

Take Trains at Union Depot.

Don't Go Away without seeing the GREAT NORTHWESTERN EXPOSITION of Products of Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Oregon and Washington. GREAT RACES, FRIDAY, SEPT. 4. W. W. P. to Pace Against His World's Wagon Record; the 2:08 Class Pace for $1,000 Purse; Marion Mills to Pace Against Her Record Without Driver or Sulky. Trains from Union Depot every 20 minutes after 9 o'clock a.m.

NEARER THE GOAL

MILLERS WIDEN THE GAP BETWEEN THEMSELVES AND THE HOOSIERS.

IT WAS A BRILLIANT GAME

AND IT COUNTS HEAVILY IN DECIDING WHO SHALL CAPTURE THE PENNANT.

MANKATO DEFEATS THE TIGERS,

While Grand Rapids Wins by a Single Run at Winoona.

Minneapolis 11, Indianapolis 6.

GAMES SCHEDULED FOR TODAY.

The particularly brilliant feature of the Minneapolis-Indianapolis game, aside from the batting of Werden, was the elegant catch of an apparently impossible fly in deep left by Lally.

GAMES SCHEDULED FOR TODAY.

Minneapolis 11, Indianapolis 6.

two more star exhibitions of how not to play ball today. The second game was called at the end of six innings on account of darkness. Attendance, 2,500. Score first game: Boston, 3; St. Louis, 1.

Second game, score: R.H.E. Boston, 1; St. Louis, 0. Batteries, St. Louis, 1; Boston, 2.

FELL DOWN AT HOME.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Sept. 3.—Poor playing was the cause of Brooklyn's fall today down at the home grounds. Attendance, 2,500. Score: Brooklyn, 0; Cleveland, 1.

PHILLIES AGAIN DEFEATED.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 3.—The Phillies again lost to Pittsburgh through very poor playing. Attendance, 2,500. Score: Philadelphia, 0; Pittsburgh, 1.

GAMES POSTPONED.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—Washington Louisville game postponed today; Baltimore-Chicago game postponed; rain.

FLEETWOOD PARK.

Free-for-All Event Taken by Fantasy.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Five thousand persons who attended the grand circuit meeting at Fleetwood park today saw C. J. Hamilton's six-year-old bay mare, Fantasy, defeat with the utmost ease all of the crack trotters of the free-for-all class now in training. Summary: Fantasy, 1; ...

Breeders' stake, $2,000, 2:30 class, two-year-olds, trotting. ...

Superior's Dilemma.

Treasurer Asks Whether the City Will Pay Bonds or Redeem.

WEST SUPERIOR, Wis., Sept. 3.—The city treasurer of this city has again requested instructions from the common council regarding the payment of bonds maturing the first of September—whether it is the intention to pay them, refund the debt or repudiate. It is a question which the finance committee is now figuring upon and finding it very difficult to solve. Last May the treasurer was instructed not to pay installment "D" of certain street improvement bonds, amounting to $75,152, for the reason that the special improvement tax on the property covered by the bonds, either on account of litigation or otherwise, were not paid and the city had not the funds to make the required payment. The repudiation created something of a stir in Eastern financial circles where the bonds are held and on Sept. 1, installment "D" of the bonds, amounting to $47,632, was due. The holders are demanding payment and the city treasurer asked the council to advise him. The council, which has the last delinquent tax roll for collection, owes the city on it $488,000 and it is understood that owing to light sales this year the city will realize somewhere in the neighborhood of $50,000 or $75,000 on the tax roll. The city officers are daily receipt of inquiries as to what is going to be done about it.

CLOSE TO A RIOT.

Dublin Mob Anxious to Lay its Hands on John Dillon.

DUBLIN, Sept. 3.—Following the close of the Irish convention there was almost a riot in the streets of Dublin and John Dillon and a number of his friends were compelled to seek refuge in the Imperial hotel. After leaving the hotel, Dillon was escorted by fifty or sixty members of the convention, walked up Sackville street, which was densely crowded. The delegates were followed by a noisy mob of 1,000 Dublin roughs, who had been gathered about the hall, and who were evidently not in sympathy with the Dillonites. The leaders of the mob kept shouting "Kill Dillon" and "Kill the traitors" and other missiles being thrown through the air. The police on duty were not able to cope with the roughs and reinforcements had to be hurried to the scene. The police soon turned into Sackville street in strong numbers and were just in time to stop what was beyond a doubt, a growing riot which might have had most serious consequences. There were threats of tramping, trashing and ducking Dillon, causing him and his party to hurriedly seek refuge in the Imperial hotel, which was afterwards surrounded by a strong force of police, which kept the rioters at bay.

COLE PULLED OFF.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 3.—The Democratic state convention convened at 10:30 a. m. and proceeded to complete the state ticket. A sensational incident of the morning's work was the displacement of Rubie Cole (silverite), who had been chosen by the delegates for secretary of the convention. Cole was displaced by C. M. Butt, of Wisconsin, for secretary of state, and H. L. Wood, of Oklahoma, for attorney general. C. F. Kaik, of Barron, was nominated for railroad commissioner and Francis Cleary, of Waukegan, for superintendent of public instruction. This completed the ticket and the convention took a recess.

BASE BALL TODAY.

ST. PAUL VS. COLUMBUS!

Games called at 3:30 o'clock.

St. Paul vs. Columbus!

Games called at 3:30 o'clock.

St. Paul vs. Columbus!

Games called at 3:30 o'clock.

St. Paul vs. Columbus!

Games called at 3:30 o'clock.

St. Paul vs. Columbus!

Games called at 3:30 o'clock.

St. Paul vs. Columbus!

Games called at 3:30 o'clock.

St. Paul vs. Columbus!

Games called at 3:30 o'clock.

St. Paul vs. Columbus!

Games called at 3:30 o'clock.

St. Paul vs. Columbus!

Games called at 3:30 o'clock.

St. Paul vs. Columbus!

Games called at 3:30 o'clock.

St. Paul vs. Columbus!

Games called at 3:30 o'clock.

JOY STILL REIGNS

RECEPTIONS CONTINUE TO FURNISH PLEASURE FOR THE VISITORS IN TOWN.

AND THOSE GIVING THEM, TOO.

MINNESOTA COMMANDERY TENDERS AN INFORMAL AT HOME TO ITS GUESTS.

ELKS DO SOME ENTERTAINING.

Sons of Veterans in Line, Too, With an Enjoyable Reception to an Out-of-Town People.

The Minnesota Commandery of the Loyal Legion tendered an informal "at home" to the visiting members of the order at their headquarters in the Bryan Annex last evening. The guests were received between 10 and 12, and a large number enjoyed the hospitalities of the commandery during the reception.

The members of the reception committee were Gen. J. R. Brooke, Maj. G. H. White, Gen. R. P. Wilson, Col. J. H. Page, Gen. R. P. Newport, Col. G. O. Eddy, Maj. C. H. Whipple and Lieut. A. Samuel Appleton.

Among the many distinguished guests of the evening were Commander-in-Chief Walker; ex-Commanders-in-Chief Lawler, of Illinois; Adams, of Massachusetts; Rea, of Minnesota; Col. Cleveland and Maj. Burnell, of Wisconsin; Geo. Wilson, of Montana; Col. Freeman, U. S. A.

ELKS' SOCIAL SESSION.

One of the Jolliest Incidents of Entertainment Week.

St. Paul Lodge of Elks No. 142, held a "social session" last evening in the Lowry arcade. Several hundred Elks from lodges all over the United States joined with them in a royal good time. P. S. Verbeck, of Chicago, acted as chairman, and kept the gaiety at fever heat during the entire evening.

RECEPTION AND MUSICAL.

Pleasant Affair at Home of Mrs Estelle Swank.

The Sons of Veterans Camp No. 1 and the Ladies' Aid Society No. 20, St. Paul, gave a reception and a musical program last evening at the home of Mrs. Estelle Swank on South Exchange street. The affair was in honor of the veterans who are returning from the front. The musical program was given by the Ladies' Aid Society, and the veterans were entertained by the Sons of Veterans. The house and grounds were tastefully decorated with Chinese lanterns, flags and bunting.

COLUMBIA STILL IN IT.

The Chicago Post Having No End of Pleasure.

Members of Columbia post, Chicago, have been having a most delightful time in St. Paul. They have been shown much attention and have been the recipients of praise for their splendid appearance as a post. Last evening, with the ladies who are of the post, the post was entertained by J. J. Hill, president of the Great Northern road, and yesterday they were entertained by the gentlemen in a delightful trip to Minnetonka.

During the visit of the Chicagoans the ladies of the post, who are of the post, were entertained by Dr. Borland, of Chicago, who has been their champion and drill master as well as the pleasure ground adjacent to the efforts of Dr. Borland, presented him with a drum major's baton, on which was inscribed the name of the "Bushman Awkward Squad." The presentation speech was made by Kickback Scanlan, of Chicago, who is a Chicago lawyer of note, is the recognized leader of the bushwhackers, and made a splendid presentation to Dr. Borland because of his ability as an orator. His talents in this direction were demonstrated by his presentation, and it is a matter of record that there were tears in the eyes of all present when Mr. Scanlan had concluded.

BRYAN IS INDORSSED.

An Address Delivered at Elkhardt and Another at South Bend.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Sept. 3.—In a solid mass on an open square "the Government Lot," 25,000 people congregated tonight to hear William J. Bryan speak on the money question. Mr. Bryan reached South Bend this evening and was received with a tremendous gathering at the depot. Gov. Mahan, Mr. Bryan left the house of Hon. Benjamin F. Snively, Democratic candidate for governor of Indiana, whose guests they are, and were the central figures in a torchlight procession, composed of a number of Democratic campaign clubs from this town and places in Indiana and Michigan, which conveyed them to the lot.

Excursion trains from nearby places brought in immense crowds during the day. Later eight thousand people heard Mr. Bryan speak at Elkhardt this afternoon. The Democratic candidate arrived just after noon and after dinner Mr. and Mrs. Bryan were escorted to the hotel. A large number of guests lived to the city. A brass band led the parade and the members of the reception committee. A number of ladies, who are of the party, were present. Mrs. Bryan, and Mrs. Mahan, who are of the party, were present. Mrs. Bryan, and Mrs. Mahan, who are of the party, were present.

DREYFUS ESCAPED.

New Chapter in the Famous French Episode.

LONDON, Sept. 3.—Capt. Hunter, who has arrived at Newport, Monmouthshire, from Cayenne, French Guiana, reports that Capt. Alfred Dreyfus, who was sentenced to be publicly degraded and confined for life in a fortress, after having been convicted by a court martial for selling plans of French fortifications, etc., to a foreign government, has made his escape.

The Necessary Part.

Life.—Can you let me have the money for my new wheel?

Hubbard—But I give you $100 last week for that purpose.

Wife—True, my dear, but I wanted to be sure of my costume first.

ECHOES OF THE WAR

BATTLE-SCARRED VETERANS RELATE THEIR EXPERIENCE AT A CAMP FIRE.

PROGRAMME AT MARKET HALL.

COL. J. F. CHASE, A HERO OF GETTYSBURG, THE PRINCIPAL SPEAKER.

CAPT. VAN SANT ON PATRIOTISM.

Col. James Lewis, a Colored Orator, Arouses Enthusiasm on the West Side.

An audience numbering 400 people attended the campfire at Market hall last night. Some of whose names were on the programme were unavoidably absent, and the meeting was necessarily shorter than the usual campfire, though none the less enjoyable.

The Duluth City band inaugurated the exercises with a spirited march, and the Mendelssohn male quartette contributed a couple of new and pretty selections. Then Capt. L. H. B. Beebe, who presided, introduced the first speaker of the evening, Col. J. F. Chase, of St. Petersburg, Fla.; Col. Chase's remarks were listened to with the closest interest, his address practically consisting of a description of certain famous features of the battle of Gettysburg. Col. Chase was a member of the Fifth Maine battery, and at Gettysburg he lost an arm and received wounds from the bursting of a shell. He was left on the field for dead, and when he recovered consciousness, two days later, he found himself in a wagon where he lay among a load of dead comrades, about to be buried in a newly dug trench. Col. Chase's recital pictured in a vivid manner the horrible suffering of the soldiers.

Capt. Van Sant, who was next introduced, spoke of the great sacrifice of human life which was the price of American liberty in this country. Was it worth all this sacrifice? Yes, yes, yes, he replied, the price of liberty is worth any sacrifice. He then introduced the speaker of the evening, Col. J. F. Chase, of St. Petersburg, Fla.; Col. Chase's remarks were listened to with the closest interest, his address practically consisting of a description of certain famous features of the battle of Gettysburg. Col. Chase was a member of the Fifth Maine battery, and at Gettysburg he lost an arm and received wounds from the bursting of a shell. He was left on the field for dead, and when he recovered consciousness, two days later, he found himself in a wagon where he lay among a load of dead comrades, about to be buried in a newly dug trench. Col. Chase's recital pictured in a vivid manner the horrible suffering of the soldiers.

Capt. Van Sant, who was next introduced, spoke of the great sacrifice of human life which was the price of American liberty in this country. Was it worth all this sacrifice? Yes, yes, yes, he replied, the price of liberty is worth any sacrifice. He then introduced the speaker of the evening, Col. J. F. Chase, of St. Petersburg, Fla.; Col. Chase's remarks were listened to with the closest interest, his address practically consisting of a description of certain famous features of the battle of Gettysburg. Col. Chase was a member of the Fifth Maine battery, and at Gettysburg he lost an arm and received wounds from the bursting of a shell. He was left on the field for dead, and when he recovered consciousness, two days later, he found himself in a wagon where he lay among a load of dead comrades, about to be buried in a newly dug trench. Col. Chase's recital pictured in a vivid manner the horrible suffering of the soldiers.

Capt. Van Sant, who was next introduced, spoke of the great sacrifice of human life which was the price of American liberty in this country. Was it worth all this sacrifice? Yes, yes, yes, he replied, the price of liberty is worth any sacrifice. He then introduced the speaker of the evening, Col. J. F. Chase, of St. Petersburg, Fla.; Col. Chase's remarks were listened to with the closest interest, his address practically consisting of a description of certain famous features of the battle of Gettysburg. Col. Chase was a member of the Fifth Maine battery, and at Gettysburg he lost an arm and received wounds from the bursting of a shell. He was left on the field for dead, and when he recovered consciousness, two days later, he found himself in a wagon where he lay among a load of dead comrades, about to be buried in a newly dug trench. Col. Chase's recital pictured in a vivid manner the horrible suffering of the soldiers.

Capt. Van Sant, who was next introduced, spoke of the great sacrifice of human life which was the price of American liberty in this country. Was it worth all this sacrifice? Yes, yes, yes, he replied, the price of liberty is worth any sacrifice. He then introduced the speaker of the evening, Col. J. F. Chase, of St. Petersburg, Fla.; Col. Chase's remarks were listened to with the closest interest, his address practically consisting of a description of certain famous features of the battle of Gettysburg. Col. Chase was a member of the Fifth Maine battery, and at Gettysburg he lost an arm and received wounds from the bursting of a shell. He was left on the field for dead, and when he recovered consciousness, two days later, he found himself in a wagon where he lay among a load of dead comrades, about to be buried in a newly dug trench. Col. Chase's recital pictured in a vivid manner the horrible suffering of the soldiers.

Capt. Van Sant, who was next introduced, spoke of the great sacrifice of human life which was the price of American liberty in this country. Was it worth all this sacrifice? Yes, yes, yes, he replied, the price of liberty is worth any sacrifice. He then introduced the speaker of the evening, Col. J. F. Chase, of St. Petersburg, Fla.; Col. Chase's remarks were listened to with the closest interest, his address practically consisting of a description of certain famous features of the battle of Gettysburg. Col. Chase was a member of the Fifth Maine battery, and at Gettysburg he lost an arm and received wounds from the bursting of a shell. He was left on the field for dead, and when he recovered consciousness, two days later, he found himself in a wagon where he lay among a load of dead comrades, about to be buried in a newly dug trench. Col. Chase's recital pictured in a vivid manner the horrible suffering of the soldiers.

Capt. Van Sant, who was next introduced, spoke of the great sacrifice of human life which was the price of American liberty in this country. Was it worth all this sacrifice? Yes, yes, yes, he replied, the price of liberty is worth any sacrifice. He then introduced the speaker of the evening, Col. J. F. Chase, of St. Petersburg, Fla.; Col. Chase's remarks were listened to with the closest interest, his address practically consisting of a description of certain famous features of the battle of Gettysburg. Col. Chase was a member of the Fifth Maine battery, and at Gettysburg he lost an arm and received wounds from the bursting of a shell. He was left on the field for dead, and when he recovered consciousness, two days later, he found himself in a wagon where he lay among a load of dead comrades, about to be buried in a newly dug trench. Col. Chase's recital pictured in a vivid manner the horrible suffering of the soldiers.

Capt. Van Sant, who was next introduced, spoke of the great sacrifice of human life which was the price of American liberty in this country. Was it worth all this sacrifice? Yes, yes, yes, he replied, the price of liberty is worth any sacrifice. He then introduced the speaker of the evening, Col. J. F. Chase, of St. Petersburg, Fla.; Col. Chase's remarks were listened to with the closest interest, his address practically consisting of a description of certain famous features of the battle of Gettysburg. Col. Chase was a member of the Fifth Maine battery, and at Gettysburg he lost an arm and received wounds from the bursting of a shell. He was left on the field for dead, and when he recovered consciousness, two days later, he found himself in a wagon where he lay among a load of dead comrades, about to be buried in a newly dug trench. Col. Chase's recital pictured in a vivid manner the horrible suffering of the soldiers.

Capt. Van Sant, who was next introduced, spoke of the great sacrifice of human life which was the price of American liberty in this country. Was it worth all this sacrifice? Yes, yes, yes, he replied, the price of liberty is worth any sacrifice. He then introduced the speaker of the evening, Col. J. F. Chase, of St. Petersburg, Fla.; Col. Chase's remarks were listened to with the closest interest, his address practically consisting of a description of certain famous features of the battle of Gettysburg. Col. Chase was a member of the Fifth Maine battery, and at Gettysburg he lost an arm and received wounds from the bursting of a shell. He was left on the field for dead, and when he recovered consciousness, two days later, he found himself in a wagon where he lay among a load of dead comrades, about to be buried in a newly dug trench. Col. Chase's recital pictured in a vivid manner the horrible suffering of the soldiers.

Capt. Van Sant, who was next introduced, spoke of the great sacrifice of human life which was the price of American liberty in this country. Was it worth all this sacrifice? Yes, yes, yes, he replied, the price of liberty is worth any sacrifice. He then introduced the speaker of the evening, Col. J. F. Chase, of St. Petersburg, Fla.; Col. Chase's remarks were listened to with the closest interest, his address practically consisting of a description of certain famous features of the battle of Gettysburg. Col. Chase was a member of the Fifth Maine battery, and at Gettysburg he lost an arm and received wounds from the bursting of a shell. He was left on the field for dead, and when he recovered consciousness, two days later, he found himself in a wagon where he lay among a load of dead comrades, about to be buried in a newly dug trench. Col. Chase's recital pictured in a vivid manner the horrible suffering of the soldiers.

Capt. Van Sant, who was next introduced, spoke of the great sacrifice of human life which was the price of American liberty in this country. Was it worth all this sacrifice? Yes, yes, yes, he replied, the price of liberty is worth any sacrifice. He then introduced the speaker of the evening, Col. J. F. Chase, of St. Petersburg, Fla.; Col. Chase's remarks were listened to with the closest interest, his address practically consisting of a description of certain famous features of the battle of Gettysburg. Col. Chase was a member of the Fifth Maine battery, and at Gettysburg he lost an arm and received wounds from the bursting of a shell. He was left on the field for dead, and when he recovered consciousness, two days later, he found himself in a wagon where he lay among a load of dead comrades, about to be buried in a newly dug trench. Col. Chase's recital pictured in a vivid manner the horrible suffering of the soldiers.

Capt. Van Sant, who was next introduced, spoke of the great sacrifice of human life which was the price of American liberty in this country. Was it worth all this sacrifice? Yes, yes, yes, he replied, the price of liberty is worth any sacrifice. He then introduced the speaker of the evening, Col. J. F. Chase, of St. Petersburg, Fla.; Col. Chase's remarks were listened to with the closest interest, his address practically consisting of a description of certain famous features of the battle of Gettysburg. Col. Chase was a member of the Fifth Maine battery, and at Gettysburg he lost an arm and received wounds from the bursting of a shell. He was left on the field for dead, and when he recovered consciousness, two days later, he found himself in a wagon where he lay among a load of dead comrades, about to be buried in a newly dug trench. Col. Chase's recital pictured in a vivid manner the horrible suffering of the soldiers.

Capt. Van Sant, who was next introduced, spoke of the great sacrifice of human life which was the price of American liberty in this country. Was it worth all this sacrifice? Yes, yes, yes, he replied, the price of liberty is worth any sacrifice. He then introduced the speaker of the evening, Col. J. F. Chase, of St. Petersburg, Fla.; Col. Chase's remarks were listened to with the closest interest, his address practically consisting of a description of certain famous features of the battle of Gettysburg. Col. Chase was a member of the Fifth Maine battery, and at Gettysburg he lost an arm and received wounds from the bursting of a shell. He was left on the field for dead, and when he recovered consciousness, two days later, he found himself in a wagon where he lay among a load of dead comrades, about to be buried in a newly dug trench. Col. Chase's recital pictured in a vivid manner the horrible suffering of the soldiers.

Capt. Van Sant, who was next introduced, spoke of the great sacrifice of human life which was the price of American liberty in this country. Was it worth all this sacrifice? Yes, yes, yes, he replied, the price of liberty is worth any sacrifice. He then introduced the speaker of the evening, Col. J. F. Chase, of St. Petersburg, Fla.; Col. Chase's remarks were listened to with the closest interest, his address practically consisting of a description of certain famous features of the battle of Gettysburg. Col. Chase was a member of the Fifth Maine battery, and at Gettysburg he lost an arm and received wounds from the bursting of a shell. He was left on the field for dead, and when he recovered consciousness, two days later, he found himself in a wagon where he lay among a load of dead comrades, about to be buried in a newly dug trench. Col. Chase's recital pictured in a vivid manner the horrible suffering of the soldiers.

Capt. Van Sant, who was next introduced, spoke of the great sacrifice of human life which was the price of American liberty in this country. Was it worth all this sacrifice? Yes, yes, yes, he replied, the price of liberty is worth any sacrifice. He then introduced the speaker of the evening, Col. J. F. Chase, of St. Petersburg, Fla.; Col. Chase's remarks were listened to with the closest interest, his address practically consisting of a description of certain famous features of the battle of Gettysburg. Col. Chase was a member of the Fifth Maine battery, and at Gettysburg he lost an arm and received wounds from the bursting of a shell. He was left on the field for dead, and when he recovered consciousness, two days later, he found himself in a wagon where he lay among a load of dead comrades, about to be buried in a newly dug trench. Col. Chase's recital pictured in a vivid manner the horrible suffering of the soldiers.

Capt. Van Sant, who was next introduced, spoke of the great sacrifice of human life which was the price of American liberty in this country. Was it worth all this sacrifice? Yes, yes, yes, he replied, the price of liberty is worth any sacrifice. He then introduced the speaker of the evening, Col. J. F. Chase, of St. Petersburg, Fla.; Col. Chase's remarks were listened to with the closest interest, his address practically consisting of a description of certain famous features of the battle of Gettysburg. Col. Chase was a member of the Fifth Maine battery, and at Gettysburg he lost an arm and received wounds from the bursting of a shell. He was left on the field for dead, and when he recovered consciousness, two days later, he found himself in a wagon where he lay among a load of dead comrades, about to be buried in a newly dug trench. Col. Chase's recital pictured in a vivid manner the horrible suffering of the soldiers.

Capt. Van Sant, who was next introduced, spoke of the great sacrifice of human life which was the price of American liberty in this country. Was it worth all this sacrifice? Yes, yes, yes, he replied, the price of liberty is worth any sacrifice. He then introduced the speaker of the evening, Col. J. F. Chase, of St. Petersburg, Fla.; Col. Chase's remarks were listened to with the closest interest, his address practically consisting of a description of certain famous features of the battle of Gettysburg. Col. Chase was a member of the Fifth Maine battery, and at Gettysburg he lost an arm and received wounds from the bursting of a shell. He was left on the field for dead, and when he recovered consciousness, two days later, he found himself in a wagon where he lay among a load of dead comrades, about to be buried in a newly dug trench. Col. Chase's recital pictured in a vivid manner the horrible suffering of the soldiers.

Capt. Van Sant, who was next introduced, spoke of the great sacrifice of human life which was the price of American liberty in this country. Was it worth all this sacrifice? Yes, yes, yes, he replied, the price of liberty is worth any sacrifice. He then introduced the speaker of the evening, Col. J. F. Chase, of St. Petersburg, Fla.; Col. Chase's remarks were listened to with the closest interest, his address practically consisting of a description of certain famous features of the battle of Gettysburg. Col. Chase was a member of the Fifth Maine battery, and at Gettysburg he lost an arm and received wounds from the bursting of a shell. He was left on the field for dead, and when he recovered consciousness, two days later, he found himself in a wagon where he lay among a load of dead comrades, about to be buried in a newly dug trench. Col. Chase's recital pictured in a vivid manner the horrible suffering of the soldiers.

Capt. Van Sant, who was next introduced, spoke of the great sacrifice of human life which was the price of American liberty in this country. Was it worth all this sacrifice? Yes, yes, yes, he replied, the price of liberty is worth any sacrifice. He then introduced the speaker of the evening, Col. J. F. Chase, of St. Petersburg, Fla.; Col. Chase's remarks were listened to with the closest interest, his address practically consisting of a description of certain famous features of the battle of Gettysburg. Col. Chase was a member of the Fifth Maine battery, and at Gettysburg he lost an arm and received wounds from the bursting of a shell. He was left on the field for dead, and when he recovered consciousness, two days later, he found himself in a wagon where he lay among a load of dead comrades, about to be buried in a newly dug trench. Col. Chase's recital pictured in a vivid manner the horrible suffering of the soldiers.

Capt. Van Sant, who was next introduced, spoke of the great sacrifice of human life which was the price of American liberty in this country. Was it worth all this sacrifice? Yes, yes, yes, he replied, the price of liberty is worth any sacrifice. He then introduced the speaker of the evening, Col. J. F. Chase, of St. Petersburg, Fla.; Col. Chase's remarks were listened to with the closest interest, his address practically consisting of a description of certain famous features of the battle of Gettysburg. Col. Chase was a member of the Fifth Maine battery, and at Gettysburg he lost an arm and received wounds from the bursting of a shell. He was left on the field for dead, and when he recovered consciousness, two days later, he found himself in a wagon where he lay among a load of dead comrades, about to be buried in a newly dug trench. Col. Chase's recital pictured in a vivid manner the horrible suffering of the soldiers.

Capt. Van Sant, who was next introduced, spoke of the great sacrifice of human life which was the price of American liberty in this country. Was it worth all this sacrifice? Yes, yes, yes, he replied, the price of liberty is worth any sacrifice. He then introduced the speaker of the evening, Col. J. F. Chase, of St. Petersburg, Fla.; Col. Chase's remarks were listened to with the closest interest, his address practically consisting of a description of certain famous features of the battle of Gettysburg. Col. Chase was a member of the Fifth Maine battery, and at Gettysburg he lost an arm and received wounds from the bursting of a shell. He was left on the field for dead, and when he recovered consciousness, two days later, he found himself in a wagon where he lay among a load of dead comrades, about to be buried in a newly dug trench. Col. Chase's recital pictured in a vivid manner the horrible suffering of the soldiers.

Capt. Van Sant, who was next introduced, spoke of the great sacrifice of human life which was the price of American liberty in this country. Was it worth all this sacrifice? Yes, yes, yes, he replied,