

ALTGELD ON HONOR

REPLY TO THE SPEECHES OF SCHURZ AND BURKE COCKRAN.

HE IS AFTER A REMEDY.

ILLINOIS GOVERNOR SAYS ONE IS OFFERED ONLY BY THE SILVERITES.

FACTS AND FIGURES OF HIS OWN.

Presented to show that there is only one side to the silver problem.

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—Gov. John P. Altgeld spoke to a large audience at Central Music hall tonight, the address being intended to controvert the arguments made in Chicago by Carl Schurz and Bourke Cockran.

Gov. Altgeld, in opening his remarks, referred to the speeches of Bourke Cockran and Carl Schurz delivered in Chicago, saying that neither offered any remedy for the present financial distress in this country.

They have no remedy to suggest, but they strenuously object to permitting the people to do anything towards helping themselves.

The fact is, there is not enough money in this country at present to do its business. In all of the agricultural sections, the Mississippi valley and the West, there is the greatest scarcity of money.

The main fabric of the whole speech of Mr. Schurz is based upon the theory of overproduction. He insists that there is a fall in the price of silver and that this is due to overproduction.

credit for being the only man in the world who made the discovery that the panic of 1857 was brought about by the cause he named.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

What a fall is in patriotism and American pride in the United States and in the world, when the government is so ready to support the government, for this was not needed to support the government.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

What a fall is in patriotism and American pride in the United States and in the world, when the government is so ready to support the government, for this was not needed to support the government.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

What a fall is in patriotism and American pride in the United States and in the world, when the government is so ready to support the government, for this was not needed to support the government.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

What a fall is in patriotism and American pride in the United States and in the world, when the government is so ready to support the government, for this was not needed to support the government.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

What a fall is in patriotism and American pride in the United States and in the world, when the government is so ready to support the government, for this was not needed to support the government.

made a long and full report, and it showed that between 1850 and 1857 the money he gave about doubled, and then the report says: "After 1857 there was a falling off."

Both Mr. Schurz and Mr. Cockran treat the whole subject of falling prices as if it were simply a scramble between different buyers between the seller and buyer.

Mr. Schurz attributes the panic of 1857 to the fact that, as he says: "The grave doubt arising in the public mind whether the government would be able to maintain the gold standard."

They have no remedy to suggest, but they strenuously object to permitting the people to do anything towards helping themselves.

The fact is, there is not enough money in this country at present to do its business. In all of the agricultural sections, the Mississippi valley and the West, there is the greatest scarcity of money.

The main fabric of the whole speech of Mr. Schurz is based upon the theory of overproduction. He insists that there is a fall in the price of silver and that this is due to overproduction.

credit for being the only man in the world who made the discovery that the panic of 1857 was brought about by the cause he named.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

What a fall is in patriotism and American pride in the United States and in the world, when the government is so ready to support the government, for this was not needed to support the government.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

What a fall is in patriotism and American pride in the United States and in the world, when the government is so ready to support the government, for this was not needed to support the government.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

What a fall is in patriotism and American pride in the United States and in the world, when the government is so ready to support the government, for this was not needed to support the government.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

What a fall is in patriotism and American pride in the United States and in the world, when the government is so ready to support the government, for this was not needed to support the government.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

What a fall is in patriotism and American pride in the United States and in the world, when the government is so ready to support the government, for this was not needed to support the government.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

buy as much property of any and every kind, and the laboring men will cease to be high-spirited, free men, who are proud of their citizenship, and they will sink to a lower status.

Both Mr. Schurz and Mr. Cockran treat the whole subject of falling prices as if it were simply a scramble between different buyers between the seller and buyer.

Mr. Schurz attributes the panic of 1857 to the fact that, as he says: "The grave doubt arising in the public mind whether the government would be able to maintain the gold standard."

They have no remedy to suggest, but they strenuously object to permitting the people to do anything towards helping themselves.

The fact is, there is not enough money in this country at present to do its business. In all of the agricultural sections, the Mississippi valley and the West, there is the greatest scarcity of money.

The main fabric of the whole speech of Mr. Schurz is based upon the theory of overproduction. He insists that there is a fall in the price of silver and that this is due to overproduction.

credit for being the only man in the world who made the discovery that the panic of 1857 was brought about by the cause he named.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

What a fall is in patriotism and American pride in the United States and in the world, when the government is so ready to support the government, for this was not needed to support the government.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

What a fall is in patriotism and American pride in the United States and in the world, when the government is so ready to support the government, for this was not needed to support the government.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

What a fall is in patriotism and American pride in the United States and in the world, when the government is so ready to support the government, for this was not needed to support the government.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

What a fall is in patriotism and American pride in the United States and in the world, when the government is so ready to support the government, for this was not needed to support the government.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

What a fall is in patriotism and American pride in the United States and in the world, when the government is so ready to support the government, for this was not needed to support the government.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

charges. Our farmers, our mechanics and our laboring men will cease to be high-spirited, free men, who are proud of their citizenship, and they will sink to a lower status.

Both Mr. Schurz and Mr. Cockran treat the whole subject of falling prices as if it were simply a scramble between different buyers between the seller and buyer.

Mr. Schurz attributes the panic of 1857 to the fact that, as he says: "The grave doubt arising in the public mind whether the government would be able to maintain the gold standard."

They have no remedy to suggest, but they strenuously object to permitting the people to do anything towards helping themselves.

The fact is, there is not enough money in this country at present to do its business. In all of the agricultural sections, the Mississippi valley and the West, there is the greatest scarcity of money.

The main fabric of the whole speech of Mr. Schurz is based upon the theory of overproduction. He insists that there is a fall in the price of silver and that this is due to overproduction.

credit for being the only man in the world who made the discovery that the panic of 1857 was brought about by the cause he named.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

What a fall is in patriotism and American pride in the United States and in the world, when the government is so ready to support the government, for this was not needed to support the government.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

What a fall is in patriotism and American pride in the United States and in the world, when the government is so ready to support the government, for this was not needed to support the government.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

What a fall is in patriotism and American pride in the United States and in the world, when the government is so ready to support the government, for this was not needed to support the government.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

What a fall is in patriotism and American pride in the United States and in the world, when the government is so ready to support the government, for this was not needed to support the government.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

What a fall is in patriotism and American pride in the United States and in the world, when the government is so ready to support the government, for this was not needed to support the government.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

charges. Our farmers, our mechanics and our laboring men will cease to be high-spirited, free men, who are proud of their citizenship, and they will sink to a lower status.

Both Mr. Schurz and Mr. Cockran treat the whole subject of falling prices as if it were simply a scramble between different buyers between the seller and buyer.

Mr. Schurz attributes the panic of 1857 to the fact that, as he says: "The grave doubt arising in the public mind whether the government would be able to maintain the gold standard."

They have no remedy to suggest, but they strenuously object to permitting the people to do anything towards helping themselves.

The fact is, there is not enough money in this country at present to do its business. In all of the agricultural sections, the Mississippi valley and the West, there is the greatest scarcity of money.

The main fabric of the whole speech of Mr. Schurz is based upon the theory of overproduction. He insists that there is a fall in the price of silver and that this is due to overproduction.

credit for being the only man in the world who made the discovery that the panic of 1857 was brought about by the cause he named.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

What a fall is in patriotism and American pride in the United States and in the world, when the government is so ready to support the government, for this was not needed to support the government.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

What a fall is in patriotism and American pride in the United States and in the world, when the government is so ready to support the government, for this was not needed to support the government.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

What a fall is in patriotism and American pride in the United States and in the world, when the government is so ready to support the government, for this was not needed to support the government.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

What a fall is in patriotism and American pride in the United States and in the world, when the government is so ready to support the government, for this was not needed to support the government.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

What a fall is in patriotism and American pride in the United States and in the world, when the government is so ready to support the government, for this was not needed to support the government.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

charges. Our farmers, our mechanics and our laboring men will cease to be high-spirited, free men, who are proud of their citizenship, and they will sink to a lower status.

Both Mr. Schurz and Mr. Cockran treat the whole subject of falling prices as if it were simply a scramble between different buyers between the seller and buyer.

Mr. Schurz attributes the panic of 1857 to the fact that, as he says: "The grave doubt arising in the public mind whether the government would be able to maintain the gold standard."

They have no remedy to suggest, but they strenuously object to permitting the people to do anything towards helping themselves.

The fact is, there is not enough money in this country at present to do its business. In all of the agricultural sections, the Mississippi valley and the West, there is the greatest scarcity of money.

The main fabric of the whole speech of Mr. Schurz is based upon the theory of overproduction. He insists that there is a fall in the price of silver and that this is due to overproduction.

credit for being the only man in the world who made the discovery that the panic of 1857 was brought about by the cause he named.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

What a fall is in patriotism and American pride in the United States and in the world, when the government is so ready to support the government, for this was not needed to support the government.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

What a fall is in patriotism and American pride in the United States and in the world, when the government is so ready to support the government, for this was not needed to support the government.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

What a fall is in patriotism and American pride in the United States and in the world, when the government is so ready to support the government, for this was not needed to support the government.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

What a fall is in patriotism and American pride in the United States and in the world, when the government is so ready to support the government, for this was not needed to support the government.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

What a fall is in patriotism and American pride in the United States and in the world, when the government is so ready to support the government, for this was not needed to support the government.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

charges. Our farmers, our mechanics and our laboring men will cease to be high-spirited, free men, who are proud of their citizenship, and they will sink to a lower status.

Both Mr. Schurz and Mr. Cockran treat the whole subject of falling prices as if it were simply a scramble between different buyers between the seller and buyer.

Mr. Schurz attributes the panic of 1857 to the fact that, as he says: "The grave doubt arising in the public mind whether the government would be able to maintain the gold standard."

They have no remedy to suggest, but they strenuously object to permitting the people to do anything towards helping themselves.

The fact is, there is not enough money in this country at present to do its business. In all of the agricultural sections, the Mississippi valley and the West, there is the greatest scarcity of money.

The main fabric of the whole speech of Mr. Schurz is based upon the theory of overproduction. He insists that there is a fall in the price of silver and that this is due to overproduction.

credit for being the only man in the world who made the discovery that the panic of 1857 was brought about by the cause he named.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

What a fall is in patriotism and American pride in the United States and in the world, when the government is so ready to support the government, for this was not needed to support the government.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

What a fall is in patriotism and American pride in the United States and in the world, when the government is so ready to support the government, for this was not needed to support the government.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

What a fall is in patriotism and American pride in the United States and in the world, when the government is so ready to support the government, for this was not needed to support the government.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

What a fall is in patriotism and American pride in the United States and in the world, when the government is so ready to support the government, for this was not needed to support the government.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

What a fall is in patriotism and American pride in the United States and in the world, when the government is so ready to support the government, for this was not needed to support the government.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

JEWEL STOVES AND RANGES. THE END OF A stove troubles is indicated by the above trade mark. For over 30 years "Jewels" have been the recognized standard of stove excellence. We show on our floors the entire line of "Jewels" in all their peerless magnificence. Prices no higher than second and third-rate Stoves elsewhere.

NEW ENGLAND Furniture and Carpet Co. THE ONE-PRICE COMPLETE HOUSEFURNISHERS. 434-436 Wabasha Street, ST. PAUL. Send 10 cents for postage on our Mammoth Catalogue of Housefurnishings.

BISHOP MARTY DEAD. NOTED HEAD OF THE ST. CLOUD. SEE SUDDENLY CALLED TO A HIGHER HOME. Bishop Marty was in the sixty-seventh year of his age. His death was a complication of diseases, from which he has been suffering for some time past.

FAITHFUL IN CHURCH WORK. SUCCESSFUL IN YEARS OF MISSIONARY WORK AMONG THE INDIANS. FUSION IN RED WOOD. Democrats Name Their Half-Ticket.—County Conventions.

ST. CLOUD, Minn., Sept. 19.—Rev. Martin Marty, bishop of the diocese of St. Cloud, who was appointed to this see two years ago to succeed Bishop Zandetti, died this morning at 9:35. Although in delicate health for some time, he had been attending to the duties of his holy office almost up to the day of his demise, and as late as last Thursday had made a trip to Luxembourg, this county.

Albert Lea, Minn., Sept. 19.—The last legislative convention to be held in Freeborn county took place today and the free silverites put up a full legislative and county ticket. L. P. Lawson and George Miller, two farmers, were named for the legislature.

WATER TOWN, S. D., Sept. 19.—The free silver forces of this county in convention today elected the following ticket: State senator, Geo. A. Keenan, Democrat; representatives, John W. Martin, Democrat; James McLaren, silverite; J. M. Sanford, Democrat; William Glendinning, Democrat; treasurer, William Currens, silver Republican; register of deeds, Oscar Ustrud, Populist; sheriff, Charles Gedford, county attorney, C. J. O'Brien, Populist; clerk of court, J. H. Grunstedt, Populist; county judge, John Nicholson, silver Republican.

WATER TOWN, S. D., Sept. 19.—The free silver forces of this county in convention today elected the following ticket: State senator, Geo. A. Keenan, Democrat; representatives, John W. Martin, Democrat; James McLaren, silverite; J. M. Sanford, Democrat; William Glendinning, Democrat; treasurer, William Currens, silver Republican; register of deeds, Oscar Ustrud, Populist; sheriff, Charles Gedford, county attorney, C. J. O'Brien, Populist; clerk of court, J. H. Grunstedt, Populist; county judge, John Nicholson, silver Republican.

WATER TOWN, S. D., Sept. 19.—The free silver forces of this county in convention today elected the following ticket: State senator, Geo. A. Keenan, Democrat; representatives, John W. Martin, Democrat; James McLaren, silverite; J. M. Sanford, Democrat; William Glendinning, Democrat; treasurer, William Currens, silver Republican; register of deeds, Oscar Ustrud, Populist; sheriff, Charles Gedford, county attorney, C. J. O'Brien, Populist; clerk of court, J. H. Grunstedt, Populist; county judge, John Nicholson, silver Republican.

WATER TOWN, S. D., Sept. 19.—The free silver forces of this county in convention today elected the following ticket: State senator, Geo. A. Keenan, Democrat; representatives, John W. Martin, Democrat; James McLaren, silverite; J. M. Sanford, Democrat; William Glendinning, Democrat; treasurer, William Currens, silver Republican; register of deeds, Oscar Ustrud, Populist; sheriff, Charles Gedford, county attorney, C. J. O'Brien, Populist; clerk of court, J. H. Grunstedt, Populist; county judge, John Nicholson, silver Republican.

WATER TOWN, S. D., Sept. 19.—The free silver forces of this county in convention today elected the following ticket: State senator, Geo. A. Keenan, Democrat; representatives, John W. Martin, Democrat; James McLaren, silverite; J. M. Sanford, Democrat; William Glendinning, Democrat; treasurer, William Currens, silver Republican; register of deeds, Oscar Ustrud, Populist; sheriff, Charles Gedford, county attorney, C. J. O'Brien, Populist; clerk of court, J. H. Grunstedt, Populist; county judge, John Nicholson, silver Republican.

JOHN BOYD THATCHER, OF ALBANY.

books printed in early times. In 1833 he was elected to the state senate and two years ran successfully for the majority of Albany, of which he was a leading citizen.

evidence of degeneration of American manhood as we have recently seen. In 1776 less than 5,000,000 men who were poor and even despised by the world, declared that they were not only free, but that they were independent of every other nation on the globe.

What a fall is in patriotism and American pride in the United States and in the world, when the government is so ready to support the government, for this was not needed to support the government.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

What a fall is in patriotism and American pride in the United States and in the world, when the government is so ready to support the government, for this was not needed to support the government.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

What a fall is in patriotism and American pride in the United States and in the world, when the government is so ready to support the government, for this was not needed to support the government.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

What a fall is in patriotism and American pride in the United States and in the world, when the government is so ready to support the government, for this was not needed to support the government.

But perhaps the strangest part of the speech is that which emphatically indorses and commends the bond issuing policy of the present administration.

What a fall is in patriotism and American pride in the United States and in the world, when the government is so ready to support the government, for this was not needed to support the government.

Ice Cream Soda, with Pure Fruit Syrups, at 3 Cents a Glass. Cream Caramels, fresh made on Monday, will sell for two days at 16 Cts Per Pound. Fancy California Peaches, half-bushel boxes, fine goods, at 75 Cents Box. Fancy Cranberries at 6 Cts Per Quart.

The smallest grain of aniline will color a ton of wine. A man of genius will do what a million of men will not do. Dr. Pierce's Wonderful Free Book. The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser. Will be sent paper-bound, for twenty-one cents in one-cent stamps to pay the cost of mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. For handsome, durable cloth covers, beautifully stamped, send ten cents and thirty-one cents in stamps to pay extra cost for this style of binding.