RAISED A DEMON.

The powers of Europe appear to have raised an evil spirit which it is beyond their power to exorcise. The answer of Turkey to the proposition for an armistice is characteristic of that "Sublime Porte" whose sublimity consists mainly in its sublime impudence.

they are, and that their allegiance must not be changed. Now comes Turkey, with the ancient spirit strong within her, with the old Moslem hatred and contempt of the Christian burning high, with an army of rare efficiency that has just proved itself equal to a campaign that, from a military point of view, is a magnificent one, and she sees her opportunity. She proposes to acquire Thessaly as the prize of these military operations and flings her defiance in the face of Europe.

year a month, and Minnesota has practically done the same thing. In all countries with a teachers' read "To be in force until the money for running the schools is exhausted." So plain is the sense of this plan of reducing the school year one month, as the best way out of all this, that it seems strange that the mayor is not at once willing to stand the 10 per cent. cut, and I hear they are, then why not cut the three weeks' work of the school year into a school year running as at present, and stop this advertising ourselves as bankrupt? We have to stop our school, mechanics' schools, and do away with the necessary supervision of our schools? The school board admits that one month less of school will save $40,000, and the last month or three weeks out of saves this amount. Now, let the council remit that $40,000 for new school houses and turn it into the school board for school purposes; then let the $40,000 be used for necessary repairs, and how does the account stand? Total amount spent by the board last year, $450,000; the amount that is figured on for the next year, $400,000; add to this $11,000 saved from the $41,000 that can be remitted by the council, and you have $49,000, or $11,000 more than was required to run the schools for nine months last year. This extra $11,000 can be used for additional teachers, for the thousand or fifteen hundred pupils that may come in the schools next year. Now, if a new charter is voted for next spring that will provide for our schools going without a stop, what a fine school year St. Paul, May 16, 1897.

are going to make their opinions felt when these gentlemen come up for office once more. The gang up in the city hall remind us of nothing so much as a crowd of boys who delight in spending their days tormenting some animal and giving it pain. Occasionally the animal turns, and then there is a scattering. The wheelmen of St. Paul will be heard from again about next spring, and in the meantime the Globe is open to their just complaints and will see that the treatment allotted to them is exposed as it deserves to be.

naught but praise, and Blanche Johnson's Margery, the Chicago cousin, was witness to a scene of the most extraordinary nervousness in the small, but not less trying role of Mrs. Kipling, the suicide's widow. The production is superbly staged. So much for the stage. The front of the theatre is a spectacle of life and color such as one sees but rarely even during the height of a midwinter social season. The boxes were all filled with their interested and attractive groups of social leaders, while the parquet and circle were interlined with many people well known in local society. The company being composed of many stage favorites who are particularly liked among local society people, with whom they gained unusual favor when the company played an extended engagement in St. Paul two years ago, added to the social interest. Among some of the prominent society people who were seen in the audience last evening were: Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Hozze, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Stone, Mr. and Mrs. Jake Davis, J. T. BIXBY'S LAST DAYS

NOT ON EARTH, BUT AS PRIVATE SECRETARY TO GOVERNOR CLOUGH.

HE RESIGNED YESTERDAY.

TODAY HE WILL TURN OVER HIS DESK TO ROLAND S. HARTLEY.

SON-IN-LAW IS FORMALLY NAMED.

Sketch of the Young Man Who Is Said to Be Politically Ambitious.

The formal resignation of Tams Bixby, private secretary of Gov. Clough, to the governor of the state, was tendered to Gov. Clough yesterday and was formally accepted by the chief executive, who immediately announced the appointment of Roland S. Hartley, of Minneapolis. Mr. Bixby's resignation will take effect today, when it is expected that the new incumbent will take hold. Mr. Hartley, whose appointment has been shadowed for days, is a son-in-law of the governor, having married the latter's only daughter, Mrs. Hartley is junior member of the firm of Putnam & Hartley, manufacturers of boots, shoes, etc., in Minneapolis. He is favorably known in political, business and Masonic circles. He has been an active and influential member of the younger branch of the Republican party in Minneapolis. He was born in York county, New Brunswick, in June, 1864, and came to Minnesota at the age are qualified by section 10, of the same chapter, being the third subdivision of section 7241, of General Statutes 1874; that the facts stated in the indentments do not constitute a public offense. There are four demurrers of identical tenor. It may be some time before a decision is reached on these indentments, and, in case they are overruled, an appeal will be taken to the supreme court, the trials on the indictments will be long postponed.

ARRIVED AT LAST.

Beet Seed Ready for Distribution to Those Desiring It.

Advices from the official distributors of Minneapolis to the state treasurer yesterday, state that the carload of sugar beets ordered from Germany, had been duly received. The seed is of two varieties, Klein Wanzleben and Vilmorin, and what is called "elite seed" of the same standard varieties. The firm was kept busy yesterday preparing to ship the seed already ordered, although the number of orders had not come up to the expectation by a long shot. This morning the first shipments will be made and farmers are appraised that from now on the state will be filled and the seed shipped the same day the order is received.

ALL ABOUT CUBA.

draw comparisons, but I merely say that Mr. McKinley is a very pleasant gentleman." Mr. Stewart argued for the resolution, saying it voiced the sentiment of the American people, who wanted no more of the "Cleveland policy" on Cuba. Mr. Daniel, of Virginia, replied in a sarcastic vein, but after a few minutes' remarks and then read a carefully prepared manuscript involving the legal points in the recognition of belligerency. After concluding his legal argument, Daniel branched to the general subject of Cuba, and aroused the keenest attention by his vigorous words. The diplomacy of Spain had succeeded in making a truce of half years, he said, in blinding American diplomacy into the belief that war did not exist there, high handed, red handed, bloody, cruel war. It is a war in which Spain employs more troops than England employed in seeking to put down the American revolution. And yet Senators were met with the statement that a recognition of the state of war in Cuba would be inimical to Spain.

DANIEL SEVERE.

He denied that the recognition of an existing belligerency constituted a hostile act, but, in any event, the facts had been recognized and the great influence of the United States thrown into the scale. He said that the Christian usage, it might subject some American vessel to search, but this would be a small matter compared with the results of a greater calamity, Spain's right to blockade Cuba but in that Spain would suffer more than the United States.

IT IS SAID.

"It is said," this means war," continued Mr. Daniel. "I deny it. If Spain should declare war against us because we recognize the belligerency of her former subjects, we should carry out a war of two and one half years, she would have an unjust cause of complaint and war against us, and we will have a just cause of complaint and war against her. We should see the American people involved in war. I look upon war as one of the greatest calamities that can befall a people. But it is a greater calamity for the high public spirit of a great nation to be so deceived that it can look upon murder, arson and pillage as a just cause of complaint. The spirit of that nation to be so deceived as to delay one instant in doing an act of justice because of fear war."

AT THE THEATERS.

No warmer reception could be asked for than that which was accorded the Grand and Neill stock company, old favorites as they are, on the opening of their summer season at the Metropolitan last evening. Scarcely a seat in the house was vacant, and the audience comprised the people, to a great extent, who cherished the memory of the previous visit of the company, which they were not slow to attest upon the appearance of the familiar faces on the stage.

AROUND THE HOTELS.

E. G. Barrett Tells of Railway Building in Siam. "Edgar G. Barrett, Hong K'ing, China," was a signature which adorned the register at the Ryan yesterday. Mr. Barrett is a young Englishman, who, like thousands of his kinsmen, is at home almost any place on the globe. Mr. Barrett is going to Hong K'ing but he is going there as fast as rail and sea can take him. That is why he writes "Hong K'ing" on the hotel registers. Last year Mr. Barrett was appointed to construct a railway from Bangkok to Khorat, a distance of 163 miles. The road penetrates into the interior of the country, and opens up a rich agricultural and mineral territory. For miles and miles the road was constructed through a swamp, necessitating great outlay and time.

WILL ENTER DEMURRERS.

Attorney of the Davsons to Attack the Indictments. William Dawson and William Dawson Jr., came before Judge Lewis yesterday morning and asked, and received, leave to withdraw their pleas of not guilty to certain indictments against them, and to interpose demurrers. The court permitted them to take this action. The demurrers cover the indictment against William Dawson Jr., charging him with an illegal overdraft of $23,000 against William Dawson, charging an overdraft of $37,000; and against them jointly, charging the illegal loaning of $281,000 to the St. Paul Power works. The demurrer is entirely technical, that the indictments do not substantially conform with the requirements of sections 1, 2, 3 and 4 of chapter 138, General Statutes of 1894, 130.

HE IS RIGHT.

To the Editor of the Globe. It seems to me that there has been a great deal of discussion and wrangling over what seems to be a very simple question. I am sure that the funds available for the schools in St. Paul are not being used to the best advantage. I believe that the school board should be given more authority to manage the funds as they see fit. I believe that the school board should be given more authority to manage the funds as they see fit. I believe that the school board should be given more authority to manage the funds as they see fit.

ROLAND H. HARTLEY, Gov. Clough's new private secretary.
