

Last Wednesday afternoon in the historic old house in New York, known as "Hamilton Grange," the women of St. Luke's church of New York gave a grand patriotic tea for the benefit of St. Luke's hospital, in commemoration of Alexander Hamilton, who was one of the most brilliant of New York's sons who played a prominent part in the Revolution.

An old college graduate calls attention to the peace and revolution which is going on in the development of the middle age was essentially ecclesiastic in character. Its chief studies were reading, writing, illuminating, violin music, theology, Latin and a little Greek. The first addition to the course was mathematics and sacred geometry. This was followed by philosophy. The mental status of those old days is well illustrated by one of their favorite subjects of discussion, "Are there bald-headed angels in Heaven?"

The details were very handsome. The color effects were all rose and green, and a full string orchestra was in attendance during the ceremony and later during the serving of the luncheon.
