Capt. J. A. Green, second aide-camp.

Eleventh Division—Capt. J. M. Appleton, first aide-camp; Capt. J. A. Green, second aide-camp.

The Wisconsin line stretched from Marshall and Western to the central point, and was the longest in the line of eight abreast. Two standard bearers bore eagles aloft, and the division was general that one of these was the original Old Abe, the flag of the state of Wisconsin, which followed the Wisconsin forces all through the war. This was not the case, however. The original Old Abe was the state banner at Madison, Wis., the orders being imperative not to remove him.

The Pennsylvanians brought up the rear of the division with the formation in line at St. Albans and Marshall streets.

Ohio and New York made up the second division. The feature of this division was the presence of the Ohio Blue Tickers, of Cincinnati, a famous Old organization.

The Third division, the New England states, and the New York, New Jersey, Virginia and North Carolina formed an Dayton, the right resting on Western. The New Englanders did not show up particularly strong, but this being considered no trouble in making the alignment.

The Fourth division, Maryland, Nebraska, Michigan, Iowa and Indiana were in roughly similar order, the states of Iowa and Michigan, with 1,000 men apiece.

Colorado, Wyoming, Kansas, Delaware, Missouri and Oregon constituted the Fifth division. Only the state of Missouri made a strong showing as to numbers, the other states being represented but only to the number of a few hundred.

The Sixth division, composed of the states of Kentucky, West Virginia, South Dakota, Washington, Alaska, Arkansas, New Mexico and Utah formed in the order named under the aid of camp Capt. C. R. Smith, on Laurel avenue. In the Seventh division were the remaining Southern states, Louisiana, Mississippi, Florida, Montana, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Indian Territory.

The great Department of Minnesota brought up the rear, this being considered an honorary position for the state, which showed up in line 5,000 strong.

The Minnesota men were late in arriving on the scene of action, the Eighth division not being expected to arrive until 12:30.

Commander Walker was met at the central point by the grand marshal, the sturgeon being that Minnesota is the taken places of Illinois, as is shown as the latter began to march.

The line of Minnesota posts stretched away beyond St. Albans street on the west and as far down as Summit on the east, most of the posts occupying places on Dayton avenue.

In point of appearance, the Minnesota veterans showed up well along side of their neighboring comrades, and they exhibited their generosity and good feeling by cheering the other states as they passed by on the way to the formation.

When Gen. Walker's horse was seen approaching, a cheer went up from the assembled veterans, who were waiting for the word to march. The commander-in-chief was accompanied by Albert Schaeffer and Capt. Jack Crawford, who acted as special aides. Also accompanying him were the personal staff and the council of administration riding in the rear.

The executive committee of the council of administration was as follows: C. L. Marburgh, Baltimore; H. W.

Downs, Massachusetts; John G. Taylor, Baltimore; T. W. Scott, Fairfield, Ill.; Erastus W. Jewett, Swanton, Vt.

Prior to the arrival of the commander-in-chief, Chief of Police Cass rode up and announced to Gen. Mason that the police arrangements were complete and that the march would start at 10:30.

A fresh horse was furnished the commander-in-chief, on arrival at Western avenue, and with the booming of a cannon, the parade was under way.

DETAILS OF THE PAGEANT.

Features That Excited Enthusiasm Among the Spectators.

The van of the parade, occupied by Chief Cass and Lieut. Rudy, with a platoon of mounted police, carried its responsibility as to the safety of the march.

The van of the parade, occupied by Chief Cass and Lieut. Rudy, with a platoon of mounted police, carried its responsibility as to the safety of the march.

The van of the parade, occupied by Chief Cass and Lieut. Rudy, with a platoon of mounted police, carried its responsibility as to the safety of the march.

The van of the parade, occupied by Chief Cass and Lieut. Rudy, with a platoon of mounted police, carried its responsibility as to the safety of the march.

The van of the parade, occupied by Chief Cass and Lieut. Rudy, with a platoon of mounted police, carried its responsibility as to the safety of the march.

The van of the parade, occupied by Chief Cass and Lieut. Rudy, with a platoon of mounted police, carried its responsibility as to the safety of the march.

The van of the parade, occupied by Chief Cass and Lieut. Rudy, with a platoon of mounted police, carried its responsibility as to the safety of the march.

The van of the parade, occupied by Chief Cass and Lieut. Rudy, with a platoon of mounted police, carried its responsibility as to the safety of the march.

The van of the parade, occupied by Chief Cass and Lieut. Rudy, with a platoon of mounted police, carried its responsibility as to the safety of the march.

The van of the parade, occupied by Chief Cass and Lieut. Rudy, with a platoon of mounted police, carried its responsibility as to the safety of the march.

The van of the parade, occupied by Chief Cass and Lieut. Rudy, with a platoon of mounted police, carried its responsibility as to the safety of the march.

The van of the parade, occupied by Chief Cass and Lieut. Rudy, with a platoon of mounted police, carried its responsibility as to the safety of the march.

The van of the parade, occupied by Chief Cass and Lieut. Rudy, with a platoon of mounted police, carried its responsibility as to the safety of the march.

The van of the parade, occupied by Chief Cass and Lieut. Rudy, with a platoon of mounted police, carried its responsibility as to the safety of the march.

The van of the parade, occupied by Chief Cass and Lieut. Rudy, with a platoon of mounted police, carried its responsibility as to the safety of the march.

The van of the parade, occupied by Chief Cass and Lieut. Rudy, with a platoon of mounted police, carried its responsibility as to the safety of the march.

The van of the parade, occupied by Chief Cass and Lieut. Rudy, with a platoon of mounted police, carried its responsibility as to the safety of the march.

The van of the parade, occupied by Chief Cass and Lieut. Rudy, with a platoon of mounted police, carried its responsibility as to the safety of the march.

The van of the parade, occupied by Chief Cass and Lieut. Rudy, with a platoon of mounted police, carried its responsibility as to the safety of the march.

The van of the parade, occupied by Chief Cass and Lieut. Rudy, with a platoon of mounted police, carried its responsibility as to the safety of the march.

The van of the parade, occupied by Chief Cass and Lieut. Rudy, with a platoon of mounted police, carried its responsibility as to the safety of the march.

The van of the parade, occupied by Chief Cass and Lieut. Rudy, with a platoon of mounted police, carried its responsibility as to the safety of the march.

The van of the parade, occupied by Chief Cass and Lieut. Rudy, with a platoon of mounted police, carried its responsibility as to the safety of the march.

The van of the parade, occupied by Chief Cass and Lieut. Rudy, with a platoon of mounted police, carried its responsibility as to the safety of the march.

The van of the parade, occupied by Chief Cass and Lieut. Rudy, with a platoon of mounted police, carried its responsibility as to the safety of the march.

The van of the parade, occupied by Chief Cass and Lieut. Rudy, with a platoon of mounted police, carried its responsibility as to the safety of the march.

The van of the parade, occupied by Chief Cass and Lieut. Rudy, with a platoon of mounted police, carried its responsibility as to the safety of the march.

The van of the parade, occupied by Chief Cass and Lieut. Rudy, with a platoon of mounted police, carried its responsibility as to the safety of the march.

The van of the parade, occupied by Chief Cass and Lieut. Rudy, with a platoon of mounted police, carried its responsibility as to the safety of the march.

The van of the parade, occupied by Chief Cass and Lieut. Rudy, with a platoon of mounted police, carried its responsibility as to the safety of the march.

The van of the parade, occupied by Chief Cass and Lieut. Rudy, with a platoon of mounted police, carried its responsibility as to the safety of the march.

The van of the parade, occupied by Chief Cass and Lieut. Rudy, with a platoon of mounted police, carried its responsibility as to the safety of the march.

The van of the parade, occupied by Chief Cass and Lieut. Rudy, with a platoon of mounted police, carried its responsibility as to the safety of the march.

The van of the parade, occupied by Chief Cass and Lieut. Rudy, with a platoon of mounted police, carried its responsibility as to the safety of the march.

The van of the parade, occupied by Chief Cass and Lieut. Rudy, with a platoon of mounted police, carried its responsibility as to the safety of the march.

The van of the parade, occupied by Chief Cass and Lieut. Rudy, with a platoon of mounted police, carried its responsibility as to the safety of the march.

The van of the parade, occupied by Chief Cass and Lieut. Rudy, with a platoon of mounted police, carried its responsibility as to the safety of the march.

The van of the parade, occupied by Chief Cass and Lieut. Rudy, with a platoon of mounted police, carried its responsibility as to the safety of the march.

The van of the parade, occupied by Chief Cass and Lieut. Rudy, with a platoon of mounted police, carried its responsibility as to the safety of the march.

officer clattered by the music of an advancing band, became a jolly and given a jolly welcome. North Dakota also carried the wheat and corn. The sister states to the west plainly showed their interest in the success of the Minnesota encampment and the department of North Dakota, and she was honored for the veterans who were parading on the line.

The North Dakota column Miss Duke attracted universal attention. Mounted on a handsome horse, with those fitting habit of the breed, she headed the department, an Amazon, who found favor with all. A banner stated she was the adopted daughter of the department of North Dakota, and she was honored for the veterans who were parading on the line.

After Louisiana came Mississippi, Florida, Montana, Texas, Idaho, Arizona, Georgia, Alabama, North Dakota, Oklahoma and Indian Territory.

The department of Minnesota closed the parade, comprising the eighth division, and the state did itself great honor. St. Paul and Minneapolis were as was to be expected, well represented, as was Duluth, but they formed only a small part of the long lines of veterans, who for nearly an hour in solid ranks, tramped by the reviewing stand. The state posts were headed by the department commander, who was followed by his staff, all mounted. After them, carried by many willing hands, were the various companies, which were followed by the other, and into which hundreds of thousands of veterans were cheering.

The third division of the parade yesterday, headed by the department commander, who was followed by his staff, all mounted. After them, carried by many willing hands, were the various companies, which were followed by the other, and into which hundreds of thousands of veterans were cheering.

The third division of the parade yesterday, headed by the department commander, who was followed by his staff, all mounted. After them, carried by many willing hands, were the various companies, which were followed by the other, and into which hundreds of thousands of veterans were cheering.

The third division of the parade yesterday, headed by the department commander, who was followed by his staff, all mounted. After them, carried by many willing hands, were the various companies, which were followed by the other, and into which hundreds of thousands of veterans were cheering.

The third division of the parade yesterday, headed by the department commander, who was followed by his staff, all mounted. After them, carried by many willing hands, were the various companies, which were followed by the other, and into which hundreds of thousands of veterans were cheering.

The third division of the parade yesterday, headed by the department commander, who was followed by his staff, all mounted. After them, carried by many willing hands, were the various companies, which were followed by the other, and into which hundreds of thousands of veterans were cheering.

The third division of the parade yesterday, headed by the department commander, who was followed by his staff, all mounted. After them, carried by many willing hands, were the various companies, which were followed by the other, and into which hundreds of thousands of veterans were cheering.

The third division of the parade yesterday, headed by the department commander, who was followed by his staff, all mounted. After them, carried by many willing hands, were the various companies, which were followed by the other, and into which hundreds of thousands of veterans were cheering.

The third division of the parade yesterday, headed by the department commander, who was followed by his staff, all mounted. After them, carried by many willing hands, were the various companies, which were followed by the other, and into which hundreds of thousands of veterans were cheering.

The third division of the parade yesterday, headed by the department commander, who was followed by his staff, all mounted. After them, carried by many willing hands, were the various companies, which were followed by the other, and into which hundreds of thousands of veterans were cheering.

The third division of the parade yesterday, headed by the department commander, who was followed by his staff, all mounted. After them, carried by many willing hands, were the various companies, which were followed by the other, and into which hundreds of thousands of veterans were cheering.

The third division of the parade yesterday, headed by the department commander, who was followed by his staff, all mounted. After them, carried by many willing hands, were the various companies, which were followed by the other, and into which hundreds of thousands of veterans were cheering.

The third division of the parade yesterday, headed by the department commander, who was followed by his staff, all mounted. After them, carried by many willing hands, were the various companies, which were followed by the other, and into which hundreds of thousands of veterans were cheering.

The third division of the parade yesterday, headed by the department commander, who was followed by his staff, all mounted. After them, carried by many willing hands, were the various companies, which were followed by the other, and into which hundreds of thousands of veterans were cheering.

The third division of the parade yesterday, headed by the department commander, who was followed by his staff, all mounted. After them, carried by many willing hands, were the various companies, which were followed by the other, and into which hundreds of thousands of veterans were cheering.

The third division of the parade yesterday, headed by the department commander, who was followed by his staff, all mounted. After them, carried by many willing hands, were the various companies, which were followed by the other, and into which hundreds of thousands of veterans were cheering.

The third division of the parade yesterday, headed by the department commander, who was followed by his staff, all mounted. After them, carried by many willing hands, were the various companies, which were followed by the other, and into which hundreds of thousands of veterans were cheering.

The third division of the parade yesterday, headed by the department commander, who was followed by his staff, all mounted. After them, carried by many willing hands, were the various companies, which were followed by the other, and into which hundreds of thousands of veterans were cheering.

The third division of the parade yesterday, headed by the department commander, who was followed by his staff, all mounted. After them, carried by many willing hands, were the various companies, which were followed by the other, and into which hundreds of thousands of veterans were cheering.

The third division of the parade yesterday, headed by the department commander, who was followed by his staff, all mounted. After them, carried by many willing hands, were the various companies, which were followed by the other, and into which hundreds of thousands of veterans were cheering.

The third division of the parade yesterday, headed by the department commander, who was followed by his staff, all mounted. After them, carried by many willing hands, were the various companies, which were followed by the other, and into which hundreds of thousands of veterans were cheering.

The third division of the parade yesterday, headed by the department commander, who was followed by his staff, all mounted. After them, carried by many willing hands, were the various companies, which were followed by the other, and into which hundreds of thousands of veterans were cheering.

The third division of the parade yesterday, headed by the department commander, who was followed by his staff, all mounted. After them, carried by many willing hands, were the various companies, which were followed by the other, and into which hundreds of thousands of veterans were cheering.

The third division of the parade yesterday, headed by the department commander, who was followed by his staff, all mounted. After them, carried by many willing hands, were the various companies, which were followed by the other, and into which hundreds of thousands of veterans were cheering.

The third division of the parade yesterday, headed by the department commander, who was followed by his staff, all mounted. After them, carried by many willing hands, were the various companies, which were followed by the other, and into which hundreds of thousands of veterans were cheering.

The third division of the parade yesterday, headed by the department commander, who was followed by his staff, all mounted. After them, carried by many willing hands, were the various companies, which were followed by the other, and into which hundreds of thousands of veterans were cheering.

The third division of the parade yesterday, headed by the department commander, who was followed by his staff, all mounted. After them, carried by many willing hands, were the various companies, which were followed by the other, and into which hundreds of thousands of veterans were cheering.

The third division of the parade yesterday, headed by the department commander, who was followed by his staff, all mounted. After them, carried by many willing hands, were the various companies, which were followed by the other, and into which hundreds of thousands of veterans were cheering.

The third division of the parade yesterday, headed by the department commander, who was followed by his staff, all mounted. After them, carried by many willing hands, were the various companies, which were followed by the other, and into which hundreds of thousands of veterans were cheering.

The third division of the parade yesterday, headed by the department commander, who was followed by his staff, all mounted. After them, carried by many willing hands, were the various companies, which were followed by the other, and into which hundreds of thousands of veterans were cheering.

The third division of the parade yesterday, headed by the department commander, who was followed by his staff, all mounted. After them, carried by many willing hands, were the various companies, which were followed by the other, and into which hundreds of thousands of veterans were cheering.