

SAINT PAUL.

LOCAL NEWS NOTES.

Diphtheria is reported at 149 Nias avenue. Dr. Edward Dwyer secured a permit yesterday to erect a two-story frame dwelling on the north side of Nias avenue, between Ayon and Victoria streets. The dwelling will cost $5,000.

William Sutton Brown, son of Organist William Brown of Home of Hope church, died yesterday at the family residence, 214 Arundel street. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2.

Mrs. Catherine Tierney, who had reached the unusually advanced age of 93 years, died yesterday at her residence, 422 Chicago street. Funeral services at the house tomorrow morning at 8:30 will be followed by services at St. Mary's church.

The board of county commissioners met yesterday forenoon and approved the monthly bills. The board adopted a resolution instructing the county surveyor to prepare plans and specifications for opening and grading half a mile of road between sections 15 and 22 in Mounds View.

After the Crash and Bustle of Enchantment Week. Miss Mable Horn gave a dancing party last evening as a farewell to her many St. Paul friends, before her departure for Kemper Hall. The rooms were handsomely arranged with hot house flowers and dainty refreshments served during an intermission in the dancing.

Miss Constans, of Summit avenue, gave a cycle party last evening. After a run of a couple hours the return to the house was made and refreshments were served to the guests, after which there was dancing.

Division No. 2, D. of E., will give a card party and ice cream social for the members of their own and other divisions in their hall, Rice street and University avenue, Thursday evening.

The Women's Home Missionary Society of Dayton Avenue Church meets Friday afternoon.

Miss Mary Brown, of Holly avenue, entertained at cards yesterday afternoon for Mrs. Powell, of St. Joseph. The rooms were made sweet and lovely by the use of flowers, and at the close of the game refreshments were served from the card tables. The prizes were taken by Mrs. Prandi, head, and Mrs. M. C. Kimberly, second.

Miss Kate Stone, of Corry, Pa., is visiting her brother, H. P. Stone, of the Hiawatha flats.

Miss Eva M. Stewart, of Baltimore, is visiting friends in the city.

Miss Katie Garrett has returned to St. Paul, after spending the summer at White Bear Lake.

James Gaffney and son Emmett have returned to Craig, Mo., after spending a week with relatives on Euclid street.

Miss Hattie Crawford and William Griswold have returned from Chicago. While away they made a trip of 600 miles from Chicago to St. Paul, via a tandem.

Harry B. Chandler, of Chicago, is the guest of J. A. Chandler, of 229 East Ninth street. During his stay in St. Paul he is enjoying the delights of a Minnesota autumn.

Mrs. Keaton is ill at her home, 288 Laurel avenue.

Mrs. John Logan is visiting in Minneapolis, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Washburn.

Pierre Wibaux, of Wibaux, Mont., is at the Alberca.

Reed and Mrs. E. P. Ingersoll, of Holly avenue, are home from the East.

Miss Gertrude Harrington, of Chicago, is the guest of friends in the city.

Mrs. Sam Sloan is entertaining Mrs. Mark Perry, of Sioux City.

Mrs. P. McVeigh and family will remove to Cincinnati this day.

Charmed by St. Paul. Col. C. C. H. Tittle, of Cincinnati, accompanied by Mrs. Tittle and his daughter Daisy, and also Mrs. Louis De Lestry, of this city, paid the city a visit yesterday, and were shown the different departments of a great daily paper. Col. Tittle and family attended the evening wine receipts, and being favorably impressed with the people and the city, concluded to remain a few days after their departure.

State Prison Earnings. State prison earnings for August, $4,974.97, were reported to the state auditor yesterday. After deducting the binding twine receipts, going into the current expense fund, binding twine receipts go into the revolving fund. This gives the current expense fund $3,956.57 and the revolving fund $1,018.40.

Preparing for Election. City Clerk Demaree has notified the Republican, Democratic and People's party committees to furnish the common council with lists of the candidates for judges of election from which the council will select those who are to serve. Oct. 12 is the first registration day.

IT'S CURES THAT COUNT.

Many so-called remedies are pressed on the public attention on account of their claimed large sales. But sales cannot determine values. Sales simply argue good salesmen, shrewd puffery, or enormous advertising. It's cures that count. It's cures that are counted on by Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Its sales might be boasted. It has the world for its market. But sales prove nothing. We point only to the record of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, as proof of its merit.

50 YEARS OF CURES.

LAY MORE TRACKS

IS THE DEMAND MADE BY THE ALDERMEN ON THE STREET RAILWAY.

HARVESTER WORKS LINE.

COMPANY ASKED TO BUILD HALF A MILE EACH SIX MONTHS.

PUBLIC MARKET ON BROADWAY.

Adverse Report of the Committee Rejected—Salaries of the Police Again Called Up.

One single nickel will be the street car fare between the Wood Harvester works and any point within the city of St. Paul, if a resolution adopted by the board of aldermen last night should go into effect.

The board of aldermen last night should go into effect. The company of the Wood Harvester works and the residents of Hazel Park and vicinity have been endeavoring for several months to make some arrangement whereby they could secure a 5-cent fare to and from Hazel Park. Accordingly, Ald. Stutzman introduced a resolution requiring the street railway company to build, equip and operate a line of horse railway from Duluth avenue eastward on Seventh street at the rate of one mile every six months until the Wood Harvester works are reached.

On behalf of the citizens of Hazel Park and vicinity and the employees of the Wood Harvester works, C. W. Horr was granted the floor. Mr. Horr said that the eastern portion of the city was asking only for the privileges and rights accorded to all other portions. He insisted that the council compel Mr. Lowry to construct a street car line to the Harvester works.

Assemblyman Thompson also urged the passage of the resolution. He said that the company could not be compelled to erect its electric lines, but that the council could force it to construct one mile of horse railway every six months, until the line is completed to the Harvester works.

Ald. Egelow objected to railroading the resolution through, but the resolution was adopted by a vote of nine to one.

The ordinance reducing the salaries of all the members of the police force by three and a half per cent was reported back to the board with the recommendation of the committee on police that it pass.

Ald. Egelow called attention to the objection made to the ordinance, that it reduced the salaries of the chief, captains, lieutenants and sergeants, who have already suffered a larger cut in proportion than the patrolmen have.

Finally, on motion of Ald. Lindquist, the ordinance was referred to the joint committee on police, with the understanding that the joint committee will meet in time to report the ordinance to the regular meeting of the board on Tuesday night.

City Engineer Rundlett sent in a communication announcing his appointment of a new set of street commissioners, and recommending that the council fix their salaries at the same rate paid to their predecessors in office. The communication was referred to the committee on police. Assistant Corporation Attorney advised the council that the appointments did not require its confirmation.

City Clerk Jensen submitted a communication to the council, recommending that the council appoint a committee to pass upon the list of names submitted for appointment as judges of election. The committee consisted of Ald. Egelow, Stutzman, Kanusk, Larsen, Bell and Allard.

The ordinance establishing a public market on Broadway came before the board accompanied by the adverse report of the committee on markets. It was adopted by a vote of six to four.

Ald. Kaldunski, Shepard, Stutzman and President Markham voting in the negative. The ordinance was adopted by a vote of six to four.

The resolution appropriating $3,000 additional out of the city funds and the fund for the erection of a new school building at Albemarle and Wayzata streets was passed.

A preliminary ordinance paving Jackson street from Thirteenth to Fifteenth was passed.

The ordinance regulating pawnbrokers' dealers in second-hand goods and junk men was passed, after striking out the section requiring the purchaser of stolen lead pipe and plumbing outfits to return the building from which the articles were stolen.

The assembly resolution directing the commissioner of public works and the city engineer to open a roadway on the levee between Jackson and Eagle streets was adopted.

It Discussed Telephone, Levee Rights and Alley.

The assembly committee on streets considered, among other things, yesterday afternoon the ordinance granting the American Telephone and Telegraph company the franchise to operate its long distance line within the city of St. Paul. Assemblyman Lewis called attention to the fact that the only concession offered by the company in consideration of receiving a franchise was the free use of its lines by the police and fire departments of the city.

Mr. Lewis thought that this was not enough. Heretofore the policy of the city had been to grant such franchises for nothing, but it was the opinion of Mr. Lewis that the company ought to pay a consideration to the city, which would soon begin to derive a good revenue from the franchises granted.

Mr. Johnson, who represents the long distance telephone company said it would be unjust for the city to require his company to pay a consideration when it had not taxed other companies.

The committee on streets considered, among other things, yesterday afternoon the ordinance granting the American Telephone and Telegraph company the franchise to operate its long distance line within the city of St. Paul.

Mr. Johnson, who represents the long distance telephone company said it would be unjust for the city to require his company to pay a consideration when it had not taxed other companies.

The committee on streets considered, among other things, yesterday afternoon the ordinance granting the American Telephone and Telegraph company the franchise to operate its long distance line within the city of St. Paul.

Mr. Johnson, who represents the long distance telephone company said it would be unjust for the city to require his company to pay a consideration when it had not taxed other companies.

The committee on streets considered, among other things, yesterday afternoon the ordinance granting the American Telephone and Telegraph company the franchise to operate its long distance line within the city of St. Paul.

Mr. Johnson, who represents the long distance telephone company said it would be unjust for the city to require his company to pay a consideration when it had not taxed other companies.

CHARGE IS MURDER

ON WHICH WILLIAM O'NEILL, THE SUSPENDED PATROLMAN, WILL BE ARRaigned.

CORONERS INQUEST HELD.

JURY FINDS McDONOUGH'S DEATH RESULTED FROM A GUN-SHOT WOUND.

COURT TO DECIDE THE BLAME.

The Dead Man's Brother Swears Out the Warrant—Made in the Second Degree.

Committee on License Again Discuss Acceptable Sureties.

William O'Neill, the suspended patrolman who shot Martin McDonough, whom he had arrested, causing his death, will be formally charged with murder in the second degree today.

The coroner's jury summoned by Coroner Whitcomb to inquire into the death of McDonough, returned the following verdict yesterday afternoon:

That Martin McDonough came to his death in the city of St. Paul at the county hospital of the said city, on Thursday, September 4, 1896, of peritonitis, resulting from a wound from a pistol shot in the hand of one William O'Neill, an officer of the St. Paul Police, who was shot at on Wednesday morning, September 3, 1896, at or near the corner of Seventh and Broadway streets in the said city of St. Paul, Minn.

The coroner's jury summoned by Coroner Whitcomb to inquire into the death of McDonough, returned the following verdict yesterday afternoon:

That Martin McDonough came to his death in the city of St. Paul at the county hospital of the said city, on Thursday, September 4, 1896, of peritonitis, resulting from a wound from a pistol shot in the hand of one William O'Neill, an officer of the St. Paul Police, who was shot at on Wednesday morning, September 3, 1896, at or near the corner of Seventh and Broadway streets in the said city of St. Paul, Minn.

The coroner's jury summoned by Coroner Whitcomb to inquire into the death of McDonough, returned the following verdict yesterday afternoon:

That Martin McDonough came to his death in the city of St. Paul at the county hospital of the said city, on Thursday, September 4, 1896, of peritonitis, resulting from a wound from a pistol shot in the hand of one William O'Neill, an officer of the St. Paul Police, who was shot at on Wednesday morning, September 3, 1896, at or near the corner of Seventh and Broadway streets in the said city of St. Paul, Minn.

The coroner's jury summoned by Coroner Whitcomb to inquire into the death of McDonough, returned the following verdict yesterday afternoon:

That Martin McDonough came to his death in the city of St. Paul at the county hospital of the said city, on Thursday, September 4, 1896, of peritonitis, resulting from a wound from a pistol shot in the hand of one William O'Neill, an officer of the St. Paul Police, who was shot at on Wednesday morning, September 3, 1896, at or near the corner of Seventh and Broadway streets in the said city of St. Paul, Minn.

The coroner's jury summoned by Coroner Whitcomb to inquire into the death of McDonough, returned the following verdict yesterday afternoon:

That Martin McDonough came to his death in the city of St. Paul at the county hospital of the said city, on Thursday, September 4, 1896, of peritonitis, resulting from a wound from a pistol shot in the hand of one William O'Neill, an officer of the St. Paul Police, who was shot at on Wednesday morning, September 3, 1896, at or near the corner of Seventh and Broadway streets in the said city of St. Paul, Minn.

The coroner's jury summoned by Coroner Whitcomb to inquire into the death of McDonough, returned the following verdict yesterday afternoon:

That Martin McDonough came to his death in the city of St. Paul at the county hospital of the said city, on Thursday, September 4, 1896, of peritonitis, resulting from a wound from a pistol shot in the hand of one William O'Neill, an officer of the St. Paul Police, who was shot at on Wednesday morning, September 3, 1896, at or near the corner of Seventh and Broadway streets in the said city of St. Paul, Minn.

The coroner's jury summoned by Coroner Whitcomb to inquire into the death of McDonough, returned the following verdict yesterday afternoon:

That Martin McDonough came to his death in the city of St. Paul at the county hospital of the said city, on Thursday, September 4, 1896, of peritonitis, resulting from a wound from a pistol shot in the hand of one William O'Neill, an officer of the St. Paul Police, who was shot at on Wednesday morning, September 3, 1896, at or near the corner of Seventh and Broadway streets in the said city of St. Paul, Minn.

The coroner's jury summoned by Coroner Whitcomb to inquire into the death of McDonough, returned the following verdict yesterday afternoon:

That Martin McDonough came to his death in the city of St. Paul at the county hospital of the said city, on Thursday, September 4, 1896, of peritonitis, resulting from a wound from a pistol shot in the hand of one William O'Neill, an officer of the St. Paul Police, who was shot at on Wednesday morning, September 3, 1896, at or near the corner of Seventh and Broadway streets in the said city of St. Paul, Minn.

The coroner's jury summoned by Coroner Whitcomb to inquire into the death of McDonough, returned the following verdict yesterday afternoon:

That Martin McDonough came to his death in the city of St. Paul at the county hospital of the said city, on Thursday, September 4, 1896, of peritonitis, resulting from a wound from a pistol shot in the hand of one William O'Neill, an officer of the St. Paul Police, who was shot at on Wednesday morning, September 3, 1896, at or near the corner of Seventh and Broadway streets in the said city of St. Paul, Minn.

The coroner's jury summoned by Coroner Whitcomb to inquire into the death of McDonough, returned the following verdict yesterday afternoon:

That Martin McDonough came to his death in the city of St. Paul at the county hospital of the said city, on Thursday, September 4, 1896, of peritonitis, resulting from a wound from a pistol shot in the hand of one William O'Neill, an officer of the St. Paul Police, who was shot at on Wednesday morning, September 3, 1896, at or near the corner of Seventh and Broadway streets in the said city of St. Paul, Minn.

The coroner's jury summoned by Coroner Whitcomb to inquire into the death of McDonough, returned the following verdict yesterday afternoon:

That Martin McDonough came to his death in the city of St. Paul at the county hospital of the said city, on Thursday, September 4, 1896, of peritonitis, resulting from a wound from a pistol shot in the hand of one William O'Neill, an officer of the St. Paul Police, who was shot at on Wednesday morning, September 3, 1896, at or near the corner of Seventh and Broadway streets in the said city of St. Paul, Minn.

The coroner's jury summoned by Coroner Whitcomb to inquire into the death of McDonough, returned the following verdict yesterday afternoon:

That Martin McDonough came to his death in the city of St. Paul at the county hospital of the said city, on Thursday, September 4, 1896, of peritonitis, resulting from a wound from a pistol shot in the hand of one William O'Neill, an officer of the St. Paul Police, who was shot at on Wednesday morning, September 3, 1896, at or near the corner of Seventh and Broadway streets in the said city of St. Paul, Minn.

CHARGE IS MURDER

ON WHICH WILLIAM O'NEILL, THE SUSPENDED PATROLMAN, WILL BE ARRaigned.

CORONERS INQUEST HELD.

JURY FINDS McDONOUGH'S DEATH RESULTED FROM A GUN-SHOT WOUND.

COURT TO DECIDE THE BLAME.

The Dead Man's Brother Swears Out the Warrant—Made in the Second Degree.

Committee on License Again Discuss Acceptable Sureties.

William O'Neill, the suspended patrolman who shot Martin McDonough, whom he had arrested, causing his death, will be formally charged with murder in the second degree today.

The coroner's jury summoned by Coroner Whitcomb to inquire into the death of McDonough, returned the following verdict yesterday afternoon:

That Martin McDonough came to his death in the city of St. Paul at the county hospital of the said city, on Thursday, September 4, 1896, of peritonitis, resulting from a wound from a pistol shot in the hand of one William O'Neill, an officer of the St. Paul Police, who was shot at on Wednesday morning, September 3, 1896, at or near the corner of Seventh and Broadway streets in the said city of St. Paul, Minn.

The coroner's jury summoned by Coroner Whitcomb to inquire into the death of McDonough, returned the following verdict yesterday afternoon:

That Martin McDonough came to his death in the city of St. Paul at the county hospital of the said city, on Thursday, September 4, 1896, of peritonitis, resulting from a wound from a pistol shot in the hand of one William O'Neill, an officer of the St. Paul Police, who was shot at on Wednesday morning, September 3, 1896, at or near the corner of Seventh and Broadway streets in the said city of St. Paul, Minn.

The coroner's jury summoned by Coroner Whitcomb to inquire into the death of McDonough, returned the following verdict yesterday afternoon:

That Martin McDonough came to his death in the city of St. Paul at the county hospital of the said city, on Thursday, September 4, 1896, of peritonitis, resulting from a wound from a pistol shot in the hand of one William O'Neill, an officer of the St. Paul Police, who was shot at on Wednesday morning, September 3, 1896, at or near the corner of Seventh and Broadway streets in the said city of St. Paul, Minn.

The coroner's jury summoned by Coroner Whitcomb to inquire into the death of McDonough, returned the following verdict yesterday afternoon:

That Martin McDonough came to his death in the city of St. Paul at the county hospital of the said city, on Thursday, September 4, 1896, of peritonitis, resulting from a wound from a pistol shot in the hand of one William O'Neill, an officer of the St. Paul Police, who was shot at on Wednesday morning, September 3, 1896, at or near the corner of Seventh and Broadway streets in the said city of St. Paul, Minn.

The coroner's jury summoned by Coroner Whitcomb to inquire into the death of McDonough, returned the following verdict yesterday afternoon:

That Martin McDonough came to his death in the city of St. Paul at the county hospital of the said city, on Thursday, September 4, 1896, of peritonitis, resulting from a wound from a pistol shot in the hand of one William O'Neill, an officer of the St. Paul Police, who was shot at on Wednesday morning, September 3, 1896, at or near the corner of Seventh and Broadway streets in the said city of St. Paul, Minn.

The coroner's jury summoned by Coroner Whitcomb to inquire into the death of McDonough, returned the following verdict yesterday afternoon:

That Martin McDonough came to his death in the city of St. Paul at the county hospital of the said city, on Thursday, September 4, 1896, of peritonitis, resulting from a wound from a pistol shot in the hand of one William O'Neill, an officer of the St. Paul Police, who was shot at on Wednesday morning, September 3, 1896, at or near the corner of Seventh and Broadway streets in the said city of St. Paul, Minn.

The coroner's jury summoned by Coroner Whitcomb to inquire into the death of McDonough, returned the following verdict yesterday afternoon:

That Martin McDonough came to his death in the city of St. Paul at the county hospital of the said city, on Thursday, September 4, 1896, of peritonitis, resulting from a wound from a pistol shot in the hand of one William O'Neill, an officer of the St. Paul Police, who was shot at on Wednesday morning, September 3, 1896, at or near the corner of Seventh and Broadway streets in the said city of St. Paul, Minn.

The coroner's jury summoned by Coroner Whitcomb to inquire into the death of McDonough, returned the following verdict yesterday afternoon:

That Martin McDonough came to his death in the city of St. Paul at the county hospital of the said city, on Thursday, September 4, 1896, of peritonitis, resulting from a wound from a pistol shot in the hand of one William O'Neill, an officer of the St. Paul Police, who was shot at on Wednesday morning, September 3, 1896, at or near the corner of Seventh and Broadway streets in the said city of St. Paul, Minn.

The coroner's jury summoned by Coroner Whitcomb to inquire into the death of McDonough, returned the following verdict yesterday afternoon:

That Martin McDonough came to his death in the city of St. Paul at the county hospital of the said city, on Thursday, September 4, 1896, of peritonitis, resulting from a wound from a pistol shot in the hand of one William O'Neill, an officer of the St. Paul Police, who was shot at on Wednesday morning, September 3, 1896, at or near the corner of Seventh and Broadway streets in the said city of St. Paul, Minn.

The coroner's jury summoned by Coroner Whitcomb to inquire into the death of McDonough, returned the following verdict yesterday afternoon:

That Martin McDonough came to his death in the city of St. Paul at the county hospital of the said city, on Thursday, September 4, 1896, of peritonitis, resulting from a wound from a pistol shot in the hand of one William O'Neill, an officer of the St. Paul Police, who was shot at on Wednesday morning, September 3, 1896, at or near the corner of Seventh and Broadway streets in the said city of St. Paul, Minn.

The coroner's jury summoned by Coroner Whitcomb to inquire into the death of McDonough, returned the following verdict yesterday afternoon:

That Martin McDonough came to his death in the city of St. Paul at the county hospital of the said city, on Thursday, September 4, 1896, of peritonitis, resulting from a wound from a pistol shot in the hand of one William O'Neill, an officer of the St. Paul Police, who was shot at on Wednesday morning, September 3, 1896, at or near the corner of Seventh and Broadway streets in the said city of St. Paul, Minn.

The coroner's jury summoned by Coroner Whitcomb to inquire into the death of McDonough, returned the following verdict yesterday afternoon:

That Martin McDonough came to his death in the city of St. Paul at the county hospital of the said city, on Thursday, September 4, 1896, of peritonitis, resulting from a wound from a pistol shot in the hand of one William O'Neill, an officer of the St. Paul Police, who was shot at on Wednesday morning, September 3, 1896, at or near the corner of Seventh and Broadway streets in the said city of St. Paul, Minn.

NEW YEAR'S CELEBRATION.

Rabbi Hess Conducts Another Impressive Service at Zion Temple.

Zion Temple was again crowded, yesterday morning, when the services in connection with the celebration of the Jewish New Year were resumed. Services of an impressive character were conducted by Rabbi Hess chanting them, while a congregation joined in the closing words of each successive invocation.

In the interval between the prayers, the choir, under the leadership of Prof. Colville, sang a number of sacred selections, some in Hebrew, some in English.

The removal of the sacred scrolls from the tabernacle is attended with much ceremony, commencing with the solemnity of the occasion. Then follows the reading of the sacred scrolls, the rabbi bending low to catch the sacred words, while his attendants hold the rolls open.

In his sermon, Rabbi Hess extended his congratulations to those present on the advent of the New Year.

"We are celebrating the day of Memorials," he said. "According to the dictionary, a memorial is the presentation of certain facts accompanied by a petition. Let us examine the facts of our lives in the past, domestic and religious relations.

"Like migratory birds, so do the sons of Israel find their way to their temples this morning. The New Year's station is the main station in our social life. A retrospect of our lives will develop many facts we have reason to be thankful for and many facts we have cause to regret.

How many of us have been regarded as gift-edged in the commercial community have gone down to failure and ruin? How many of us would go to undo the wrongs of the past twenty years. We realize the consequences of our follies when it is too late to correct them.

"In our social conditions we are not much better off. Somehow the old prejudices against the Jewish race, like Banquo's ghost, will not go down. We are a small, isolated people, the population of the world—scarcely 3 per cent—but still we hold a position, by virtue of our habits, customs and industry, which bring us into contact with the jealousy of the part of our neighbors. And yet I much prefer envy to pity.

It is lamentable to say that the very traits of character that should recommend us to our fellow-men are our enemies. Fanaticism, bigotry and prejudice still hold sway, but very frequently this very prejudice is a blessing in disguise, as it serves to remind us that we are Jews.

"A word as to our domestic relations. Everything that is noble and good is embodied in the word home, but how often do we allow discontent and rancor to enter that sacred place. It was not always thus. The homes of our fathers—O, how different! It was sanctified by the presence of the home, who laid their hands in blessing upon the heads of the children. I can recall the Friday evenings, the table finally prepared and young and old enjoying themselves in the warm glow of a mother went down to their graves, they did so contentedly, knowing that the children who were to fill their places had grown up in reverence and love of parental authority.

"But the old reverence is no more. Our modern culture has lost sight of the good old ways. Now our young people are being reared in a world of instrumental music, and the splendor of a word on the part of even their pastor.

"In the religious life we have much to be thankful for. In the last half century a remarkable revolution has taken place in the realm of thought. Popular education, the telegraph, telephone, steam, electricity, have given a new impetus to human progress, while all churches, based on creed and dogma, have been shaken from pit to dome, Judaism, freed from stereotyped creeds, has gained by these searching criticisms. We are a more enlightened people than eight millions in number, we, the despised, hated and persecuted, are admitted to have exercised a mighty influence on the religious and social status of the world.

HINTS FOR FAIR MANAGERS. Secretary Hutchins Thinks Crippled Musicians Should be Suppressed.

M. L. Hutchins, secretary of the Relief League, speaking about the people playing music for alms at the fair grounds, said yesterday:

"On visiting the fair grounds I was struck by the number of blind people sitting on the sidewalk playing music for alms. My attention having been called first to a woman and her children, one quite small sitting in her mother's lap, I went to inquire who she was and where she came from, as she did not appear to be one of our people. She gave her name as Mrs. Sams, and her residence 323 Fourteenth avenue, Minneapolis, and said she had six children and was obliged to take these little ones and her husband's father to run a business. She might secure money to take care of the large family—she being a widow.

The next person I saw was a deformed man, giving his name Ed Frances, living at 47 West Erie street, Chicago, who was grinding a small organ.

Following along the main line we encountered Van Allen Bennett, who was in a peculiar posture, on his knees with his head thrown back, giving the public the idea that he was solemnly engaged in prayer. He was evidently manipulating a small musette, and gave his address 89 North avenue, Chicago.

We observed still another, whose familiar figure I had noticed for a number of years at the fair grounds, the man who exposes to the public gaze a deformed hand, and the fact of his exhibiting himself should be permitted, and hope that the management another season will prevent it."

NOT FOR FIRE RELIEF. But For Maintenance, Is the State Insurance Tax.

City Treasurer Horst received from the state insurance commissioner yesterday, the sum of $1,257, which represents St. Paul's share of the retaliatory tax on foreign insurance companies, collected during the years 1892, 1893, 1894 and 1895. This money is credited to the first department fund. The Firemen's Relief association formerly claimed the right to receive the money raised from this source, but Attorney General Childs decided that under the law it must be devoted to the maintenance of the fire departments in the various cities of the state. The money paid to City Treasurer Horst yesterday, the first ever received from this source.

WANTS A CHECKER GAME. Pennsylvania Veterans Would Play a Local Fight.

H. H. Wilson, of Fayette county, Penn., one of the veterans who attended the recent encampment, and who is the guest of his son, L. B. Wilson, at 212 Milwaukee avenue, Merriam Park, wants to meet the Pennsylvania veterans in a friendly checker contest. Thursday night, best three games in five. Mr. Wilson is one of the best players in the state. He is a Democrat and was in arms at the time of the war in another sense, and he is willing to represent Bryan in the contest. He is confident that if Mr. Bryan's election depended on the result of these checker games, it would be a cinch.

WANTS A CHECKER GAME. Pennsylvania Veterans Would Play a Local Fight.

H. H. Wilson, of Fayette county, Penn., one of the veterans who attended the recent encampment, and who is the guest of his son, L. B. Wilson, at 212 Milwaukee avenue, Merriam Park, wants to meet the Pennsylvania veterans in