SPECIAL TERM OF RAMSEY COUNTY DISTRICT COURT

Judge Lewis has an interesting question to settle—Arises in the case of the Northwestern Fuel Company Against Joseph Kofod, Defendant, and B. G. Leveeros, Garnishee—Attorney Lomen's Construction.

Judge Lewis has an interesting and novel question to decide. It was presented to the court yesterday in the case of the Northwestern Fuel Company against Joseph Kofod, defendant, and B. G. Leveeros, garnishee.

The garnishee, Mr. Leveeros, was cited to appear before the special term. He was served with the summons just after he had boarded a train for Seattle.

Mr. Lomen based his contention upon the following grounds, as set forth in his moving papers:

But what of the special term of court to which the garnishee was required to appear? When and how was the matter of the special term appointed? We find that Judge Orlando Simons, according to certain entries made by the clerk of the court, filed an order appointing special terms on Saturday of each week, said order being dated March 11, 1896.

No evidence appears that a copy of either of said orders was posted for three weeks, as required by the statute, and the fact that special terms of court were held before Judge Lewis on the date specified in the order for the required time would indicate that it was not deemed necessary to post such notice or copy.

The general terms of said court since created fall upon and were held on the special term, especially when the general term is not adjourned sine die.

But suppose the original order and subsequent order were in all respects regular, which we do not admit, but suppose them to be so, would it be necessary to establish regular and more frequent terms of court than the general terms? Could either of these orders appoint more than one special term? Does it continue beyond the terms of the respective judges making it?

Judge Lewis reserved his decision.

EXPLAINS THE "ONE DOLLAR" CIRCULAR SENT FARMERS

The Secretary of the Farmers' Alliance and Industrial Union says He Alone is to Blame for the Communication—He Was Simply Acting in Accord With a Union Resolution

The resignation of L. C. Long from the presidency of the Farmers' Alliance and Industrial Union promotes First Vice President J. R. Campbell to the presidency.

A move was made by Secretary Campbell to persuade President Long to reconsider his resignation, but yesterday Mr. Hanley received a letter from Mr. Long saying that it was impossible for him to continue at the head of the organization.

"The fact that Mr. Long denounces the action of the Alliance in taking action on the following resolution comes with bad grace at this time.

"The following is the resolution which was adopted unanimously, and was published the following week of the convention in the Representative:

Resolved, That a committee be appointed to select a list of names of farmers throughout the state, prospective of party politics, to be presented to the convention.

"This resolution was presented to the convention while Mr. Long was presiding and adopted unanimously.

"It seems a little late two months after to say that the Alliance descended to an abyss of rottenness to ask for any favors from the Jim Hill plutocratic-made governor, etc."

"In justice to the officers of the Alliance, I should like to explain and explain to the public the make-up of that circular letter, and they did not know of its contents until it was posted in the regular way, and if there is any error, blame or censure, the whole responsibility should rest upon the board of directors.

"I do this act of justice, without being asked, for our executive board, whose names appear on the circular, is hereby authorized and empowered to devise ways and means to put into practical operation the suggestions and instructions of the alliance convention."

"Under this resolution I issued the circular above indicated, whether it was right or wrong, the public must judge. I alone am responsible and deserve praise or blame.

"My reason for making this charge was for two purposes—one to offer it as a bar against all those names who were presented to the convention, and the other to see that the spirit and intention of the resolution, and in the second place to see that the personal interest of the applicant in organizing or reorganizing his local alliance was not in a flourishing condition. As in all cases, the applicant informed that their names would be presented only when they became members of an alliance in good standing on our books, and they were further informed that their $1 would be used in sending literature to their neighbors, they to send in the list and post-office address of their local farmers, which would assist them in organizing their local alliance. How well I figured this out will be seen by the following statement: 'Whole number letters sent, 6,000; number of applicants secured to date, 33; number who sent in their $1 fee, 6; number who did not send in a fee, 2; number who withdrew, 3; total applicants on file at this date, 9. We have placed $1 to the credit of each alliance which the applicant has sent in the $1 fee and have a circular letter in preparation which will cover the whole business from end to end, but we cannot publish same until our alliances have had a chance to organize.

"That explanation ought to satisfy my critics," said Mr. Hanley yesterday. "I am responsible for the money scheme, but Mr. Long himself introduced the resolution to get the names of farmers competent for office positions. As it is I have certainly not a gain in the $1 plan. I am actually out of pocket for the expense of sending the circulars, and I have a larger balance on the receipts. The deficit I have had to make good. I also made up a deficit in the last year's accounts.

"It is nonsense to say that the circular has or will create dissensions and disruption of the Alliance. There will be no trouble. President Campbell will perform the duties of his office and everything will continue as though nothing had happened."

In Memory of Mrs. Bolt. The friends of the late Mrs. Anna Bolt, formerly of this city, will be gratified to know that a special service in her memory will be held this evening at 8 o'clock at the Bethlehem Presbyterian church, in which, for many years, she was an active member, and of which her son, Rev. Nicholas Bolt, was so long a pastor.

She died at the home of her son in Chicago, on the morning of March 19, and was buried there.

She was very active in visiting in homes where she could give sympathy and help, and for years conducted the mothers' meeting with great success in connection with Bethlehem church.

The freedom of the city was voted by the board of aldermen at its meeting.

where the public reception is to be held, and Mr. Daly's and the other addresses delivered as above stated.

Mr. Daly's career has been an eventful one and has been marked by the most complete self-sacrifice and absolute devotion to the cause of his suffering native land.

When a mere boy Daly threw himself heart and soul into the Fenian movement, and his mother, now a hale old lady of eighty-five, and still hopeful of seeing Ireland free, true to the best traditions of the heroic women of the City of the Violated Treaty, helped him cast bullets for the insurrection of 1867.

Prior to the "rising," as it was called, in all the exciting election contests from 1870 to 1880, especially wherever there was any danger of defeat for the national candidate John Daly was in the thick of the fray, and by his best eloquence, and his great influence with the youthful leaders in every section, he more than once turned possible defeat into certain victory.

In the famous election of O'Connor for county of Mayo, as well as in the Charles J. O'Donovan, Ross and Charles J. Kiekham for the premier county, he was also a prominent factor, if not the moving spirit, and, during the O'Connell centenary and other similar events, for the purpose of which was also a potential factor in upholding and disseminating true Irish national sentiment.

Daly came to the United States for the second time about 1880, and, turning again to Ireland in 1882, he was present, a grieved mourner, at the obsequies of his friend and co-worker, the gentle, but unflinching patriot, Charles J. Kiekham, and was appropriately selected by the Irish Nationalists to deliver the oration at the grave in Mullinahone, where the mortal remains of the sweet poet and pure patriot were laid to rest under the shadow of his well-beloved "Shevenamon."

Proprietor of the Olympic Theaters Charged With Selling Liquor Without a License.

Not to be outdone by Mrs. Root on the "reform" question, Mayor Doran yesterday caused the arrest of Peter Blair, proprietor of the Olympic theater, on the charge of selling liquor without a license.

Blair was arraigned in the police court, where he pleaded not guilty to the charge and secured a continuance until March 23. The accused was released on a $500 bond.

The arrest was made on a warrant sworn out by Officer Theelin, of the central police station, who alleges that liquor was sold to himself and James White at the Olympic theater on March 14.

Theelin and White visited the theater, under instructions from Chief Goss, in attendance on the charge of selling liquor without a license. They went through the place and claimed to have purchased liquor in the body of the theater, where the charge of selling liquor without a license, as it is held by the administration that the theater is separate from the bar room proper, which is a license held by the proprietor of the place legalizes the sale of liquors, as in any other saloon.

Blair's arrest is due to his refusal to obey Mayor Doran's order of week ago, which prohibited the sale of liquor to audiences frequenting the theater. Blair claims his liquor license specifies the street number of the theater and that he is entitled to sell liquor any place in the house.

He made known his view to Mayor Doran and informed the city's chief clerk, who proposed to issue an order with his business with no regard to the prohibitory order, and, furthermore, that, if he was arrested, he would fight the case to the limit of the law.

The wording of the complaint shows that cognizance has been taken of Blair's claim as to the specifications of his license, which is a license held by the proprietor of the place legalizes the sale of liquors, as in any other saloon.

When a demand was made for the warrant for Blair's arrest, City Prosecutor Hall at first declined to receive the complaint on the ground that it was an injustice to select the Olympic as a target when other like resorts were running in the city. Upon due consideration, however, the warrant was issued.

NOONDAY LENTEN SERVICES. Meetings Being Held by the Episcopalians in the Chamber of Commerce Find Appreciative Hearers.

Episcopalians in this city feel very much gratified over the services manifested in the half-hour noon Lenten services in the assembly room, chamber of commerce. The daily attendance on the ground that the services is sufficient evidence that they are appreciated.

These services are not only attended by men and women of the Episcopal church, but also ministers of the Christian denominations and many of their followers are numbered amongst the throng who gather there daily. The addresses have been founded upon the parables of our Lord.

During the last two weeks of Lent the subject will have some special reference to the life of Jesus Christ. The services are of an informal character. The Lord's prayer, Creed, a hymn, and the closing with another hymn and two collects, with the blessing.
