

WATCH CAREFULLY.

Nature Gives the Warning, and Every Wise Man or Woman Must Respond When She Calls for Help.

Watch well the first symptoms of dyspepsia and indigestion.

In these are the seeds of future trouble planted in the system.

Disease and danger lurk in the vital organs, the blood becomes vitiated, and the general health is undermined whenever the stomach and liver fail to perform their functions as Nature intended.

The evidences of disturbance in these organs are always plain and unmistakable. A heaviness and lassitude seem to seize the brain, and to depress the bodily energy and spirit. All mental or physical effort becomes a torture, and if neglected, things go on from bad to worse until the health is completely undermined or destroyed.

Nor is it safe to resort to the harsh and gripping cathartics. The best thing any man or woman can do at such times is to take a pure stimulant—not an ordinary one, but something that has been tested and tried, and is endorsed by the leading people of the land. Precisely such an article is Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. It has stood the test of time. It possesses medicinal qualities known to no other whiskey. It will tone up the stomach, relieve dyspepsia, and wherever other preparations only relieve, be sure your druggist or grocer gives you the genuine.

BEAR ELEMENT PUZZLED.

IT CANNOT FIGURE HOW WHEAT PRICES CAN DROP NOW.

Past Week Has Raised the Spirits of the Bulls on the Market—Heavy Reports Were Critically Scanned—But No One Was Scared From the Appearances.

The conditions governing the wheat market during the past week have contributed little in the shape of comfort to bear element. There were some short sales in Chicago several days ago, when the price was ranging around 95c cents. There was probably some considerable profit-taking for long account, according to the reports, but it is notable that long wheat ceased coming out after the price declined two or three points. This proved the body of the market, and the fact is there has rarely been a time when so much certainty of a peculiar kind existed, namely, that wheat is really scarce, and that those who want it must pay well for it; and that is just what the gentlemen engaged in the business are doing. There was plenty of bear news, of a certain kind, but it did not have the effect of ever upon the price. Reports of contracts for delivery of Argentina at European ports were current, but these were expected, and the effect has been thoroughly discounted ever since it was determined that the Southern hemisphere would, in spite of floods and droughts, locusts and rust, and other afflictions, really have a surplus for contribution to the bread-eaters of the North. But, granting that this will prove to be as much as 40,000,000 bushels, considerably less than the amount consumed in delivery. Meanwhile consumption of the world's visible from the crop of 1897 is rapidly going on. Shippers are ready to supply the demand during the months which must necessarily pass before the new crop of the northern hemisphere is harvested, to say nothing of the volume of the crop that is sold in the market, a condition which does not always exist. The high price of wheat has had the effect of bringing wheat from the hands of farmers and to an extent greater than realized by the mass of operators. That some farmers are ready to sell without necessity is the judgment of the most experienced men identified with the handling of grain that the amount forthcoming as the season advances will be found to be much less than is generally estimated.

It is unquestionably true, also, that Minnesota farmers, particularly those now engaged in cleaning up their granaries of the stock they withheld last autumn in anticipation of very high prices during the winter months. This is a fact which the volume of the "bills," but so voracious is the trading world that these supplies are constantly absorbed in larger and smaller lots from day to day without causing any perceptible substantial decline under the weight of offerings. The one surprising feature of the history of this season is the fact that the latest crop market has been characterized by a steady increase of receipts at central points, over all expectations and above every estimate associated with the volume of the crop.

KEEPS HIS OWN COUNSEL.

J. H. Russell, Arrested Saturday, Charged With Forgery.

The young man arrested under the name of J. H. Russell, on the charge of attempting to pass a forged check on Herman Thelie, a grocer at 1061 Payne avenue, Saturday afternoon, despite the fact that he had been arrested on the same charge, maintained a stubborn silence as to essential information, though he has somewhat changed his original story.

When the police say, he is a stranger in St. Paul, instead of having friends and relatives here, and says as long as he has gotten about him, yesterday, he bears the consequences with as little publicity as possible. He says he has been in the city for some time, and that he is in Minneapolis, but the authorities think he belongs in Minneapolis.

Just requested information yesterday concerning the meeting of the grand jury and expressed a determination to waive a hearing in the matter, and to let his case settled as soon as possible. He will be arraigned in the municipal court today.

use of the crop. Another interesting feature is the quality of the wheat in the later offerings. The improvement in the grade is conspicuous, going to show the poorest was marketed first and the best retained, doubtless with the expectation of commanding for it the highest prices.

Under such conditions as those now prevailing all the heart must necessarily be knocked out of the price of wheat. It cannot stand up and smile naturally in the face of so untoward a chain of circumstances. The bull which has its hand on its throat, and when he soles shows his teeth, is not long in coming to a realization of the long chances. It is absolutely certain that during a period of thirty years the stocks of wheat in the Northwest in the month of February were never so short as the present time. Cash wheat is commanding a premium over futures in every market of the world. The supplies of other countries are remarkably small for long account, and the efficiency is being made good by the United States. Our exports of wheat from July 1, 1897, to Jan. 31, 1898, exceed 152,000,000 bushels, the largest on record for the same date of 1894-95. They were approximately 150,000,000 bushels, and in 1892-93 they amounted to about 121,000,000 bushels. On Feb. 1 the world visible was 152,000,000 bushels, while at the same date of 1894-95 it was 173,000,000 bushels. The "bears" advance the theory that we have already over-exported to the amount of 15,000,000 bushels, but the combination of figures supplied by statistics do not sustain it.

Whether Mr. Leiter has sold some of his large holdings for export or not is of little consequence in the present situation. One thing remains evident, namely, that the world's shortage is extremely large, and cannot be over-supplied out of last year's harvest, or the Argentine and India just beginning to be moved.

The following figures show the change in the price of the May option during the past week at the points named:

Point	Feb. 12, 98	Feb. 5, 98
Minneapolis	94 1/2	92 1/2
Chicago	97 1/2	95 1/2
Duluth	98 1/2	96 1/2
St. Louis	99 1/2	97 1/2
New York	99 1/2	97 1/2

These changes show a decline in Minneapolis, 2 1/2%; Chicago, 2c; Duluth, 3c; St. Louis, 2c; New York, 2c.

Referring to the crop of India, Consul General R. F. Patterson, writing to the department from Calcutta, Jan. 4, says in part:

In northern India, the prospects of the wheat harvest are, on the whole, excellent. The area under wheat in the Northwest provinces and Oudh being well up to the average, while the crop is coming along under favorable conditions. The high price of wheat there is a prospect of a large crop, the area sown having greatly exceeded the average. The wheat-growing regions in Bombay, Barar, and the Central provinces, the desire of the people to secure a surplus of wheat, which in an ordinary season, would have been sown with wheat.
