GAMES SCHEDULED FOR TODAY. Kansas City at St. Paul. Milwaukee at Minneapolis. Columbus at Detroit. Indianapolis at Grand Rapids.

Did some one say that the Saints could not play an up-hill game? Oh! the Manning Blues are not the only toe-kickers.

It was a hard-fought game. Barnett for six innings made monkeys of the hard-hitters that Comiskey is trouncing with, but after that the hits pattered around him merrily.

McGill did not get the fielding support that he was entitled to in the early part of the game, but, as it turned out, of course, there is no occasion to dwell long on that.

The Blues took O'Rourke's place as a stopper for pitched balls at the opening of the game, and he stayed at first until Preston forced him out. Nyece allowed four to go by him without molesting them at all, and when Parrott drove the ball straight through the diamond at a break-neck velocity, Preston scored from second. Truby let George get to first base without warrant of law, but this error was not costly, as Glasscock put the ball at Barnett, and a double play ended the inning.

McGill gave McVicker four, and Connaughton wanted to sacrifice, but he beat the ball to first. Lake tried the same trick, and he went out. Truby gave Glasscock a fly, and Jack Carney did not get the ball out of the grass, so the inning was fruitless.

Shugart drove a hard fly to McVicker, and Fred Lake took a hot foul tip off Spies' bat in his unprotected right.

McGill gave Barnett an easy one, and that gave the Blues another chance. Tom Bannon scratched in a hit, but Reilly, the new third baseman, gave Bannon pushed it along. Again Glasscock got the ball and this time it was Nyece who did not get to the base. That gave them full bases and none out. T. Bannon popped up an infield fly, and that relieved it somewhat, as Shugart took Reilly's offsprung down the line for a double play.

Then it began to get good. Nyece opened the sixth with two baggers, and the 500 people there began to brace. Parrott advanced him on a lively one to Reilly. George waited for four. Glasscock forced George out, and that relieved it somewhat, as Shugart took Reilly's offsprung down the line for a double play.

Parrott sending a high fly to Connaughton. McVicker started Kansas City's half with a safe one that looked like a score tier, but Connaughton sent a long fly to Parrott, and Lake was hit by McGill. Truby hit a high one to George, while McVicker stole third on it. Carney was again unable to finish right.

The locals went one, two, three, and then the Kansas City aggregation

It looked bad for the locals when Parrott dropped a fly and Connaughton went to second, but he was caught trying to steal third. Lake's line drive was just a lurch for Preston, who was an evident relish, and Truby gave the blonde third baseman a grounder.

Shugart wasted a two-base hit in the ninth doing some harmless coaching. It turned out, no more runs were needed.

It took two to tie, and Carney did not have the best he could sample in his line being a grounder for Shugart. Jimmy Bannon had a line of choice pop ups, but Preston exhausted that line, and everything was hopeful when Nyece again cast down the hopes of the gratified fans. It looked as though some of the small boys who play with the Little Comiesques might have gotten it, but Nyece did not, and that was all there was to it. Then Reilly drove the ball out of three bases, and, in fact, he drove the bases.

an error, and he decided that if Shugart could do that, it must be easy. So he picked out a cap on the end of the summer, and he tried to blacken it. The ball did not go quite that far, but it went far enough for Spies to bring in the run which gave the Blues the lead. Barnett decided it would be about as cheap to give these hard hitters bases on balls, so he gave two. Preston hit a sharp one through Connaughton's glove, and he was out, and a passed ball sent McBride to third, where he scored on Nyece's fly to McVicker.

Heads can only pitch that kind of a game. He will be relieved. Dan derbeck released him without giving any chance to show what he could do. And it is summer time, and he expects that kind of work he will be a fixture on the Columbus team.

Everything indicates that St. Paul will lead the league by a week from Sunday night.

Jimmy McJames, of the Washingtons, is practicing a new underhand delivery, which will spring in a few days.

Stivett has been sent to his home at Ashland, Pa., to get into condition. He is 27 pounds and must get down below 200.

Perry Warden is doing considerable slugging for the Colonels. The big fellow is a valuable addition to the Louisville team.

Frank Shannon, the little shortstop, who has been holding out for more salary, has at last signed a two-year contract. Shannon was with Indianapolis last year.

JONES TIRED IN THE SEVENTH. New Twirler of the Brewers Presents the Millers a Game.

The few fans who journeyed to Nicolet park in Minneapolis yesterday afternoon saw a game of ball such as is usually seen only toward the end of the season, when the pennant is but a short way off, and the players are not for the filthy lucre, but for a little glory on the side.

If Mr. Jones, the gentleman who was the pitcher in the seventh inning, had abode of Connie Mack, thereby relieving himself of all surplus flesh, had not fallen down in the seventh inning, the Millers and the Brewers might have been battling yet, if they, like every one else, could see in the dark. At the end of the sixth inning Mr. Jones had allowed the local team but four hits, three of which were in the first inning, and it looked very much as though both sides were doomed to shut-outs until darkness came. In the seventh, however, the Brewers were able to get a few pieces, and the end was no longer in doubt.

The Millers started out in the first inning some of the Brewers were happy. The first rubbered it into Kansas City which lost four games with the Blues.

Artie Ball wanted to walk, but Mr. Jones couldn't see it that way, and he caught Artie at first. He dropped one out at the feet of Daly and was thrown out at first. Lally was weak and rolled one to Mr. Delehanty, who was in the first inning, and he got through him, and Lally was safe on first, but stayed there only a moment, getting to second on Speer's pass ball. Partridge singled home, and he was out at first base, and round the base. Miller drove one into the left field for one base, and Partridge went to second. Pickett attempted to sacrifice, but Miller reached second on Daly's failure to hold the ball for Jones, and Pickett, therefore, reached first on a fielder's choice. This left the bases full, and the two-bagger happy.

Cassidy, who is hitting pretty regularly, batted out a single, and Partridge and Miller trotted over the plate. Parrott, Connaughton, and Speer got third, Kuehne struck out and the side was retired with three runs.

In the first inning Mack's men went out in one, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine, ten, eleven, twelve, thirteen, fourteen, fifteen, sixteen, seventeen, eighteen, nineteen, twenty,
