

well known citizen of St. Paul and has met with the approval of a large number of substantial residents and local business men, looking to an effort to induce the railway companies to select a new depot site, say at Seventh and Kittson streets, just west of the bridge over the Northern Pacific, the Great Northern and the Omaha tracks. It is said that a block of land can be secured there at reasonable cost and one which, on account of its central location and its topography, would be in every way adapted to the uses intended. The argument is presented that Seventh street is already a retail street and that in the nature of things it is destined to continue such for a long time to come. It has a street car track in both directions connecting in direct line the east and west sections of the city, and this could be made the basis of transfer to any part of the town. As is well known to those acquainted with the locality, the railroad tracks pass through a natural ravine there and a reference to the plan printed herewith will show that the site of the proposed depot is so located that the tracks for entering and departing trains can be admirably laid for convenience in operating.

It is proposed also that the depot structure shall have its ground floor on a level with the surface of the street and that the tracks shall enter the train shed from the present grade or underneath.

It will be urged that a depot building of massive proportions shall be con-the population to new homes up on the hill the area, as a real estate and business locality, became neglected and sluggish. At the same time it is claimed that it is admirably adapted to the development of the retail business. With Eighth street affording a clear drive without interference of street cars, the locality would become popular for the best class of shoppers.

One of the promoters of the enterprise said yesterday that with the union depot located at this point, thousands of people, who enroute through the city are now indisposed to climb the Sibley street and Third street hills and who can discover no convenience in the way of street car transportation there, would incline to stroll from the plaza along the street or take a car for the enjoyment of a ride, with the result that many thousands of dollars would be expended here every year. It is claimed that the unattractiveness of the surroundings of the present union depot gives the transient traveler an erroneous idea of St. Paul, whereas, if he is delivered in a well appointed depot building, with street cars passing the doors, he will be favorably impressed by the activity of the place, which must naturally result from the development of industries in that section, stimulated by the presence of the depot, into which the arrivals of travelers over all the lines will be constantly poured.

As previously stated, this movement possesses nothing in the nature of hostility to the roads. It is to be presumed

RUNS WITHOUT LICENSE

PECULIAR CONDITION OF THE OLYMPIC THEATER BAR.

Permission to Run the Place Was Granted to George Eddestein, Who Has Since Been Let Out by J. C. Sodini as Responsible Head Found by License Inspector.

The Olympic theater management has again changed hands, and License Inspector Maloney is in something of a quandry. The license to sell liquor at the resort was taken out in the name of George Eddestein, who at the time was employed as a bartender or assistant manager.

Eddestein, however, has been deposed, and J. C. Sodini, after his indictment by the grand jury on a charge of selling liquor without a license, announced that he had sold his interests in the place and was going West.

There was apparently something in the statement, for a bill of sale filed in the city clerk's office shows that the saloon fixtures and all the contents in the barroom at 176 East Seventh street were sold Feb. 10 by J. C. Sodini to Peter Blar, Fred Gronnella and Tony Sodini as copartners for $2,000.

Immediately after the filing of the bill of sale a chattel mortgage was put on record which gives J. C. Sodini possession of the saloon and fixtures, providing there shall be a default in the payment of fifty-four promissory notes aggregating $1,500, given by the purchasers.

What is puzzling License Inspector Maloney is to know how the saloon is run when the license is in Eddestein's name and he is no longer in control, or even employed at the place.

The council has refused, under an opinion from the attorney general of the state, to grant any more transfers of saloon licenses, and the license inspector, fearing more trouble from the grand jury, is thinking seriously of taking out a warrant for the arrest of the present management for selling liquor without a license.

Couldn't Stay Away.

August Anderson, one of the men recently under arrest in connection with the discovery of a party of stolen goods at the home of Oscar Seterstedt, on Whittier street, is again in custody.

He is charged with assault by Mrs. Seterstedt, wife of the man at whose house the party of stolen goods was held, and was sent to the workhouse for twelve months.

It is charged that Anderson called upon Mrs. Seterstedt and forcibly subjected her to his caresses. He will be tried March 2.

ASKS FOR A RECEIVER.

An Illinois Concern After the Wolterstorff-Haskell Company.

The Illinois Pure Aluminum company, an Illinois corporation, has brought suit against the Wolterstorff-Haskell Manufacturing company for the appointment of a receiver of the assets of the latter company, and for judgment for $9,311 and to enforce the individual liability of the stockholders.

The manufacturers' investment company, the Wolterstorff-Haskell Manufacturing company, William H. Kuhlmann, James H. Wood, Alexander H. Kuhlmann, Joseph L. Mackey, Joseph H. Lacey and William D. Moritz, stockholders in the Wolterstorff-Haskell Manufacturing company are also named as parties defendant.

The complaint alleges that the plaintiff company between the months of March and June, certain goods at the agreed price of $9,311, which sum has been paid to the plaintiff. It is further alleged that since the month of January, 1897, the Wolterstorff-Haskell Manufacturing company has been and now is insolvent, and that on July 17, 1897, the said company made an assignment of all its assets to J. H. Wood, for the benefit of creditors.

The complaint alleges that the shares of the Wolterstorff-Haskell Manufacturing company are distributed among the defendants as follows:

John Wolterstorff, Samuel C. Haskell and William H. Kuhlmann, 250 shares each; Manufacturers' Investment company, 100 shares each; James H. Wood, 100 shares each; Alexander H. Kuhlmann, 100 shares each; Edward Vanish and William F. Moritz, 10 shares each.

SAW NOTHING VERY BAD.

Result of Doran's Visit to the Olympic and Palm Garden.

Mayor Doran, when questioned yesterday concerning his "slumming" tour of Friday night, said that he hadn't seen anything so very bad.

"The only women we saw at the Olympic," said his honor, "were two, who appeared on the stage, and they were properly dressed and behaved themselves. In fact, I saw nothing objectionable in the performance. We didn't see any drinks or any other kind of the scenes, though I have been informed that this is done on ordinary occasions. I can't say that I saw anything of the kind at this place, though I have been informed that this practice will not be tolerated."

"As to their right to sell drinks in the auditorium under the license they hold, the corporation attorney has not decided."

The mayor added that he did not observe any violations of the law at the Olympic. The performance was entirely unobjectionable, and the people present behaved themselves in an orderly manner.

WARRANTS FOR GRIFFIN

THE 'MAYOR' WILL BE ARRESTED TOMORROW MORNING

He is Charged with Having Allowed Minors in His Saloon—Warrants for His Bartender and the Man in Whose Name the License Was Also Secured.

The Christian Citizenship league yesterday, through its representatives, caused a warrant to issue for the arrest of "Mayor" Griffin and his bartender, Harvey Donovan, on the charge of allowing minors to frequent the "mayor's" saloon, 33 East Seventh street.

The warrants were not served last night, however, and it is likely that Donovan and the mayor will not be arrested until tomorrow, as kindly-disposed police officers were not desirous of interfering with the large Saturday night and Sunday business at "33."

The warrant was sworn out under a law enacted by the legislature last winter making it a misdemeanor for any saloonkeeper or bartender to allow minors in a saloon or any place where liquor is sold or given away, unless those of tender years, whom the law was designed to protect, were accompanied by their parents or guardians.

The specific case upon which the complaint is based is that of Rose Sullivan and Frances Sullivan, sisters living on Broadway street, whom, it is alleged, were in "Mayor" Griffin's saloon the night of Feb. 17. In the complaint Rose Sullivan is said to be twenty years old, while Frances is alleged to be but eighteen years of age.

It is not charged that the girls were supplied with liquor, but that they did procure several drinks in the saloon, which will perhaps be one of the points which the prosecution will endeavor to establish at the trial.

Another warrant was also sworn out for the arrest of Benjamin Morris, in whose name the license for the "mayor's" saloon was issued. The charge against Morris practically amounts to that of keeping a disorderly house, as it is alleged that Rose Sullivan was allowed to visit and remain in the place.

Morris was formerly a bartender at "Mayor" Griffin's place, but is said not to have any control over the saloon. He is now employed as a waiter at a local cafe.

Rev. David Morgan accompanied Mrs. S. V. Root, who swore out both warrants, when she applied to the clerk of the municipal court for the warrants.

When asked by a reporter for The Globe last night if he had been arrested, "Mayor" Griffin expressed surprise. He said he didn't know warrants had been issued, and wanted to know the charge.

"I do not understand why these people should select my place as a point of attack," said he, "and I have heard nothing of the warrant being sworn out against me, but, if I am wanted, I guess the proper authorities know where to find me. I won't run away, neither will my bartender.

"So far as I am able to ascertain, there is absolutely little or no ground for the charge made in connection with the Sullivan girls. I never allowed minors to enter my saloon, and my bartenders are under strict orders to permit no one under age to enter the place."

"It was ill at the time the Sullivan girls is said to have come here. My bartender told me about her having been here. The girl scarcely put her head inside the doorway before she was ejected."

"It was necessary to put her out, because she refused to go when ordered. The bartender was of the opinion that the girl was under age, and told her to leave. She refused, and was immediately put out, the entire prostructed on the site. The accompanying sketch presents a plan of elevation which affords some idea of what the advocates of the scheme have in mind. The dimensions as proposed are 350 by 600 feet, with a broad plaza on the Seventh street end, for the stocking of vehicles and for promenade.

The location of the ground is fairly high, and a building of superb design and finish would be a commanding architectural ornament, visible from almost every point in the city, and in some directions from long distances away.

The plan of approach assumes Eighth street to be a thoroughfare for vehicles only and undisturbed by street car traffic; and it is thought that eventually this avenue eastward from Robert street to the new depot may come to be an attractive driveway.

From Seventh and Robert the ride to the spot requires less than seven minutes in the electric cars, while the walk is an easy one, with retail stores and shops on either side. Naturally the street car lines would be extended to the site so adjust their operations as to supply ample transportation accommodations and transfer to all parts of the city.

It is urged by those who have suggested this plan that the city, as a whole, must be benefited by the location of the depot at this particular spot. The property under existing conditions, is practically useless. It has now only a few old sheds of no value upon it. It is believed that the selection of this site by the railway companies would have a tendency to induce new life into a section of the city, which at present seems paralyzed. It was formerly a prominent residence locality, but following the removal of ed that the railway companies will naturally hesitate about abandoning the old site, but it is pointed out that the removal of the station could be made of advantage, not alone to the companies by their utilization of the ground for strictly freight traffic, but with especial reference and benefit to the wholesale interests. There would be greater freedom, it is said, in the delivery of freight to some of the important stores abutting on the railway right of way, and generally improved facilities in the handling of merchandise would follow.

The proposed new site could, it is argued, be bought for a sum of money less, perhaps, than that which the Union Depot company contemplate expending in repairs and extensions to the old institution. The company was organized in 1879, and the bonded indebtedness was fixed at $250,000. In 1894 this sum was increased to $500,000. The property is owned jointly by the several railroad companies who use the conveniences, tracks and accommodations. It is claimed by the promoters that nothing in the nature of a real estate directly involved in connection with the proposed new site, or property in the immediate locality.

Assembly Committee on Streets Recommends Its Passage.

The assembly committee on streets held a special meeting yesterday afternoon for the purpose of further considering the long distance telephone ordinance, which, as introduced, was introduced by Messrs. Daly, Day, Albrecht, Thompson and Kirke were present.

TELEPHONE ORDINANCE.

The ordinance, as already published, was read over to the committee, and it was recommended for adoption, after making one more change.

The alteration consists in providing that the Minnesota Central Telephone company shall furnish the service on St. Paul and Minneapolis at a rate not to exceed five minutes' use of the line, instead of three minutes, as was originally proposed.

As recommended by the committee the ordinance requires the company to connect with any and all local telephone exchanges which may at any time secure a franchise to operate within St. Paul.

The ordinance limits the franchise to the period of twenty-five years.

NORTH DAKOTA NOTABLES.

A Party of Them in St. Paul for a Day or Two.

A party of North Dakotans was registered at the Clarendon yesterday. They were J. H. Worst, of Fargo, one-time governor of the state; Mayor W. Fuller, of Jamestown; B. S. Russell, of Jamestown, and Fred Ross, of Jamestown, official court reporter for the state.

The party was entertained during the day by Dr. Archibald, of this city, who was a former resident of North Dakota. Dr. Archibald secured an excellent appropriation which started the first hospital for the insane at Jamestown, and was identified with the institution for ten years previous to his coming to St. Paul.

Mr. Worst enjoys the distinction of being the silver tongued orator of North Dakota. He was lieutenant governor two years ago, and is a staunch Republican. Mr. Worst is the president of the agricultural college of North Dakota. He says that the present enrollment at the school is over 200. North Dakota is, he says, fast taking lead in educational matters.

Senator Fuller is also noted for something up in North Dakota. A number of years ago, so the story goes, Mr. Fuller ran for mayor of "Jintown." It was claimed at the time that his election was partly due to the support which he received from the "blind-pigs." After being elected he exhibited his gratitude for the alleged support of nine-cent votes which the keeps of blind-pigs made accorded him, by running the last cent of them out of town.

Mr. Worst is one of the oldest settlers in the Dakotas, having gone to Bismarck long before any railroad was constructed. He spent the day reviewing acquaintances around the city.

BOY ELIE IN DOLL LAND.

Mrs. Louise Churchill Will Tell of His Adventures Tomorrow Night.

Mrs. Louise Churchill is to give a reading of her illustrated paper doll, "Boy Elie in Paper Doll Land," tomorrow evening in Park Congregational church, St. Paul.

The first reading of this charming child's tale was given in December, during the Kindergarten bazaar, at the residence of Mrs. Thomas Lowry, an entertainer who was attended by an audience of delighted little people. Since then she has offered it on one or two occasions, but will make her first general public appearance with it tomorrow.

The story relates the adventures of Boy Elie, who fell asleep in his play room and wandered to the region of paper dolls. His experiences are recited with an appreciation of a child's interest, and the incidents are illustrated with screen pictures.
