LIFE OF A CHURCH.
That of the Fourth Baptist Has Been Crowned With Success.
Special services of praise and thanksgiving were held yesterday both morning and evening, in honor of the fifteenth anniversary of the Fourth Baptist church, DuPont and Eighth streets, north. The church was crowded at both services, and a spirit of deep religious fervor was manifested. The program at both services was largely composed of music, the choir having attained a high degree of efficiency in preparation for the occasion.

Told of Buddha.
Last evening almost every seat in All Souls' University church on the East side, was occupied. The occasion was the second address given in the city by N. Dharmapala, a native-born Buddhist, who is secretary of the Maha-Buddha society, of India and Ceylon. Throughout the address was listened to with interest, and the religious belief and custom of the Far East.

Countess Banquet.
An informal dinner in honor of her distinguished guest, Countess Wachtmeister, was given yesterday evening at the home of Mrs. E. Cora Hawkins, a native-born resident of this city. The enjoyable affair in a sense not unlike the small gatherings of the literary lights of several days ago, was held in the parlors of the house. The names of the guests, with their hosts, along with the interesting nature of the conversation. It was not until the approach of evening that the guests withdrew. Dharmapala conducted the services in the All Souls' church and the countess to lecture in St. Paul.

One Brick Beat Two Razors.
John Hunter, a gentleman of color, and another gentleman of the same hue, became engaged in a dispute yesterday afternoon in the vicinity of the corner of DuPont and Washington. In their heated discussion the two men drew razors, but no damage was done. However, the opponent used a brick for a weapon, and succeeded in cutting a deep gash on Hunter's forehead. Hunter was arrested, and after having his wound dressed at the city hospital, was locked up at the side station on the charge of drunkenness.

The Poor Must Wait.
The committee called together by the informal gathering at the commercial club's "Saturday night" met at the club yesterday morning, and after discussing the matter, decided that the relief fund should be too late to get the material together and in shape for distribution for the coming week. When most of it would have to be sent out. It was therefore proposed to postpone the project until New Year's day, giving the concert at the Exposition in the meantime, and planning out all the details as originally proposed.

LOVERS STOLEN BY BACHELORS.
Anti-Courting Crusade Likely to Disrupt a Society.
BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Dec. 20.—St. Patrick's society is threatened with disruption because of an organization styling itself the "Bachelors' club," which is holding a courting crusade Sunday night; but, owing to the great commotion stirred up, is now being held in abeyance. The members of the club started Sunday night to carry their ideas into effect by descending on the homes of young ladies, giving the young man and take him away for a dozen hours. The bachelors visited about a dozen houses. Three members were taken from one, another, a member of the society, alarmed when he saw from the window a young man in his companions, concealed himself beneath a sofa. He was discovered and dragged from the house. Other members of their families were useless.

BINGULAR SCHEME OF A VETERAN.
He Secures Penny Subscriptions to Aid Him Through Life.
LIGNONET, Ind., Dec. 20.—Benjamin C. Jones, living near the Wherry station line, has secured several thousand signers to a unique petition for assistance. Jones is a veteran of the late war and is poor. He believes that the citizens of the republic owe him a debt for services rendered in that country, and he is now circulating a petition, the signers of which pledge themselves to pay support, his estate to be divided at death among his heirs. Jones is tramping from house to house, and the signers are being secured with success. The money is to be mailed to Jones during the month of December. At last, the boys proposed matrimony, provided the girls would come here.

THE OLD MAN PENNILESS.
AN INMATE OF THE CENTRAL STATION, BUT HE WILL RECOVER PART OF HIS CASH.
NOTED CHURCH ANNIVERSARY.
Fourth Baptist Holds Interesting Services—Day's Events in Minneapolis.

Inspector John Stavio made an important capture last night in the arrest of Charles Brown, who, by his own confession, admits that he is the man who slugged Julius Bonike, the North Dakota farmer, who lost $600 last Tuesday at the hands of a gang of toughs. This arrest rounds up the last member of the gang who were implicated in the robbery, and Inspector Stavio did a piece of successful work upon which he has been engaged three days. Hanson was locked up at the South side station and will be arraigned in court at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Hanson has lived off and on in Minneapolis for some time. Last summer he worked in Dakota, but has been here for the past two months. When arrested, he was comfortably and stylishly dressed, having on new clothes from head to foot, the cost of which must have been near $100. He also had on his person the sum of $84.00.

The police have been of the opinion that these two prisoners, Louis and Gustave Anderson, arrested Tuesday for robbing the old farmer, were not the only ones implicated. Hanson was known to be a friend of the Andersons and when he suddenly seemed to have come into possession of a sum of money, judging from his actions, suspiciously directed towards him and a close watch was kept upon him. Several days ago he intrusted to a friend $130 in cash, and since then has been drawing upon him until at the time of the arrest only about $88 was left that remained.

Bonike has been staying at the central station since the day of his misfortune. He has no money, and naturally he is delighted at the recovery of at least a part of his wad, and he will also be given the clothes which the police brought in with the booty. The old man undoubtedly tells a straight story, and the police expect to recover the greater part of the money lost.

REJECT YACHT UNION RULES.
Harmony in Interlake Yachting Circles a Long Way Off.
ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 20.—It was 3 o'clock this morning when the delegates to the meeting of the Lake Yacht Racing association concluded its deliberations. They had met to accept or reject the proposed rules of the Interlake Yacht club, which would be accepted by the regulations. The most important of these two clauses was the one which required that the midship section of the yacht be furnished with a life preserver, thirty-five per cent immersion. The other clause was that the vessels should have their low water line measured with crews aboard. The first one was not adopted, as it was formulated by the delegates who met at Buffalo a month or so ago to formulate the rules of the Interlake Yacht club, a yachting union of the great lakes, yet to be named.

Another result will undoubtedly be that the Interlake Yachting association will not be organized. The result at the action of the delegates of this lake and it is very improbable that the union will accept the rules as proposed. The members of the Interlake Yacht club were represented by delegates from Oswego, Toronto, Royal Canadian Yacht club, Queen City Yacht club, of Toronto, and Hamilton Yacht club, and Victoria Yacht club, of Hamilton, and the Rochester Yacht club.

E. C. Berriman, of Chicago, owner of Vencador, and T. S. Perkel, of Racine, Wis., designer of the Vencador, were present in an advisory capacity.

COMPERS IN A PULPIT.
He Talks to the Friends of Organized Labor.
CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 20.—Many of the delegates to the sixteenth annual convention of the American Federation of Labor returned home last night and tonight, but the officers committed men and others interested in unfinished business remain for tomorrow's session. Mass meetings were held today of the bachelors, and the convention of the other amalgamated associations, at which addresses were made by the national officers of the different organizations. All the trades unions and union labels held a joint meeting, urging unionists to purchase only such goods as bore the union label. The committees completed their work today and it is stated that the convention will be able to conclude tomorrow night.

This afternoon President Gompers occupied the pulpit of Wesley chapel, speaking on the interests of organized labor. Bishop Walden and most of the ministers of this city occupied seats on the platform. His subject was "A Rough Sketch of a Rugged Struggle."

HAVANA, Dec. 20.—The correspondent of the Associated Press left Havana at an early hour this morning by rail for Mariato and thence by coach to attend the grand feast, tendered to Maj. Cirujedas at Bunta Brava in honor of his part in the killing of Maceo. It was like a summer day, and the road was lined with troops, the entire distance, to protect persons attending the feast from the city.

Before the feast there was a grand banquet, which was witnessed with great enthusiasm. The feast was inaugurated with a military mass, Maj. Cirujedas' column and the guerrilla forces under Peral, which fought at Punta Brava when Maceo was killed, being the participants, and the chaplain of the San Quintan battalion officiating.

The feast passed off in the best order. From Cavajay for Spain, the minister of war, Cap. General Yrujo, the Marquis of Ahumada, the army and navy and Maj. Cirujedas. It was voted that the participants in the feast to petition the national council to change the name of Punta Brava to San Quintan in honor of Maj. Cirujedas' battalion.

PECULIAR CASE.
Young Man Did Not Know Whether to Treat it as a Joke or Not.
"Would you mind telling me something?" he asked with some hesitancy. "Certainly not," the Washington Star reporter answered. "You see a great many newspapers?" "I have read considerably," he replied. "And you would like to tell whether this is funny or not?" "Ordinarily, I tell you the truth, I don't know. I have a case here that needs an expert opinion. Some time ago I was employed by a firm that was engaged in stock in trade, which consisted mainly of beer. Some people came in, and in order to entertain them, I had to make a few remarks that I had learned. One of them said to me that he knew a good trick, and that if I was willing to do anything I could make it pleasant for the company, and when he asked me to repeat the trick, I told him one that happened to be handy. He went over to a keg of beer and bored a hole in it. He told me to put my thumb over the hole, I did so, and he bored another hole in the keg. He then told me to put my thumb over the other hole.

"Then what did he do?" "He began to bang the crowd to everything in sight. All I could do was to reason with them about their conduct. I didn't know where to go, and I was afraid the result would have been a geyser that would have ruined the new wall paper. When they had helped themselves to a quantity of beer, they went away and left me. It was two hours before the proprietor came and plugged the holes and mended the keg." "Does the owner hold you responsible?" "I don't know whether he does or not. I haven't been back, and I don't know if he will be for a dry goods store or a grocery. I want to know if this is a case that good folks would not laugh at and be merry, or have those men arrested?"

There is one disadvantage about very tall buildings which is just now being noticed by the occupants. It is perhaps a small disadvantage, but still it is worth mentioning. It is that the clocks in the buildings which are placed in high buildings, when they are placed in high buildings, they become more whimsical, and do not keep correct time at all.

President-Elect McKinley and Wife Return to Canton.
CHICAGO, Dec. 20.—President-elect McKinley, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Lafayette McWilliams and their two sons, attended divine service at the Sixth Presbyterian church on Vincennes avenue this morning. Mrs. McKinley was unable to accompany them. Every inch of seating room in the auditorium was filled, and many thousands of people were present. The police men kept many away. The party finally reached the carriage, through the window of which Maj. McKinley shook hands with the crowd.

California's Needs of Carriage Horses.
Any one who has the slightest acquaintance with horse matters on the coast knows that it is most difficult to obtain either a good carriage or saddle horse. It is true that the market for such animals is limited, and consequently the inducement to produce them, but small still, with the fact that many in the state for breeding and developing horses, we ought to be able to keep what we have here at home. In the production of horses for trading records of the running and speed records all over the United States show California as holding a foremost place, but for the horse of utility, as distinguished from the horse of speed, California is without prestige at present. This, however, should not be the case much longer, for as the influence of the state grows, it will get to work to take advantage of the opportunities they afford.—Overland Monthly.

His Advance Strikes Terror in the Hearts of the Spaniards.
TAMPA, Fla., Dec. 20.—Passengers from Cavajay in the reports are accumulating that Maceo's forces are in overrun by Gomez's advance guerrillas. Numerous bands of insurgent guerrillas have created a reign of terror among the Spaniards in the smaller towns; who hardly dare venture outside their picket lines. All news from the east side of the island is that the Spaniards are fleeing in panic to the hills beyond the trocha. Two more garrisons have just deserted to the Cubans, one of 150, the other of 200.

Loggers Report Good Progress in the Lumber Camps.
A large number of the leading loggers of this city have been down during the past few weeks, and they report with progressive interest that the lumber camps are expected with present conditions. There has been no weather suitable for hauling, and the logs are piled up in the lumber camps, while others are hauling small loads. There is plenty of snow everywhere, and all the roads are impassable. The loggers are equal to any in the history of logging in a cold snap of a few days sufficiently hard to make the roads impassable. The loggers are expected to be busy for some time, but there will be plenty of logs in this market for some time.

WHAT HIS MONEY DID.
A Novel Plan That Was Adopted by a Millionaire.
"It isn't always that money in quantity is productive of good results," remarked a well-known temperance worker and moralist to a Washington Star reporter.

"I beg your pardon," interrupted the reporter. "I know one of the times and places where it would be."
"I think you are right," another, laughed the talker; "but, joking aside, I remember on one occasion when a man with $1,000,000 did with it what I never knew any millionaire do before or since, and the good he did lives as gloriously today as it did forty years ago when he did it, and it will never be forgotten. It was when he had about 6,000 or 7,000 people, largely of the factory classes and pretty hard to handle in the matter of liquor drinking, and he found the way to get just beginning the work that I have been trying to win victories in ever since, and I found the man who gave the most valuable assistance was this millionaire, a man who not only drank himself, but offered it to persons at his house, and in other respects was by no means a model of piety, though active in all contributions to charity and church work."

"He was a man of sixty or more, and was popular with the people of the town of all classes, seeing that he was retired and had ample time and money to make himself on good terms with everybody. Well, the time came when he had our fight for the control of the liquor traffic in the town, and though we made a game fight, the hosts of the town were against us and we went to the wall. The millionaire was encouraged, but the millionaire was as cheery as a bird in a sunburst, and the next day after our defeat he called me to his study and invited me to meet the new order of things."

"It was only what a rich man could do, and one who had that kind of moral training, which is not to be had in this country, so long as good will come to him, and he did about it, though with many more doubts and fears than I had. He proposed that we should in a week's time he was the proprietor of the handsome saloon in town. In addition he had a bar near the city, and he was to be the proprietor of the place in town, and as they were to have the appointments, they soon had all the town appointments. In a month's time several saloons had gone to pieces, and as each one was being broken up, my friend shut up his that was nearest to the city, and the central one handsome than ever. Finally he owned the only saloon in town, and as soon as he got things in shape he proposed to sell the saloon to sell shape at a higher price and turn the profits all into the poor fund. In view of the fact that he had no opposition, he was prepared to sell the saloon away if another saloon opened in town, he persuaded the drinkers to do it his way, and within a year's time he had the entire town of drinking saloons, and it was the thirteenth and soberest town in all New England for ten years. Then the millionaire died, and some people began to wonder what he had done, and the result was an overstep, of course, but he builded so well that even to this day the good is there, and it will ever remain."

BICYCLING IN GERMANY.
Riders Are Generally Required to Proceed Single File.
Complaints are frequently made by traveling American bicyclists touring through Germany of obstacles and delays caused by the very rigorous laws governing the use of bicycles on the roads. The German police, says the Washington Post, for the benefit of such tourists, United States Consul Sawyer has issued a few copies of a leaflet, which cyclists are called upon to observe throughout the empire. Cycling on public streets and roads, particularly in the city, is subject to minute and carefully enforced police regulations, which in many places prohibit the use of many of the accessories with but few exceptions, are made. Bicyclists are not to be on the road on account of rainy weather, which prevents the use of the bicycle. The law is enforced everywhere. The law requires that the bicycle be kept on the wheel and be kept lighted at least half an hour after sunset to half an hour before sunrise. The bicycle must be provided with an easily managed brake, operated quickly and powerfully. Cycling on roads is prohibited, and the use of the bicycle on the elevated footpaths and highways is strictly prohibited. Two bicyclists may ride side by side, but only on a narrow road, and blocking the thoroughfare or annoying other riders or vehicles; otherwise single file is the rule. More serious machines, however, are not permitted under any circumstances.

HE WAS PRESENT.
And Selects a Present for His Next Door Neighbor.
"Excuse me," the small, indignant-looking man said to the Washington Star reporter, "but would you mind telling me what that instrument is which you saw in the office on Tuesday night to announce the election returns?"
"You mean the thing that magnified the sound?"
"Exactly."
"That's a megaphone."
"Are there more of them to be had?"
"I suppose so. You might buy one somewhere."
"Thank you. If you'll tell me where to apply, I'll look up one for my next door neighbor."
"If you are going to give a public exhibition of any kind."
"It is a general matter. I merely wanted it as a testimonial to a friend of mine. He is one of these people who argue, who stand by the side of the road, and who are always trying to get into your ear, and who are always trying to get into your ear, and who are always trying to get into your ear."

"The use of 'Castoria' is so universal and its merits so well known that it seems a work of supererogation to endorse it. Few are the intelligent families who do not keep Castoria within easy reach." CHARLES MARTELL, D. D., New York City.

"For several years I have recommended 'Castoria,' and shall always continue to do so, as it has invariably produced beneficial results." EDWIN F. PALMER, M. D., 123th Street and 7th Ave., New York City.

CLASSES AND MASSES.
Bryanite Who Objects to Cleveland's Criticism of Trusts.
To the Editor of the Globe:
Before the election a great deal was said in the papers and on the rostrum about "classes." A word was used which had an appeal to the masses, and which was being made by the free press. The Globe, however, in its editorial, took active part in this opposition. It quoted the masses from Washington's farewell address to show that the masses were not to be divided into sections or classes. This was "classes" that they called for its republication. It was a gross misquoting of the words of the good standard press, and there were no classes in this country. I believe the Globe is a very good paper, and now it occurred to me that if there were and are no classes in this country, there was no reason for this long, prolonged howl about "appealing to class prejudice." True, the masses are in this matter that "makes em" the masses, but it is the existence of the class in this country as much as Washington's. We deprecate their position, but we do not deprecate the fact. Mr. Globe, they are here and are here, and we see the dangers that he forewarned us of. We confront the danger, and we sought to do so by the use of the word "classes" before the American people. They naturally objected. They do not like to be "herded" into a class, and they do not like to be even in their own eyes, and they modestly tried to lose themselves in the great mass. This is an aggregation of the masses selfishly interested against the masses cannot be denied even by the Globe. The Globe has often referred to the masses as "classes and special interests" and "beneficial" and "living off the tolling masses" through legislation, and it is a very good thing that we should have a word to say for the American people. They naturally objected. They do not like to be "herded" into a class, and they do not like to be even in their own eyes, and they modestly tried to lose themselves in the great mass. PINGREE AND THE PRESIDENCY.
Pause, Pingree, Pause!
Potato-planting patriot,
Pause!
Released with the hour, you'd
Pay the price and get into the
Pen, but hold hard!
Potato paths that lead to fame
Quite around the
Pretence close your eyes in sleep
Pingree, Pingree, pause!
Put down your pen,
Put your head to shrink, which they have Puffed.
Press to the earth ambition's
Purpose, that would
Place your body aloft as
Presidential pretense!
Pooh, Pingree!
Potatoes will grow on
Potato vines, and if you
Permit yourself to be
Punished into thinking so, you'll
Push for it with busted hopes.
Pay on to glory by some other route;
Fair off with something else than that.
Pull down your vest;
Put Pingree on the ice a while!
Perish the thought that any one should Feel that
Pingree could not fill the bill so
Perfectly as Plenty and prosperity would
Prevent upon the nation's ridge pole
Permanently. Right, but not that
Pingree is perfect, and the Present president is as yet rather Previous!
Passes vous?
