SO PIERCE BUTLER DECLARES A RAILROAD THROUGH COMO PARK

Charter Commission Again Defers Action on the Proposed Interurban Line Via Lake Como—City Departments Are Given Some Discussion With Better Results.

The charter commission did not make much progress at its session last night. In the first half hour the matters considered were expeditiously disposed of, but the members became involved in another discussion, mostly in reference to the proposition to allow the St. Paul City Railroad company to extend its line through Como park, and on this question they could not agree, and for a third time it was laid over.

At the opening of the meeting, Mr. Murray moved that chapters 9, 15, 19 and 20 be eliminated from discussion on the part of the commission. They do not belong to the charter. Chapter 9 deals with the municipal court; chapters 15, 19 and 20 prescribe the methods of assessing property for the purpose of taxation; chapter 19 covers the almshouse, and chapter 20 prescribes the powers and duties of justices of the peace and constables.

J. D. O'Brien, referring to chapter 9 on the municipal court, thought it would be safer to incorporate this chapter in the charter than it would be to omit it. The entire matter was finally referred to a special committee comprising Messrs. Lusk, Clough and O'Brien, whose duty it will be to consider the advisability of eliminating from the charter the chapters mentioned. By Mr. Murray's motion, the commission was adjourned until next Monday evening.

Mr. Butler did not hesitate to say that if such a provision were adopted, it would be an intentional snub to the people at the next convention. He was confident that they would disapprove of it. To permit street cars to run through Como park along the route proposed would mean the practical destruction of park purposes of eighty acres of the park lying south of the proposed street car tracks. It would impair the beauty and utility of Como park, and that the people would never tolerate, as they were especially fond of this park.

PRETTY PARTY GIVEN IN LITTS' HALL

W. G. Pierce and Harry Wyand Responsible for a Pleasant Evening's Enjoyment—Laurie Eylee Club Celebrates Its Second Year's Existence With a Ball.

A dancing party was given last evening by W. G. Pierce and Harry Wyand in Litts' hall. The affair was one of the prettiest functions of the season among the younger set, and was well attended. Those present were: Messrs.—Little, Scott, Andrews, Sheehan, Dickel, Vance, Barlow, Curlew, Bowman, Woodruff, Cavanaugh, Edwards, Wood, Fulton, Clapp, Stoughton, Wallace, Fillet, Johnson, Neely, Harrison, Potter, Lamber, Baker, Compton, Cunningham, Cooper, Dodson, Frisk, Fisher, Minneapolis, Kingsley, Leonard, Ward, McMenamy, Minneapolis, Phillips, Robinson, Shirk, Mr. and Mrs. Campbell.

The choruses were Mr. and Mrs. Wyand, Maj. and Mrs. Tucker, and Mrs. Butcher. The young people of both sexes who make up the Laurie Eylee club played hosts last night at the Ryan, and their popularity as such was fully attested by the fact that most of the 300 invited guests went out to dance, which marked the second year of the club's existence, were accepted.

The big dining room was cleared for the dance at the residence of St. Anthony Hill orchestra struck up the opening waltz. There was no attempt made at decoration. That wasn't necessary, as the room was well lighted, and the waxed floor and plenty of room, the hundred or more couples danced through the card of waltzes and two-steps and schottisches, with a square dance interpolated every now and then, just for variety.

The affair, which included a large number of young people, was quite successful, and was managed by Messrs. C. O. Martin, W. J. Prendergast, E. S. Weden and Wilfred Nelson, comprising the executive committee. The social committee consisted of E. L. Low, Mary McDermott, E. L. Weden, Minnie L. Thauwald, R. G. NEW LIFE IN DESERTED TOWN.

Grable's Money in Twenty-Four Hours Turns Galeana into a Bustling Metropolis.

CHICAGO, Feb. 4.—The Tribune's St. Paul special says that the funds which Grable attracted to the West had a magic effect in the upbuilding of new industries. The town of Galeana, which had been dead for a dozen years, suddenly sprang into life again. Houses that had been empty for years were filled with people. Half a dozen stores were opened in the town. In the four saloons began business between sunrise and sunset. Where a few hours before there were less than twenty-five people, there are now several hundred men, women and children.

Francis C. Grable was the fairy who brought the change. For the past eight months he has been spending, from $10,000 to $20,000 a month there, and people wondered where the money came from. He has been here, and possibly paid a considerable amount, since he came to the city. Once in a while a carload of Eastern capitalists would arrive in Deadwood and would be wined and dined by the town. The money was used for property and plans for smelters and stamp mills were discussed, and more money was advanced.

FISH IN WATERS OF ALASKA.

A Great Abundance of Salmon From the Columbia River to the Yukon.

The waters of Alaska, both oceanic and inland, have a supply equal to the demands of a continent, said H. C. Deming, of Vancouver. "Nobody has not actually seen the teeming life in the rivers and streams, but truth in Bering sea there are fishing banks where cod and menhaden are caught in numbers that put the Newfoundland banks to shame. The herring runs are enormous, and have seen the peculiar ripple caused by herring shoals extending over the surface of the sea as far as the eye could reach, and fishermen tell me they are actually increasing, notwithstanding the terrible slaughter by seals and a blackfish which not only eats fish, but catches seals, and which wounded will attack an ocean steamer.

"But it is the salmon runs that excite the greatest wonder. These fish go each other, have a few weeks equal in the shallower parts of a stream are so thick that they actually climb over each other, and in the most abundant numbers that come from their winter home in the deep sea each season. Some idea of the wonderful extent of the salmon fisheries may be obtained from the fact that the salmon runs extend from the Columbia to the Yukon, including a coast line of more than 2,000 miles.

"The strange creatures of the sea that are so abundant in the Bering waters are also found here. I have seen an octopus with arms fifteen feet long in Seattle harbor, and sea squids, Washington streams, piled up two feet high with dead salmon that are hauled away in immense numbers to enrich the farm lands, and yet there are apparently no diminutions in the great numbers that come from their winter home in the deep sea each season. peets were so terrible bright with you, I warned of both to make the trip. "What are your politics?" "Oh, I just move along independent-like, neither for nor against any party, sometimes the other and sometimes not." "What did you come here for?" "To please my wife. I tell you, honest, I'd do most anything for her that she would do. I don't think that a woman as smart as she is didn't be more anxious about how she married." "She married you, didn't she?" said the clerk in a somewhat puzzled tone. "Yes, but I'm one of those calm, fair-minded people that don't flatter themselves. She was getting' one of the latest men in the state; but she wouldn't believe it. I'd do anything for her that she would do. FIRST CHANCE TO SNORT

"THAT GALLANT WAR HORSE, COL. KIEFER," INDORSED FOR MAYOR

Thirty-Four Eighth Ward Citizens Would Give the Political Hero of Other Days Another Chance to Win a Victory or Encounter a Defeat—Johnson Out of It.

"That gallant warhorse, Col. A. R. Kiefer," as he was called by Assemblyman Johnson, was indorsed for mayor at a meeting of Eighth ward Republicans last evening.

The indorsement was not as hearty as it might have been, because the secretary who counted noses on the indorsement resolution found that, while there were thirty-four in favor, there were four against it.

The slim attendance was explained by F. J. Eubank and A. N. Harrington as being the result of work done in the last two days by those opposed to the candidacy of Col. Kiefer. Men prominent in the affairs of the city, it was stated, had requested, urged and caused precinct committeemen and Republicans to stay away from the meeting, and, sad to relate, their efforts had been partly successful.

S. B. Carter, chairman of the ward committee, who presided, said that the impression had gone abroad that the meeting was called to crowd the candidacy of W. R. Johnson for mayor on the people. This was not correct.

This was Mr. Johnson's cue. He got on his feet and related how his friends in the ward had conceived the idea that it would be a good thing to have him as a candidate for mayor. He considered it an honor to even be mentioned for the office, and concluded to allow the boys to go ahead, with the idea that it would bring the Republicans of the ward together. He had decided

GULLMANT TESTS THE ORGAN.

Work Preparatory to His Performance at the People's Church.

Had any passer-by sauntered into the People's church yesterday afternoon, which he might have done without cost, for there was no "man on the door," and no audience but a few chairs within, he would have beheld a white-haired old gentleman seated at the big pipe organ.

If his curiosity prompted him to linger a moment the passer-by would have seen the white-haired gentleman, who would have heard him play a single note from the organ, and then another and so on up the scale, until he had reached the fourteenth of the church without waiting to hear more. But he had tarried a moment longer and he had heard the organ play a single note from the organ, and then another and so on up the scale, until he had reached the fourteenth of the church without waiting to hear more.

The members of the People's church and the music-loving people of St. Paul have never comprehended the possibilities of a grand organ, that they have heard so many times, but they have never listened to one when they visit the church to see and hear the man who is conceded to be the greatest organist in the world.

A picturesque, patriarchal figure is Gullmant, though he is scarcely of medium height. His hair is almost white, and his eyes are blue and sparkling. He has blue eyes and a nose that is straight and of a goodly height. He is dressed in a dark suit, and he has a white shirt and a dark tie.

Gullmant is a man of many talents. He is a musician, a composer, and a performer. He has played the organ in many churches and has given many recitals. He is a man of great energy and a man of great determination.

MILLIONAIRE SHOEMAKER SUEDE.

Damages to the Amount of $150,000 Asked by a Woman.

CHICAGO, Feb. 4.—A suit for $150,000 against John B. Hannan, the millionaire shoe manufacturer of Brooklyn, is being tried in the federal court here. The plaintiff is a woman, has begun in the superior court in this city. The suit was brought Wednesday, but was suppressed in order that service might be made on the defendant, who lives in Brooklyn.

The attorney for Mrs. Doolittle said that the suit is the result of an occurrence which happened here last week. She is suing Hannan for damages for the loss of her property, which she claims is worth $150,000.
