How Mr. Armstrong Overcame Inherited Gout and Rheumatism with Warner's Safe Cure.

In the good old days when torture was employed to loosen the tongues of stubborn witnesses, water was sometimes allowed to fall, drop by drop, upon the victim's forehead. After a short time, the pain passed all endurance, and the witness was willing to tell all he knew; perhaps more. A memory of this barbarity still lingers in our word gout, which is of French origin and means, literally, a drop. Certainly the agony of the disease is comparable with that of the old torture.

"I inherited gout from my father," says G. Archibald Armstrong, of 4507 Germantown Avenue, Philadelphia, "but my doctor was always able to keep the disease within bounds until five years ago when, after a fight with la grippe, I had what the physician cailed muscular rheumatism. For hours at a time I could not raise my arm more than a few inches. My feet swelled and turned purple. Ointments and liniments only irritated the burning flesh. I could not bear the weight of the lightest bed clothes on my feet. The swelling had extended to my thighs, and my family were getting anxious about me, when a valued friend insisted that my kidneys were at fault and persuaded me to try Warner's Safe Cure.

"The swelling began to subside within forty-eight hours, but the third bottle of Safe Cure was consumed before I felt myself on the way to recovery. I realized at las that I had a certain remedy against my old enemy, gout, and that the Safe Cure was cleaning my system of every trace of rheumatic poison.

"This was five years ago. Since that time I have been exposed to all sorts of weather, but I keep well, and have almost forgotten that such a thing as gout or rheu-

It is the business of the kidneys to take from the blood a substance called urate of soda, which forms tiny, sharp-edged crystals, hard as granite and poisonous as a rattlesnake's bite, although slow in action. When the kidneys are diseased, the blood deposits these death-laden crystals where circulation is slowest--in the toes, the joints and the ears. The sharp edges cut into the flosh. That is what makes the maddening pain of rheumatism and gout. Mr. Armstrong's friend was right. The kidneys were at fault, and when Warner's Safe Cure had strengthened them the unwelcome legacy

All the talk about star chamber business was due to the imagination of several gentle-

Darragh predicted that a ticket would be nominated which would be elected and the banner Democratic county of the state redeemed from the hands of incompetent officials. The Republican party and press were endeavoring to create the impression that the party was divided, but there were no dissensions in the party, and it stood united for the good of the party and

"Everything points," he said yesterday, "to a tremendous increase in the Democratic vote this year. Mr. Hinds will, I am sure, draw heavily from the Republicans this year. Mr. Heatwole is not as popular as he was. He has een unfortunate in a number of appointments in naming for the offices at his bestowal one of two candidates whose political pull was the smaller. This was true in Hutchinson and it has been true elsewhere in the district. The disappointed ones will be found this year lukewarm instead of earnest party workers that they were previous ly, and I am not sure but that in some cases they will be found openly opposing Mr. Heatwole's return to congress. ## BEATEN WITH A BILLY

ARRESTED WITHOUT CAUSE

And Subjected to Treatment That According to His Story, Calls for a Rigid Investigation - Beaten in the Central Lockup and Made to Crawl Back Into His Cell While Bruised and Bleeding.

Lying on his bed, battered and bruised, David M. Swank, the contractor, at 309 South Exchange street, related to a Globe reporter how he was assaulted in the central police station on the night of Sept. 19 by Night Jailer Louis Galvin. Mr. Swank is covered with black and blue marks received, he says, at the hands of Galvin. Here is the contractor's story, taken verbatim by The Globe yesterday afternoon: "On Monday afternoon, Sept. 19, I returned to St. Paul after having comreturned to St. Paul after having completed some railroad work in the northern part of the state. I was on Robert street with a boarding house boss, who had some money due him, and had in my possession pay rolls, board bills, statements of accounts, books and papers in different pockets, also a revolver, which I usually carry in my business. I left the boarding house boss at 4 o'clock at the corner of Sixth and Robert streets, where he took an in-Robert streets, where he took an interurban car, and I started for Seventh street to catch a West Seventh street car. I thought I saw my car coming, so broke into a run, and in doing so held the papers in my hip pocket where my revolver was so that they would not fall out. I also placed hand in my breast pocket for a similar purpose. "I noticed a man that I knew and whose name I do not wish to tell at present. This man when he saw me ran and spoke to a policeman, who at once placed me under arrest, charging me with carrying concealed weapons. I protested, but without getting any satisfaction, and was taken to the police station in the patrol wagon. In the station I again protested, but was placed in a cell. I had eaten nothing all day and asked Night Jailer Galvin to get me something to eat. He swore at me and said that I had no money. I had at the time over $2 in silver and Iso had a check for $100 which they had taken away from me at the ser-geant's desk. I told Galvin of the oney and said I would also pay for his services. He again swore at me. "I began to feel ill and asked for a doctor, which Galvin paid no attention He finally brought me a glass of water at my urgent appeal, but threw the water deliberately into my face. I cursed him for doing it, and said that nobody but a cur would do such a thing. He swore at me and said:

"'I know you and have got you at st. I know your reputation.'
"'Well do I know yours,' I respondlast. ed, 'from Smith's administration down, and for tonight's work you should never hold a position under any mayor.

"He roundly cursed me, and said: "I know the record of your daughter,' at which I answered: Whatever is the record of my daughter, she is as good as your wife or your wife's sister.' Galvin then threw three or four pails or pans of water on me, and I pleaded with him to be a man and let me out and give me a chance to defend myself. And he did!"

Mr. Swank's condition bears mute testimony to the fact that he was let out, but that he did not get a chance. Continuing, he said: "Galvin went away, but returned in about ten minutes, and, opening the door of my cell, called me by name and said: "'You can come out now."

"I did so, thinking that I was to be released. The cell door was low, and I being tall I stooped to get out, when Galvin struck me repeatedly with a billy or policeman's club in the right eye, over the cheek and in various parts of the face. He knocked all of my teeth loose, and finally knocked me down and kicked me repeatedly in the small of the back and on both hips. I was in terrible pain and was unable to get up. Galvin said:

"'G— d— you crawl back into your cell.' This I did.

"'All this happened about 11 o'clock at night. Galvin then passed and repassed my cell door, tormenting me, but I refused to argue further with At daylight I begged for medical attendance, but was refused it by both the night jailer and the day jailer, the being John Harris.

"In the municipal court Lieut. Boerner requested me not to tell the judge who had hit me, as he wanted to investigate the case. My case was continued, and I went to a doctor's and then went home to bed, where I have been ever since.

"I am an old soldier and a respecta-ble man. I do not like to have my name appear in the papers in connection with such an affair, but I think that the matter should be ventilated and the police department shown that they cannot brutally abuse the citizens of this city the way they did me. I will prosecute the case until the bitter end. My attorney is John A.

TAKE A RELIGIOUS CENSUS. St. Paul Clergymen Decide to Secure Some Statistics. The first fall meeting of the St. Paul Pastoral association occurred yesterday at the Plymouth Congregational church, and Wabasha, with a large attendance. Hugh Cork, superintendent of the state Sunday school convention, with headquarters in Minneapolis, made an address on the ad-visability of procuring a religious census of St. Paul. Mr. Cork spoke interestingly and pointed out the many benefits that would be gained by having such a census.

At the close of the address it was unanimously voted to have a religious census. A corps of volunteers will be selected from each church, no denomination barred, to help in the canvass of the city, and it is expected that the entire canvass can be made in one

Death of an Old Soldier. Henry Lobamer, a veteran of the Civil war, died at his home, 361 Hope street, yesterday, at the age of seventy-eight. He was a member of Company G, Forty-eighth Pennsylvania volunteers, and served three years and two months, receiving a wound at the battle of Gettysburg and another at the batbattle of Gettysburg and another at the bat-tle of Petersburg. He also served a num-ber of years in the German army.

Mr. Lobamer was a member of Acker post, and all members of the organization are asked to attend the funeral from his late residence at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, going via the East Seventh street cars.

Fire broke out in the residence of George W. Darby, 774 Livingston avenue, at 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon and caused considerable damage before it was extinguished. The conflagration was started by an attempt to start a kitchen, fire with kerosene.

Miss Emma Darby poured some oil on the wood in the stove and then tossed in a lighted match. Some of the kerosene had been spilled on her apron which, when the flames blazed up, caught fire and painfully burned the young woman before she could divest herself of the burning garment. The kitchen

"I see the Minneapolis papers, especially the Times, are greatly worried over the action of a man ramed Kirkham. I-don't know Kirkham, but he does not seem to be doing any good for Mr. Eustis. I don't see that it is any part of the province of the state central committee to deprive any American citizen of the privilege of working for or against any man or party as he pleases. Mr. Kirkham is not an agent of this committee, and it is in no wise responsible for his acts, which seem to be inspired by a deep earnestness, whatever his motive. "Mr. Kirkham is only one of thous-

the field, there will be a legion, and there will be a disposition on the part of this legion to mark an X opposite the name of John Lind for governor." The Democratic state central committee has just gotten out a handsome lithograph of Mr. Lind. Charles A.
