John A. Lowry, of 2805 Sixteenth avenue south, just before retiring Friday night, heard a low wailing in his hall. He investigated and found a baby lying in a basket and using its vocal powers to its full capacity. Mr. Lowry took the little fellow in and says that he will keep him if he is not claimed.

J. F. Klegman and Charles M. Russell both demand the $50 bounty for the capture of a horse thief in the person of Charles Reed before Judge McGee. Klengman is a constable at Waterloo, lo., who made the arrest, and Russell, the man who gave the information. The matter was taken under advisement.

The New Man Wants Alimony.

Some time ago Sophie M. Alther began an action for divorce from Charles A. Alther on statutory grounds. In the case of these two it was the plaintiff who had the money and property, and in line with the new woman idea, Mr. Alther allowed her to be the man and he the woman, for he at once filed an answer, and a petition for alimony pending the action, rather a new thing in a Minnesota court. In arguing against the alimony, Mr. Munro showed authorities, which held that since it was the law that a husband was obligated to support his wife, a husband could hardly ask for alimony pending the action, unless there was an express statutory law, providing among other modern things, that the new woman was obligated to support her husband. Judge Jamison took the matter under advisement, with briefs from either side of the case.

Freshmen Win a Rush.

At the hour for chapel services at the university yesterday morning a group of sophomores gathered in front of the library bunding and began to rush a crowd of freshmen. As the fight became more desperate, both sides were increased by large numbers of students, who came from every direction untit the number engaged in the battle was several hundred. They rushed out over the campus, taking everything before them. In the general scuffle, hats were smashed, coats torn, collars ripped off, but nothing more serious than bloody noses and scratched faces occurred. As the crowd rushed toward the library building, and near the entrance, members of the faculty endeavored to stop it, but their efforts were as futile as a pug dog in a buildog fight. The freshmen came off victorious.

lidly refuses to say a word regarding the affair in which he is alleged to have been a brutal hold-up artist and a would-be murderer.

Clue after clue was found yesterday and every one pointed to one man as the assailant of John Lemke—he was no other than John Moschik.

Yesterday was a busy one for the detectives, and especially for Inspectors Morrisey and Stavlo and Detective Nick Smith, who have been at work on the case, Their efforts were untiring, but were fruitful of results, for last night they expressed themselves to the effect that they believed without a doubt that Moschik was the right man. The condition of the wounded man gave no hope from the first. Gradually all day he sank lower and lower and he was practically unconscious last night before the end came. The charge of assault with intent to kill which is placed against Moschik's name at the central station, will be changed to that of murder.

Inspectors Morrisey and Stavlo and Assistant County Attorney Jones took Lemke's ante-mortem statement early yesterday morning, as it was expected that he would soon pass away.

The St. Paul police authorities are confident that John Moschick, the exconvict at the home of his brother-inlaw, 1176 Reaney street, St. Paul, is the person who made the desperate attack when I tenk woods near Hopkins, and two bullet holes in the skull told the story of murder. There was no chance

Yesterday morning Moschick's brother-in-law called at the Margaret street station and delivered to the authorities a gold watch said to be the one stolen from Lemke, and informed Capt. Pottgieser that the young man had given him the timepiece the night before, claiming to have won it playing cards, During the afternoon Capt, Pottgieser searched the house where Moschick was captured and hidden in the ashes of the kitchen stove, found the revolver with which the shooting is said to have been done. The pistol is an American bull dog, of 38 caliber and two chambers were empty. The fact that the revolver had been hidden and the two empty chambers, with the fact that two bullets were fired into Lemke's body is considered strong evidence of Moschick's guilt. The watch was turned over to the Minneapolis police and is said to have been identified by

Lemke as his property. MOSCHICK IDENTIFIED.

The scene between the two men at the hospital at 4 o'clock yesterday morning was one not to be forgotten. Moschick, handcuffed, was brought in by Inspecor Stavlo. He was led up to Lemke's at Jansen, which, however, went wide of the mark.

At this point the wounded man became too weak to talk longer and the room was left, the silent procession wonding its way to the central station, where Moschick was locked up. MANY IDENTIFY HIM.

Moschick was positively identified yesterday afternoon as the man who had walked along Humboldt avenue north and put a revolver in his pocket, just 24 hours before. Those who recognized the prisoner were Mrs. D. A. Collough, Mrs. I. Pierrie, Alice Flaherty and Thomas Flaherty, of 4605 Humbolt avenue, and William C. Beardsley, of 4609 Humbolt in the presence of Superintendent Smith, detectives, newspaper men and the witnesses, Moschick was brought out from the cell room. He looked sullen and not at all interested in what was going on. Not a word escaped his lips or an expression by which his feelings could be betrayed. He was attired in the clothes found on him and made to walk about the room.

"Have you ever seen this man before?" Inspector Morrisey asked.

"Yes, that is the man who passed our house yesterday afternoon and who was identified by the bleeding man, as the one who had shot him," said the women, almost in concert. Explaining further they stated that the clothes, the man's features and walk were the same. Tom Flaherty said it was the man he had followed down to Thirty-sixth avenue north, and Washington, as told yesterday. Mr. Beardsley had not seen the man's face, but he was positive that it was the right person, as he recognized Moschick's walk, which is a peculiar one. They were all positive that no mistake had been made.

"John, were you up to Camden place yesterday?" asked Inspector Morrisey of the prisoner, as he stood facing those who had identified him.

The prisoner never moved a muscle and TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 23.-The biennial convention of the World's Women's Christian Temperance union was formally opened in the pavilion at the Horticultural garden today. The building was thronged when the convention was called to order by Miss Frances E. Willard. The convention has taken a hold of the city, and the greatest interest is displayed on all sides. The platform was filled with executive and other official workers, prominent among whom were Miss Agnes Slack, of England; Mrs. Kirk, of Australia; Mrs. Barker, of Chicago; Mrs. Barnes, of New York; Miss Johnannsdittor, the terday?" asked Inspector Morrisey of the prisoner, as he stood facing those who had identified him.

The prisoner never moved a muscle and made no reply.

"Well, you might as well tell the truth about it, John," said the detective. The only reply given was a shrug of the shoulders and the prisoner was led back to cell 14. All efforts to get the prisoner to talk about the brutal shooting proved fruitless. When an officer asked him last night concerning the matter, he said he did not care to talk about it. Upon further questioning he told the officer to ask the wall. However, Moschick seemed cuite willing to talk about prison affairs and was interested in the report of prisoners being abused at Stillwater. He said that there was some truth in this and that there were many "pets" at the institution. These could infringe the rules without fear of punishment while others had to suffer. -W. G. Beardsley, a market gardener, who lives nearest the scene of the shooting, made a search of the vicinity yesterday. Lemke's hat was found in a stretch of timber at least fifty feet away from where the shooting occurred. Between these two spots can be seen a trail, where the body of the wounded man had been dragged. The hat was filled with leaves and covered with dirt, showing it had been trailed through the road. Had Lemke not feigned unconsciousness he probably would have been killed. It was evidently the intention of the desperado to kill Lemke and to hide the body where it was dragged. Had Lemke not had sufficient strength to find his way to the neighboring houses, it is likely he would have died in this lonely spot and his body would not have been found for a long time. to all the world. CAUSE OF PEACE.

The cause of peace has won great victories this year. The arbitration treaty with our mother country is only lying over; already we have reason to believe that, through the influence of that he would soon pass away.

The St. Paul police authorities are confident that John Moschick, the exconvict at the home of his brother-inlaw, 1176 Reaney street, St. Paul, is the person who made the desperate attack upon Lemke in Minneapolis Friday afternoon, basing their belief upon two important discoveries in the case yesterday.

Wison's arrest is due to the work of a constable at Hopkins, who took up the murder case when the local police had apparently decided that it was impossible to find any clues. Aug. 28 last, the decomposed body of a man was found in the woods near Hopkins, and two bullet holes in the skull told the story of murder. There was no chance for a suicide in the case. The man was evidently a tramp, and the body had lain on the ground so long that identification was found so long that identification was found so long that identification was found so long that it would be a constable at Hopkins, who took up the murder case when the local police made for the presentation of another treaty of wide scope. that Wilson had been seen with Dus-Norway has called in the help that Wilson had been seen with Duscherms.

The story, as claimed by the constable, was that Wilson was one of a party of tramps who picked up Duscharms somewhere in Minneapolis. Duscharms is said to have had $20, which the man whom the constable claims was Wilson wanted to borrow, and which he finally scured. Duscharms did not feel casy about the money, and wanted the man to return it, and kept insisting upon its return. The man became exasperated, and a quarrel resulted. The matter was finally patched up, however, and the party started toward Minnetonka, walking along the Minneapolis & St. Louis tracks.

When they arrived in the vicinity of Hopkins, Duscharms again grew restless about his $20, which was evidently all he had, and demanded its return, but his companion was not disposed to surrender his booty, and the quarrel grew more bitter. Finally the man and Duscharms left the other two of the party, and went on down the road, and alone, and when asked by the others what had become of Duscharms, said that he had gone on toward the city again. After going some distance they met Ole Jansen, whom they ordered to face about, and accompany them back to the city. This Jansen retused to do. An altercation immediately arose in which Wilson is said to have fired a shot at Jansen, which, however, went wide of the mark.

Upon complaint of Jansen later, Wilson was aversied and imprisoned for 90 days. its presence among us is in spite of our protest and work, or whether we have taken measures that render its continuance probable. The foundation and the keystone in the arch of heathenism is the sacrifice of women's spite or the large man's sensuality: purity on the altar of man's sensuality; and if there is one monstrous thing which above another represents the anti-Christ, it is that fact. In Oriental countries women are helpless in the hands of men, as they have been hands of men, as they have been through the dark centuries, and the depths of degradation to which this utter dependence has reduced them are beyond all power of western comprehension. "We hold that there is but they knew him to be dead, all have a suspicious appearance.

The arrest of Wilson for the crime doubtless bring facts to light that will cusclose the whole plot, if such there war, and show whether Wilson had any connection whatever with the crime.

Wilson was taken out to have his photograph taken by the police yesterday afternoon, but the prisoner had determined not to be "mugged." He offered a most forceful resistance, and in the gallery broke up a chair or two before the picture was taken. Even then it required almost the combined strength of Inspectors Hoy and Nick Smith and Officers Merrick and Winell to hold him long enough to have the camera do its work. Wilson is regarded by the police as a very dangerous man, and they have sent out the news of his arrest to surrounding cities where there is any likelihood of securing information about him. standard for men and women and that they are equally capable of living up to it. VARICOCELE is caused by abuse, excesses, strain, horseback and bicycle riding, mumps or injury. The veins become swollen, slightly at first, and gradually the disease spreads, the cords elongate, and a dull ache is noticed. Then the sufferer feels tired, languid, loses ambition, and confidence in self. Pains come in the back and groin, the vital powers begin to fail, and it finally destroys all strength and pleasure in life, ending in general nervous debility.

Bailey, of Winthrop, Maine. It was in part as follows:

The most disappointing of all our experiences during the last biennial and was the failure of the United States congress to ratify the Anglo-American treaty of peace at its last session. The present administration of the United States government is contemplating an effort to get the matter again before the upper house of congress. If the war spirit of the books which children read and study in their schools should be changed so as not to give honored prominence to the warrior, in comparison with the useful citizen, the dawning of the day of peace would surely soon appear. There are increasing evidences of the growing strength of the peace movement everywhere in Europe. The Danish parliament recently refused a credit for strengthening fortifications, considering such an outlay useless. The budget committee of the German reichstag refused to grant a portion of the sum asked for by the navy department for new fronclads. The Austrian parliament adopted a resolution favoring international arbitration. War once was over the face of the earth, and came home in all its horrid details to everybody's door; it is now confined in Spain and its final extinction is only a question of time.

Mr. Chamberlain, therefore, will support Mr. Balfour, in the belief that, should Mr. Balfour, as premier, make mistakes, the reversion of the premiership will go to him, Mr.

has tardily presented to Sir Michael HicksBeach, the chancellor of the exchequer, a detailed reply signed "Aldenham," to the protest by the commercial interests against bimetallism. The reply says the league has often pointed out that the changes taking place in the British government. "Those who now come forward with a prayer that the value of our standard may be maintained," continues the reply, "have allowed the action of foreign nations and of India, by which the value of our standard has been continually increased, to pass without protest; and it would therefore appear that the signatories to the memorial do not object to any increase in the value of our standard.

"We are unable to understand the statement that 'this country alone of the great nations enjoys a system absolutely free from embarrassment,' because many nations are entirely free fom embarrassments caused by their coinage and also (unless in speaking of our country we ignore our empire), because no power is so little free from embarrassment on account of its standard, or rather its standards, as is the British empire. If alternations in the value of our standards are undesirable it will appear to be advisable to arrange with other nations that they shall not make continual changes."

The reply further says that the only posstible settlements of the difficulties in India are the adoption of a gold standard or a return to the free coinage of the rupeee, the former for India would be an untried political and social experiment entalling indefinite depreciation of the silver hoards of the natives and might lead to grave imperial danger. Moreover, it would increase the demand for gold and enhance its value. The increased demand would be indefinite, owing to the habits of the natives of India of hoarding the precious metals. Although a gold standard would secure a par exchange between India and England, it would still leave them as far as ever from a par with the great silver standard portion of the world, includding par

Nann succession to Viscount Estor, while popular, is apparently indirectly due to the speech of Sir Edward Clarke, early in the year, criticising Great Britain's position in the Venezuelan case. It is generally understood that Sir Richard Webster, the attorney general might have had the mastergeneral, might have had the master-ship, but in that case Sir Edward Clarke would have been appointed at-torney general, and after his remarks upon the Venezulan case, the govern-ment could not well have entrusted the British case to him. WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—The commission appointed last January to arbitrate the claim of the Cauca Railway and Land company, of New York, for $962,909 against the United States of Colombia, filed an award today to the state department fixing the amount of the claim at $452,048, payable to the Cauca company in gold coin of the United States, with 5 per cent interest added after Jan. 26, 1888. The Cauca company secured from the Colombian government in 1889 a concession of land in the Cauca valley for the purpose of constructing 300 miles of railway from Buena Ventura on the Pacific coast to Manizales in the interior. In 1894, inspired by popular clamor, the Colombian government revoked the concession and confiscated, under its terms, the property of the company, which it was subsequently agreed to pay for at the actual physical valuation. The Cauca company presented its claims to the state department and the Colombia government consented to an arbitration. The arbitrators appointed were Lewis M. Haupitrators appointed were Lewis M. Though the diplomats regard the situation in the Lagos Hinterland as complicated and difficult to settle, the secretary of state for the colonies, Mr. Chamberlain, is pursuing a forward policy which threatens international peace. The Marquis of Salisbury was content to negotiate a settlement of the question in Paris, but Mr. Chamberlain formed a plan to effectively occupy the territory in dispute while the diplomats were arguing and applied for sixty British officers to organize a big force of Haussas for this service.

THE RIGHT OF SUCCESSION

Answer to the American Bimetallic

LONDON, Oct. 23 .- In spite of ofisbury's rumored resignation of the premiership, belief in its truth is very strong in political circles, where it is view of the undercurrent was con-firmed by a cabinet minister on nature of Senator Wolcott's proposals. Wednesday, who privately remarked The Daily Telegraph admits that it weansday, who privately remained was "very adroit to take advantage of India's difficulties." The Daily News clared that he means to have the premiership when the Marquis of Salispublic opinion would have killed them bury resigns. The minister quoted added: "This means that the candidates will be the Duke of Devonshire to give them their quietus." Devonshire long ago wanted to merge lished. They are in a strain similar to those of the morning newspapers. The Pall Mall Gazette declares Sensorvatives, and was only prevented parative insignificance. There is not much love lost between the Duke of Devonshire and Mr. Chamberlain, and The St. James Gazette says: "We lose considerable, as it will raise Mr. to raise their hands again, and it will Chamberlain more distinctly to the add to the jingoism of America and as the basis of any serious international agreement. Sir James Westland's dispatch is an admirably reasoned state paper. As to the American proposals, aside from the reopening of the Indian mints, it is difficult to understand how they could be treated with gravity by British statesmen. It is really amusing—we do not like to use so harsh a word as impertinent—that some gentlemen from the United States should come here to tell us how to improve our methods of currency and banking. The counsels of the fexthat lost his tail are discounted by the common sense of mankind.

Valuable Plunder.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—A special dispatch from Lyons says that a band of burglars raided the house of an eccentric old gentleman named Beal last night. M. Beal kept his entire fortune of 290,000 francs in money and 100,000 francs in securities in a safe in the house. This morning the safe was found two miles away, having been broken open and rifled. M. Beal kept no record of the numbers of his securities.
