

compared with that which hurls a mighty and prosperous nation into the depths we are now grooving in. If we would honor ourselves, let us see to it that the citizen is not oppressed by class legislation nor lifted up by it. If we do that we will be lifted up in the eyes of the world. I know of no parallel that will compare with the present situation better than that of a man standing in the midst of a cyclone and declaring that the cyclone should be the wind standard, and that the gentle zephyr standard should not be ours because such a standard was not used in Europe. We know it is this new money system that has brought this ruin upon us. The advocates of this system is to be prosecuted here tonight. You will be the jury, the orator of the evening, the prosecutor. I am sure you will convict the criminal and that you will fix the date of the execution at Nov. 3. And I know of none so fit to preside at the execution than William J. Bryan. The chief mourners upon that occasion will be the combines and monopolies of the country, and I know of no greater mourner, who should be in the van, than Mr. Hobart's great coal combine.

A male quartette roused the audience to another burst of enthusiasm by relating in melody the merits of "The Jolly Singing Silver Dollar of Our Dads." Every verse was applauded and the singers were obliged to repeat their performance.

If it had been Bryan instead of Allen the crowd couldn't have been noisier or more demonstrative when the tall Nebraska was introduced. It was a magnificent ovation, hearty and genuine. The speaker said in part:

"I did not suppose, from reading the gold press, there were so many free silver men in the Northwest. I want to say to you old soldiers, as a soldier this hated party, to assist in legislating for the nation. I was made to feel the contempt and dislike the members of old parties had for my party. They used to say we Populists preached anarchy in our discussions, whereas we were only insisting upon the destruction of the gold trust and the salvation of the people. Now the American people are arousing to the danger, and the Populists are not the only anarchists. Most of the Democrats have become anarchists, and such distinguished Republicans as Senator Teller have joined the ranks of the feared and hated People's party. But don't be backward, brethren. Don't be frightened so long as they shoot words at you. I remember when Abraham Lincoln was elected, but five years later he had freed four million human beings from slavery and his name is today the highest and proudest in the land.

"The gold advocates say to you that William J. Bryan is too young to be your president. They say he is no lawyer, that he is a demagogue. I say to you that he is an honest, God-fearing man, and is the most popular and best orator that has been before the people since the days of Daniel Webster. You will lift him to the presidency. He will be the most fitting candidate presented for popular suffrage since the days of Abraham Lincoln.

"I shall say nothing unkind of Mr. McKinley. He is a good man and would make a good president, no doubt, but for the company he keeps. Money was used to secure his nomination—money spent by the corporations and the money trusts. But the nomination at Chicago was not secured by the use of money. Mr. Bryan did not seek the nomination—it came to him from the nation. If the government should turn over to the banks the power to expand and contract the money of the country, the result would be speedy ruin. The panic of 1893 was brought about by the banks which refused to allow their deposits to get into circulation. Previous to that time we had a fair degree of prosperity, and here we are, a living example of the power of bank credit. The banks expanded or contracted their funds at pleasure, and the prosperity of 70,000,000 people was in the control of 4,000 or 5,000 bankers.

"Why not have money in circulation instead of bank credit? Money in plenty maintains the credit of the nation, controlled only by the nation? It is the purpose of the gold power to force the money of the country in the hands of the money power, a power that will cause a continuance of hard times.

"If there is not gold enough, I prefer to coin silver rather than borrow British gold. They tell us silver has not been demonetized. Silver had been demonetized and the money of the government down to 1873. It was in the markets at a premium over gold. Only a few more than 8,000,000 of the standard silver dollars were coined up to that time. It was the money conference held at Paris, and which John Sherman attended, that demonetized silver. By the action of that conference, adopted in the United States, the money function was taken away from silver. The silver was constitutional, for the constitution recognizes silver as well as gold as the national money, and congress had no right to strike it down. Now, let us demonetize it and increase our basic money one half, and when we fail to have enough, let us issue fiat paper note to perform the function of money. The gold bugs say such demonetization would be repudiation, that the silver dollar would be worth only 33 cents. They tell us our widows would be paid our life insurance money in 50 cent dollars, that labor would receive 50 cent dollars for wages. No man in the nation wants to evade payment of his debts. I want to tell you that there is any power on earth that would make our money worth 33 cents. The same British money power. When I was a boy I was taught that ten mills made a cent, ten cents made a dime, ten dimes one dollar and it didn't say gold dollar, either. Mr. Hanna may have changed the arithmetic since my time.

"What would happen if silver should be taken to the mints to be coined without restriction? Every man who had silver bullion could take it to the mints and receive full value in coin for it. Every man who had 42 1/2 grains of silver, the commercial value of which is less than $1, could take it to the mints and have it coined into one dollar. No man would foolishly sell his bullion for less than he could get for it at the mint. Our enemies tell us the dollar would be worth only 33 cents, but in the next breath say the silver miners would make 47 cents on every dollar. They appeal to the courts to force us the silver miner would make money by free coinage. They forget the miners are American citizens, that they have millions invested in the mines, and the money under free coinage, it is but their good fortune and due. Suppose they should tell us that free silver should be coined, that the silver mine and the laborer would be benefited? Yet that is the fallacy of their argument.

"But as an illiterate ignorant Populist, I cannot see where the silver miner is to make this 47 cents. The dollar will be worth one hundred cents, the miner can make one no better, he must pay it out at the same value. They tell us they want international bimetalism, but they forget that if bimetalism is wrong as the nation, it is fourfold wrong that such a system should be imposed upon the world. I tell you, the moment this government declares for free coinage, it will go to $1.25. The seal of the government stamp will create the value.

"The gold bugs say if you open the mints to free coinage, the foreign countries will dump their silver upon us, flooding us with cheap and worthless money. If a man should throw a silver dollar into the sea, he would be your yard, would you have him arrested? I say let them send their silver. And if they should, if all the combined silver in the world were dumped upon us, we should only have about $55 a head. We have now bank credit to the amount of $30, and we used to have more than we had the money instead of the credit.

"Such arguments may frighten some people, but I tell you that a prospect of free coinage in the world, if the circulation will not frighten a silver miner, Republican figures, printed in 1882, show that European silver is coined at a rate of 15 and 1/2 to 1 gold. No man in transportation by extraction of alloy by abrasion, according to this same Republican argument, will result in a loss of 32 cents on each foreign dollar. But suppose all this foreign silver should be brought here and coined at a loss, what will be done with it? Take it to the treasury and get gold for it? No, there's no law rule for the redemption of silver with gold. If the American dollars be taken back to the land from whence the silver came, they become bullion again three miles from our shores. But these dollars might be invested in our goods, in building factories, in improving lands, in supporting our unemployed men, in providing food for hungry women, buy shoes for naked feet—that's what would happen if free coinage were adopted in the world, and I say let the dumping process begin."

Referring to the Mexican question, Senator Allen declared that the starving millions of the United States, who are living on labor organizations. Laborers are not coming to this country from Mexico, but hundreds and thousands of Americans are going to Mexico, where there is enormous improvement and development in the railway building and in industrial lines. Salaries paid to skilled American laborers are higher than that paid for the same service in America. England is not dumping silver on Mexico, though free coinage is Mexico's standard. There can be no comparison between Mexico and the United States, not in the matter of the nation. Mexico is prosperous, but no more enlightened under free silver. The United States, with all her advantages in civilization, in banking, in commerce, in industry, in the spirit of patriotism that broke the chains of British despotism in 1776 will again manifest itself this year, when the people arise and show their might by driving the English money power from the country.

LITTLE JOE IS DEAD

LOMBARDO BOY PROVES THE SECOND VICTIM OF THE RABBIT DOG. NO CHANCES WILL BE TAKEN WITH THE OTHER VICTIM, WHO WAS TAKEN TO CHICAGO LAST NIGHT FOR THE PASTEUR TREATMENT.

Although, as yet, she has developed no symptoms of the terrible Malady.

Little Joseph Lombardo died yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock of hydrophobia. As announced in the Globe yesterday morning, both Drs. Sweeney and O'Brien had stated that there was no question as to the lad being a victim to the dreaded disease, and that his death was but a question of a few hours. At noon yesterday, the physicians visited the boy and found him much worse. The symptoms of rabies were pronounced that those of the medical profession who had been somewhat sceptical about the nature of the lad's illness, needed only a glance at the little sufferer to convince them that it was a case of hydrophobia. He had convulsions at irregular intervals, was in a semi-comatose condition, and exhibited all the symptoms which are set forth in the books as accompanying the last stages of rabies. The parents of the lad, who had been sent by Sister Bernadine from St. Joseph's hospital, did what she could for the dying child. Convulsions followed each other in rapid succession, and the slight body of the child tossed from side to side. The little crib to which he was confined, became more frequent. He threw back his head and spasms in his throat and chest were so intense as seemingly to lift his frame from the bed. There was nothing in the way of medical aid which could relieve him, and from 1 until 4 o'clock, he suffered untold agony. During the last few hours of his life, he was unconscious and suffered but little. Dr. Sweeney arrived at the cottage a few moments after he had passed away, and on taking the temperature of the body, found it 105, which, according to the statements of the doctor, is an extraordinary high temperature for a child of the age of the lad. The death of Amelia Branch and the Lombardo child, under circumstances, such as their face give positive evidence, that the cause was none other than hydrophobia, has resulted in the authorities taking steps to, if possible, save the life of Jennie Shafer, who was bitten by the same dog which attacked the two other victims.

In the afternoon the matter was laid before the board of control. County Attorney Butler and Assistant Corporation Attorney Phelan were sent for and Health Commissioner Sweeney and City Physician Ancker were also called. It was agreed by all that the child should be taken to Chicago at once. It was merely a question of what department or fund was properly chargeable with the expense of the trip. Butler and Sweeney agreed that the expense should not be payable either out of the board of control nor out of the health department, but that it should be paid from a common fund to be appropriated to the necessary amount to cover the expenses out of the general fund of the city.

Dr. Stone expressed himself very emphatically concerning the case. The doctor urged that there be no delay in getting the child to Chicago and submitting her to the Pasteur treatment. Furthermore, Dr. Stone expressed the opinion that the city should be held liable in damages in case of the death of the child. It was agreed by all that the child should be taken to Chicago at once. It was merely a question of what department or fund was properly chargeable with the expense of the trip. Butler and Sweeney agreed that the expense should not be payable either out of the board of control nor out of the health department, but that it should be paid from a common fund to be appropriated to the necessary amount to cover the expenses out of the general fund of the city.

The Climax of Silk Selling.

Prices that tell their own story. Qualities that speak for themselves. A gathering of brand new Silks for Monday's selling that will take the town by storm.

FOR 12 1/2 CENTS. At 9 o'clock—not before—we will place on sale 2,000 yards of very best Kai Ki Wash Silks, in handsome styles of Stripes and Checks, at 12 1/2 cents a yard. To give you an idea of their cheapness, we need only tell you that they cost 22 cents a yard to import, and they're better than Silks advertised in town this season worth 39 cents.

Positively not more than 15 yards to one buyer.

FOR 19 CENTS. A little lot of short end Silks from last week's 29c, 38c and 40c tables—some of them worth 75c and 85c a yard. There are only about 200 yards in this lot, and they ought to go in less than a half hour. Ready at 9 o'clock.

Here's the Wonder of the Year: SILKS FOR 65 CENTS; Worth up to $2.00.

We made a great purchase of 208 pieces—nearly 10,000 yards—of Richest Novelty Silks from an importer who feared the result of the election. He lost his nerve and several thousand dollars at the same time. We hadn't lost our nerve, and we got the Silks. We could put them in regular stock and sell every yard before Dec. 1 at prices ranging from $1.25 to $2.00 a yard. But we prefer to sell them in a single week, at a very slight profit, at

- a yard. This is not a lot of carried-over stuff, but new, clean, fresh merchandise that any woman of taste and judgment will eagerly buy. These are the kinds:
- Heavy Colored Satin Duchesse,
 - Heavy Colored Satin Rhadamés,
 - Heavy Colored Crepe Cords,
 - Heavy Changeable Bengalines,
 - Plain Colored Taffetas,
 - Plain Changeable Satins—new combinations,
 - Plain Changeable Armures,
 - Plain Chameleon Satins in art shades,

 - Black Armures, 22 and 24 inches wide,
 - Black Taffetas, extra heavy, 27 inches wide,
 - Black Peau de Soies.
- These will be found on four large Center Tables at 9 o'clock—not before.
- Black Rustling Taffetas, 48 cents.
Changeable Rustle Taffetas, 48 cents.

New Dress Goods.

New Dress Goods were opened every day last week. There's a great advantage in buying your Dress Goods from an active stock. You find new goods every time you come. Not the same things week after week and month after month, but brand new weaves and designs, both in black and colors.

There's food for reflection in these statements. We could not receive quantities of New Goods every day for weeks unless we were selling quantities, and we would not be selling such quantities if our assortments were not better than any in town, and if our prices were not lower than any in town. It's not a matter of sentiment. It's purely a matter of business. People buy where they get the best returns for their money.

A few examples follow in single column:

- ### Note the Width of all Our Dress Goods.
- Fancy Novelty Suitings, warranted strictly all-wool. In all the fashionable color mixtures, 40 inches wide, for 50c who insisted from the state of Iowa, that I enter a protest against Mr. Hanna's collection of old soldiers now parading about the country in a private car, as representatives of the soldier vote. Why didn't Mr. Hanna offer the old soldiers of our side equal facilities? Why, instead of selecting distinguished army leaders, did he not select old soldiers—genuine soldiers, the men who fought to save the nation and not scramblers among themselves to see who would win the starry hair? We old soldiers were not fighting to save this country for the sake of the few, and I resent the action of any officer who seeks to influence the old soldier vote. While I am willing to accord Mr. Hanna's generals the respect due their position, I resent their action in coming into my state for the first time to tell me and my neighbors how to vote. And in so doing they appeal to the basest passion in man—the passion of greed. They tell us that if we do not change your pensions will be paid in fifty-cent dollars. But I tell you there is no such thing as a fifty-cent dollar. The man who tells you that is untrue, full or ignorant. Do you suppose this government would so dishonor itself as to pay its veteran soldiers in dishonest money? I tell you that if the government has never applied for a pension, that if the government will give us an opportunity we will make more money than the government can ever pay us in the form of a pension. The government, by its present system of finances, has fastened upon its old soldiers an industrial servitude more degrading than the bondage we destroyed thirty years ago. The past with all its sorrow and glory is secure; the present we now suffer; the future we must provide for. I want further to set the seal of disapproval upon that form of coercion which controls the people by injunction. Fifty years ago a Federal judge who would have issued such an injunction would have been turned out of his office, impeached and disgraced. But now the courts grant such writs to corporations that they may control and keep in check the working classes. Don't misunderstand me. Every man must obey the law; every corporation has rights that must be recognized; don't think that I advocate strikes, for I believe that labor must and can accomplish its ends without violence. But the issuance of injunctions for coercion measures, is wrong. By voting right in November you will take the first step to secure your rights. Hereafter the workingmen have been divided; but this year Republicans and Democrats and Populists have united to preserve their rights.

"We are all Populists today, members of that party that was hated when it was organized, and that is hated today. When I went into Congress, I was hated and feared. Had I been a Republican or a Cleveland Democrat, I would have been cared for in safe places. But I came, a strange man from the wild and woolly West, sent by
