REV. L. BROWN'S CASE

PRELIMINARY EXAMINATION OF THE NORTH ST. PAUL MINISTER IS BEGUN.

THE ROGERSON GIRL'S STORY

PARTIALLY TOLD IN THE MUNICIPAL COURT BEFORE JUDGE ORR YESTERDAY.

AS CONTINUED UNDER PROTEST

To Meet the Wishes of the Busy Prosecuting Attorney—Little Progress Made.

Rev. Leonidas Brown, pastor of the Methodist church at North St. Paul, who was arrested on the charge of criminally assaulting fourteen-year-old Harriet Rogerson, was accorded a partial preliminary hearing in the police court yesterday. During the hearing Rev. Mr. Brown listened intently to every question and answer, apparently alive to technicalities and legal points, which he carefully entered in a notebook. A rather incredulous smile played about the minister's countenance as the complaining witness told her story, but an occasional contraction of the brow with the alertness which he evidenced in the proceedings showed a realization of the unenviable position in which he is placed. Considerable legal sparring was indulged in by counsel in the case, and when the hearing was finally adjourned for one week, Attorney J. M. Hawthorne, for the defense, objected strenuously, claiming that after over an hour on the stand, the girl had refused to swear to the most essential allegation of the prosecution. "The fact is," said he, "this girl has been under examination for an hour and a quarter and has absolutely refused to testify that the defendant actually wronged her, as she claims. Miss Rogerson has been offered every opportunity to tell minutely the details of Mr. Brown's actions, but she has evidently some conscientiousness and is afraid to swear to what is not true. I oppose this adjournment, because I feel it will be an injustice to the defendant, as in the meantime Miss Rogerson can be coached to state what she has today refused to do."

Before the case was called Mr. Brown, Attorney Hawthorne and a number of the accused's friends held a conference in a corner of the court room, over a map of Ramsey county to note the particular location of the alleged assault. The point is supposed to be about forty yards over the line into Washington county, but within the legal 100 rods to permit of the case being tried in the Ramsey county courts. When Mr. Brown's name had been reached on the police list, the attorneys for both the state and the defense announced their readiness to proceed with the examination, and Miss Rogerson was called to the witness stand.

When the girl had been sworn Assistant County Attorney Zollman asked that the court be cleared of all those not interested in the case, on the ground that Miss Rogerson should be spared all the humiliation possible. Attorney Hawthorne entered a protest, and Judge Orr ruled with him, although later he changed his mind and ordered the room cleared.

The examination of Miss Rogerson began with the question as to her name and age. To this question Attorney Hawthorne objected strongly, urging that the question of the girl's age was a pivotal point in the case and that he wished to cross examine her upon this matter as to her knowledge of her age. The objection was overruled, however, and Miss Rogerson allowed to state her age as fourteen years. She testified that she had first met Rev. Mr. Brown about six months ago when she was introduced to him at the scene of the alleged assault, on the evening of June 18, the date in the complaint.

"What time did Brown leave Mrs. Carlson's?" asked Mr. Zollman. "About 9 o'clock in the evening." "Did he leave before you did?" "He did."

"About how long before?" "About half an hour."

"Did you see Mr. Brown while on your way home?" "Yes."

"Where?" "When I got nearly home, I met him close to Seventh street and Division street, he spoke to me."

They walked together for some distance and she went home, later going to Mrs. Conlin's where she was working. On the way there, she again met Rev. Mr. Brown.

"What did he do?" asked Mr. Zollman. "He did not say anything."

"What did he do?" "He picked me up and carried me across the road and insulted me."

As the examination was resumed Attorney Hawthorne entered an objection to the testimony on the ground that Justice McLean, of North St. Paul, who was near the witness, may have influenced her answers to questions. Miss Rogerson said that she had been coached and continued her story. She said that Mr. Brown, after carrying her from the roadside, had cautioned her to be quiet, but that she had struggled desperately to escape. At this point, Attorney Hawthorne complained of not being able to hear the witness, and when he wanted her instructed to speak louder, the girl burst into tears. She appeared on the point of a collapse and wept bitterly.

Composing herself, Miss Rogerson testified that on the evening of June 12 Mr. Brown had attempted to assault her in the same location as is charged in the case on trial, but that the attempt failed. Attorney Hawthorne objected to this testimony, and the question and answer were stricken from the record.

When the attorneys Hawthorne wanted the direct examination of Miss Rogerson completed and the court ruled that if this obtain, the cross-examination must be completed, the storm which ended the examination yesterday broke. Attorney Hawthorne pointed out that the witness had been unable to tell technically of the crime charged, and expressed the feeling of being coached into telling, when the case was resumed, what he claimed had not taken place. He insisted that she be sworn to the truth by the young minister, and said he was ready to go on with the examination. Judge Orr, however, overruled the motion, and Attorney Hawthorne at once took objection to the ruling. He had the fact entered upon the record which was allowed, and then Miss Rogerson, in a high state of excitement, left the stand without having made the statement that she had been assaulted in a manner which would be accepted as legal. The case was then continued until next Monday, when the examination will be resumed.

Chicago, as well as the East, speaks in highest praise of her interpretations.

Her programme will include: Act I—Scene 3—A lonely heath. "If chance will, without my king, my chance may crown me." Scene 4—The King's Palace. The Prince of Cumberland: "That is a step on which I must fall down, or else o'erleap, for in my path it lies." Scene 5—Macbeth's Castle. "O, never shall sun set morrow ere I see thee here." Scene 6—Enter Macbeth's Castle. "Fair and noble's hostess, we are your guests tonight." Scene 7—A room in the castle. "But screw your courage to the sticking place and we'll not fall." Scene 8—An inner room in the castle (midnight). "Wake, Duncan, with thy knocking." Scene 9—Audience chamber in the king's palace. "Banquo, thy soul's flight, if it heaven, must first find out." Scene 10—Lady Macbeth's chamber. "But in them nature's copy's not eterne." Scene 11—Before the king's palace. "If he scape, heaven forgive him, too." Act V—Scene 1—Dumaine. An inter-chamber in the palace leading to Macbeth's chamber. "Midnight. 'All the perfumes of Arabia will not sweeten this little hand. It smells of heaven. 'Tis better that we should burn than smell like this.'"

MUSICIANS BY BIRTH.

Royal Hungarian Concert Band Played for Bradley-Martins.

The Royal Hungarian Court band, now under engagement at White Bear lake, have had quite an extended experience, according to the story of their leader. Some years ago this organization, which is composed entirely of string and reed instrument performers, was one of the best bands in Austria-Hungary. They performed before Emperor Franz Joseph, and had numerous engagements among the nobles of their native land. Since coming to America they have played long engagements at New York and other Eastern cities, and are now on a tour of the West. Mrs. Bradley-Martins, at her notable ball given in New York city last fall, paid the manager of the Hungarian orchestra $300 for services during the evening, and while this figure is rather a high one for present conditions, they have been in the habit of receiving large fees in their own land. Said their leader yesterday: "We have played for all classes of humanity. We are not what would be termed educated musicians, but the music is born within us. At the age of eight years, we commenced to take an interest in musical matters. A few years later we began to learn to play ordinary music, but don't pay much attention to playing from music. We train the ear so that we can pick up the tune from hearing it played by some other musical organization, and is a natural gift, and the forefathers of nearly every member of my band, back to their great-grandfathers, have been musically inclined."

COMPANY D AT KANSAS CITY.

Spend an Afternoon as Guests of the Hale Zouaves.

A military company of St. Paul, Minn., stopped in the city yesterday, says the Kansas City Times of Friday, on its way through to San Antonio, Tex., where a national drill tournament is to be held, beginning this week. A company from Omaha and several other companies have passed through Kansas City this week on the same mission. The St. Paul company ate dinner with the Hale Zouaves in Firmin hall, and spent the evening riding about the city on the cable cars. They went in the afternoon, and had their noise with them. They left at 9 o'clock.

BLUEBERRY WAR REUNION.

Anniversary to be Celebrated with a Supper.

It has been determined to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Blueberry war in St. Paul by a reunion and supper at the rooms of the Commercial club, Monday evening, July 26. The expedition left St. Paul on the morning of July 25, 1872, but as has been the case with so many anniversaries in 1897 the 25th of July falls on Sunday, and the following day has been selected for the reunion.

Mrs. Tisdale's list that nearly all of the survivors of the two companies of Minnesota's national guard, who twenty-five years ago promptly responded to Gov. Austin's midnight alarm to go to treatment to suppress an anticipated Indian outbreak, will be present at the reunion, and that the boys will have a good time.

TO READ FROM SHAKESPEARE.

Mrs. Tisdale's Programme for Next Wednesday Morning.

Mrs. Laura J. Tisdale, director of the dramatic department of the Chicago musical college, will give interpretations from Macbeth, at the residence of Mrs. J. E. McWilliams, 656 Summit avenue, Wednesday morning at half past 10 o'clock. The proceeds are to be devoted to patriotic objects.

Mrs. Tisdale's readings are the embodiment of years of painstaking psychological study of the different characters of this play, and those who are familiar with her work, call her a Shakespearean artist. Her press of

THE BANK AND ITS SURETIES

MADE JOINT DEFENDANTS IN SUIT FOR $120,479 ON DEPOSIT THERE.

BOND GIVEN BY OLD COMMERCIAL

Held to be a Guarantee for the Present Institution—List of the Defendants.

Another of the suits which the city proposes to bring against the sureties on the bonds of the suspended banks has been instituted. Yesterday the papers were served on the bondsmen of the Allemannia bank, of whom there are ten. The suit is brought against the bank and the sureties to recover the sum of $120,479.17 which the city had on deposit in that institution when it closed its doors on Jan. 4, 1897. The sureties on the bond are: Henry Ahnemann, William Hamm, Bernard Kuhl, Haskell G. Fischbein, Russel C. Munger, Arthur E. Whitney, F. R. Welz, E. Yanish, Henry A. Castle and Moses E. Clapp.

The complaint alleges that the Allemannia bank is the successor of the Commercial bank of St. Paul, and that the name was changed to Allemannia on Aug. 1, 1896, by the proper action of the stockholders and officers of the Commercial bank. It is further alleged that the Commercial bank became a depository for city funds on June 22, 1895, and that on that date it furnished a bond with the defendants named as sureties, and agreed to pay interest on the balance on hand at the rate of 1 1/2 per cent per annum. In giving that bond the sureties qualified in the following respective amounts: Ahnemann, $25,000; Hamm, $50,000; Kuhl, $40,000; Fischbein, $10,000; Munger, $25,000; Whitney, $15,000; Welz, $25,000; Yanish, $10,000; Castle, $20,000; Clapp, $30,000.

The complaint further recites that after the execution and filing of the bond the city treasurer deposited various sums of money and made withdrawals, so that there was on deposit in the Commercial bank on Aug. 1, 1896, the date of the change of the name of the bank, $85,484.91. Subsequent to that date and prior to Jan. 4, 1897, deposits were made aggregating $277,873, and withdrawals followed reducing the amount on deposit to $120,479.17.

WAITING FOR MACHINERY.

Delay in the Building of the Forest Crematory

Work on the crematory being erected at the Forest cemetery has been at a standstill for some days on account of delays on the part of the contractor for the machinery, etc. It was expected that it would be completed by Aug. 1, at the latest, but it now promises to be delayed by a week or more before the dedication can take place.

The crematory is situated at the southwest corner of the cemetery grounds on Edgerton street, and is 28x31 feet in size, and that portion above the ground is built of brown stone. The roof of the building is of slate and the French style of architecture. The new structure directly adjoins the chapel, which was erected three years ago, on the north side, and is connected to the bank, and the entrance into the crematory will be made from the chapel into a reception room 19x12, which will be handsomely finished and with a mosaic floor. The preparation room opening off the reception room, will contain the furnace into which the remains will be placed to undergo cremation. An engine room is situated on the north side of the structure, having connection by a door with the preparation room. Here will be located an electric lighting plant, by which the chapel and the crematory will be lighted, the power will be derived from a gasoline engine, which will also be utilized for drawing water from an artesian well into a tank, driving a fan by means of which the oil used in the crematory process will be sprinkled over the corpse. This oil will be supplied from a tank on the west side of the crematory and conducted by a pipe to a sprinkler, the currents of air from the fan will serve to keep the oil running freely.

At the present time the machinery and furnace are stored away in one of the freight depots awaiting the arrival of the contractor, who will complete the construction. Everything is now in

PERMANENT HOME TRADE EXHIBIT IS FORMALLY THROWN OPEN.

The exhibit of the Northwestern Manufacturers' union in the market house was opened to the public at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The displays were in place, and the tasteful arrangement was viewed to advantage by a large number of people during the afternoon. The opening was the nature of an informal reception by the managers to the public, and a string orchestra added to the pleasure of the occasion while it rendered musical numbers during the hour.

The patronage accorded the exhibit on the opening day was a source of great satisfaction to the promoters of the plan, especially in the number of strangers who took advantage of the opportunity to acquaint themselves with the manufacturing resources of St. Paul. Many business men were seen among the visitors in Minneapolis and St. Paul, and yesterday was around seeing old friends.
