THE SHE WAS MIXED UP

SELINE CLEWETT WAS LED INTO MAZY PATHS BY QUIZZING LAWYERS.

BUT SHE TOLD OF HER LIFE

BEFORE AND AFTER SHE WENT TO THE HOUSE OF THE GOOD SHEPHERD.

WAS THERE RESTRAINT OR NOT?

Jury Is Getting a Mass of Conflicting Testimony as to That Point.

Miss Seline Clewett, whose shop against the House of the Good Shepherd received $29,000 for alleged false imprisonment, is exciting such widespread interest and packing Judge Brill's court room, took the stand in her own behalf yesterday. The feature of the day's proceedings was the cross-examination of the plaintiff by Gen. Clapp. It occupied the greater portion of the afternoon session. At its conclusion Mr. Butts concluded his redirect examination until court adjourned.

The testimony of Miss Clewett fairly bristled with contradiction. On her direct examination she testified that she was restrained of her liberty; that after her escape from the institution in May, 1896, she was forcibly brought back, and that she was constantly demanding her release therefrom. On cross-examination she said that she returned to the House of the Good Shepherd voluntarily, and that she told the sisters and certain of the inmates in August, 1896, that she wanted to remain in the institution until the following spring, as she didn't want to "work out" in the cold winter weather. During the cross-examination she first told Gen. Clapp that she asked to be released the day after she was first taken to the institution. That was Sunday. She said that she did not make the request for release until Monday. Later, in answer to Gen. Clapp, Miss Clewett declared that she had been in the House of the Good Shepherd for at least one year before she asked to be released. She also admitted that she was given charge of certain keys which would unlock doors that permitted access from the building, but on the direct examination she said she was entrusted with only one key at a time and instructed to unlock certain doors, while the sister giving such order remained close at hand.

The cross-examination likewise revealed a portion of the plaintiff's past that more than satisfied some sensational. Miss Clewett admitted that she had been the mother of two children though she had never been married. Her husband, she stated, was the plaintiff's moral character, which he contended had nothing to do with the charges against her. Billings of the Lehigh Coal company and Schacht Fuel company for fuel furnished to the police department in March and April, 1896, were recommended to pass with the price cut to $7.50 per ton. It was stated by Ald. Lindahl that the bills, but had not the price per ton as charged by the Lehigh company from $7.85 to $7.50 per ton, and that the bills were approved the bills, but had not the price per ton as charged by the Lehigh company from $7.85 to $7.50 per ton, and that the bills were approved the bills, but had not the price per ton as charged by the Lehigh company from $7.85 to $7.50 per ton.

There is also a children's department, with eighteen occupants, whose ages range from two to fifteen years. The total population of the institution is from 100 to 140. Mr. Butts called the plaintiff to the stand. Miss Clewett is very deaf, and she sat in close proximity to the witness chair and spoke in loud tones. Miss Clewett's demeanor on the stand was somewhat peculiar. Her answers were indistinct and almost inaudible, while occasionally she would reply to a question with pertinent, angry outburst that could be heard by all present.

Police Found the Cigars. Burns Bros' grocery store, at 115 South Wabasha street, was burglarized early Wednesday morning. The thieves secured an entrance by forcing a rear door with a jimmy. The entire stock was rummaged and twelve boxes of cigars, valued at $25, taken. The cigars were yesterday recovered by the police.

"THIS KEEPS ME UP!" JOHANN HOPF'S MALT EXTRACT. FIFTY YEARS' ACTIVITY. ESTABLISHED 1847. HAWKES FLEMING AND BLOOD.

Block and a half away. I told them they could not take me back. Martin Bohan came along with the laundry wagon, and said the sisters had told him to take me back. He took me by the arm, I could not get away. He put me in the wagon and locked the door (of the wagon), and carried me to the building. Sister Zephyrine and Sister St. John, I said I would not get out of the wagon. He started to pull me out.

"When did you have a whip?" "Before she came up. I took a whip from a milk wagon that passed and was going to strike the girls."

"My arm was bleeding. They did not cease to whip me until the afternoon. I asked Zephyrine about getting out, and she said I would have to stay for six months for running away. I thought she would let me out within the six months were over. She did not. I saw Mother Matilda whip Annie Dupres. She took her by the hair and threw her on the floor."

"I have heard her sisters tell some of the older girls, the ones they trusted, to punish the other girls. I have seen Sister Marilla strike Edith Atwell with a whip. She did not do anything she could lay hold of. I have seen Mabel, a weak girl, punished."

"We could not speak to the mother superior, we were under her permission. When she came in we were obliged to get down on our knees and get her blessing. The sisters did the same thing. When she came in we were obliged to get down on our knees. The laundry was quite cold in winter. Some of the girls went about in their stocking feet. Girls got sick. I got sick now and then. I kept weak. I was not allowed medicine and was not allowed to lie in bed."

Miss Clewett was then asked by counsel concerning the bill of fare at the institution, and dissected it with scornful minuteness. It evidently did not suit her.

"I tried to get out before and after. Mrs. O'Donnell helped me to get out. She told me I must break out or I would never get out. She said that I should never get out. Mrs. O'Donnell and I had planned another escape. A girl was to come and hand a key through the bars to the door. We could go outside to the barn and in sight in company with the older girls or a sister. When I escaped I was a consecrated person. I kept weak so that I could show my duty to get out."

Witness explained that the dress according to the rules and behave. "I was preparing to join the Brown Sisterhood, and if I did not like it I could come back."

STYLISH DRESSERS

have their own ideas about Clothing—wouldn't be stylish dressers otherwise. Here's a pen picture of a stylish dresser: Cheviot 4-Button Sack Suit—cut slightly shorter than last season; Vest: Single or Double-Breasted—cut high; Trousers 16 1/2 to 17 bottom—welt seam; Gloves: Tan; Hat: "Dunlap" shape; Tie: Ascot; Shirt: Fancy bosom. LEGAL DEPARTMENT CALLS THE MAYOR DOWN FOR A REPORTED INTERVIEW

ABOUT BOYS AND SALOONS. THE OTHER SIDE OF THE STORY ABOUT SELLING MINORS LIQUOR. HALL CALLS A GRAND STAND PLAY. He is and Has Been Willing to Prosecute Saloonkeepers for Violating the Law.

The corporation attorney's office and particularly Assistant Harvey E. Hall, is worked up over the "grand stand" play attempted by Mayor Doran in the case of the three minors arrested for drunkenness last Sunday. One of the administration organs takes a shot at the legal department, and says that there is a lack of sympathy in that department with the attitude of the mayor on the question of selling liquor to minors. Mr. Hall, who has charge of the prosecuting of cases in the police court, gives this version of the matter: "Last Monday morning Lieut Boerner came to me and said the mayor requested that the three boys arrested Sunday for drunkenness be discharged and that warrants be issued forthwith against the saloonkeepers who had sold them liquor. The lads were not fully recovered from the effects of their debauch, and I had their cases continued until Friday. I did this in order that when they had fully recovered they might be able to tell the saloonkeepers that warrants be issued forthwith against the saloonkeepers who had sold them liquor. The lads were not fully recovered from the effects of their debauch, and I had their cases continued until Friday. Mayor Bobs Up With His Halloween Order Again. The pranks of the small boys are to be curtailed Halloween by the police, at least in a measure. Mayor Doran yesterday issued an order to the police and last evening Chief Goss promulgated the following, which was read to the officers and policemen at the central and four substations. Pursuant to orders from the mayor's office, you will instruct all officers under your command, to take special care to stop and prevent as much as possible, the mischief and nuisance committed by boys on Halloween, Saturday, Oct. 30, 1897. Under no circumstances must the practice of destroying or carrying away of property be permitted. All offenders must be promptly arrested.

SCALED THE BILLS DOWN. Aldermanic Committee on Claims Was Very Careful. The claim presented against the city by John A. Durnal, of 1555 Hewitt avenue, was considered by the committee on claims from the board of aldermen yesterday. In July last Vina Durnal, the twelve-year-old daughter of the claimant, was severely injured while riding on a street scraper which was being operated along Hewitt avenue by two men from the street force. Her father put in a claim for $250 damages, but the corporation attorney gave an opinion that the city was not liable, as the child and others who rode on the scraper did so without the consent of the man who was operating it. The committee allowed Mr. Durnal $25 to cover doctor's bills and medicine. Claims of Charles J. Hanft and Jo-
