SPOKE AT ST. CLOUD IN THE AFTERNOON

Stearns County Gave Mr. Lind a Hearty Greeting, and His Remarks Carried Conviction to Those Who Listened—Henry Keller Defeated—Judge Willis at Mora—Minnesota Politics.

LITTLE FALLS, Minn., Oct. 13.—(Special.)—Hon. John Lind tonight addressed one of the largest and most attentive audiences ever seen in the local opera house.

The union nominee spoke briefly on the "moral effect" which Mr. Eustis claimed it would have on this country if a congress were returned this fall that did not coincide with the views of the present administration.

He showed how the fusion legislature passed the bill for the manufacture of prison twine to enable the farmer to get that article at a fair price, a bill which also played havoc with the cordage trust.

Mr. Lind eulogized Judges Mitchell, Cady and Buck, and showed also why Childs, Steenerson and Collins were turned down.

Speaking of Mr. Towne, Mr. Lind said: "If you want to feel that the work which is before us is well done you must send that man congress who insure the right disposition of the questions now before the people, and the other great questions that would arise in the future."

Mr. Lind said that if the fusion legislature in 1891 had made such large appropriations, why did not the Republican governor veto them?

Indians Complain Bitterly of the Way They Have Been Treated, and State Their Grievances in a Pointed Way—Correspondents Invited to Be Present and Hear the Talk—Meeting Today.

Staff Special to The St. Paul Globe.

WALKER, Minn., Oct. 12.—The issue of war or peace is still open. A conference was held today at which the Bear Island hostiles and the agency Indians were represented and the situation was talked over after the Indian fashion.

Commissioner Jones favors giving the Indians all the time they want to council and this evening announced that if the Indians wanted more time he would grant it.

Bug-Ah-Mah-Ge-Shig is opposed to any of his band surrendering or laying down their arms, and it is not now a sure thing that the soldiers will not have to go after him and a part of his gang.

The "question printing" men, as the Indians call the correspondents, were not ordered to secure permission from Commissioner Jones to attend the council today, which was held in the woods back of Leech lake.

DRAMATIC SCENE. The scene was unique, dramatic and thrilling. Each of the chiefs and braves who spoke prefaced his talk with "My friends, I now wish to say a few words," and would up with the declaration: "This is all I have to say."

In the large room over 100 Indians gathered. Some wore store clothes, others were garbed in costumes which put the descriptions of dime novels in the shade.

Two men from the hostile camp were present and made talks. Nothing was said about the surrender of the men wanted by the marshal, and this will probably be considered at the council tomorrow.

Much satisfaction was exhibited at the statement that Commissioner Jones would settle all troubles and had telegraphed Washington to hurry up the payment of the annuity claimed to be over-due nearly a year.

Representatives from the tribes at Cass lake, White Earth, Pine Point and Leech lake agency talked and all promised to be good Indians.

The features of the pow-wow were the speeches made by Kay-Gwa-Chew-Way-Bin-Ing, Flat Mouth, Mah-Chew-Gay-Low, May-Gway-We-Nind and Oh-Gwin-Ah-Na-Gah-Dow, the last two being from the hostile camp and the latter one of the men wanted by the marshal.

Stepping up to the interpreter, Kay-Gway-Chew-Way-Bin-Ing asked that the correspondents do the Indians a favor.

"I am going to tell," he said, "the cause of our present trouble. It is because of the action of half-breed deputy United States marshals, who have been making indiscriminate arrests upon this reservation. They are disturbing me, and with my body they tried to make money. It seems as though it was my money they were after, because all of the arrests do not amount to anything."

"I want also to refer to the cutting of timber. We do not like to have them destroy our pine. I am going to tell of those who are following us up in this manner. I shall name one half-breed who visits here frequently. The white people call him Ed (reference is made to Ed Warren, deputy United States marshal). He is the man who has cleaned out the White Earth reservation of its timber. Now he has come upon this reservation to do the same thing with our timber. He is responsible to a great extent for the present troubles."

"Even I was a lumberman last winter. They sent a paper by men whom I do not know, and I did not know that I had made a contract with any one. It was William Bonga who did this, and when a settlement was called for, he sold himself when he found there was

BANK EXAMINER KENYON.

John Lind Might Have Told About a Note Owned by the Defunct Minnesota Savings Bank.

John Lind, in his speech at Exposition hall, Minneapolis, Monday evening, exposed some of the devious ways of the state department for the examination of banks.

The conduct of the state examiner's office furnishes a striking example of official incompetency and indifference to the welfare of the public.

Mr. Kenyon called on him to pay his note for $1,000 held by the receivers.

The legislature of 1897 made an investigation of insolvent banks. The testimony taken before the legislative committee showed that a report made by Assistant Bank Examiner Longenecker in October, 1895, was not filed with the governor until February, 1897.

These dates show that during at least a part of the time that this report of the assistant bank examiner was hidden away in Bank Examiner Kenyon's office this very bank had in its possession as collateral to Mr. Bickel's $1,250 note a note of Bank Examiner Kenyon himself for $1,000—the one referred to simply and unostentatiously on Exhibit No. 122 as "Note for $1,000—M. D. K."

The following extract from Mr. Kenyon's testimony before the investigating committee was printed in The Globe of Dec. 15, when Mr. Kenyon's transaction was made public:

Mr. Peig asked: "Mr. Kenyon, the time of the embarrassment of the Minnesota Savings bank, was it under your advice that they discounted sixty days' notes?"

Mr. Kenyon—No, sir.

Mr. Sheehan—Did you know the Minnesota Savings bank was embarrassed?"

Mr. Kenyon—I supposed it was.

Mr. Sheehan—Did you or any of your men know anything about its condition?"

Mr. Kenyon—No; we had four banks on our hands at that time.

Mr. Head—Mr. Kenyon, in that examination of the Minnesota Savings bank in 1895, it is not a fact that the examination was not filed with the governor for over a year?"

Mr. Kenyon—It was not. We were very busy at the time. I trust the committee will realize the position I am in now.

We have banks that we are discussing the question of adjustment of capital, and until I get that adjusted I don't want to turn that over to the governor without saying so.

Thus Mr. Kenyon causes the delay of a year and four months in submitting a report of an institution the insolvency of which was questioned by his own assistant by saying: "We were busy this time."

Bank Examiner Kenyon's office, at the very outside, is not more than 100 feet from that of the governor, and yet it took him a year and four months to find time to dictate a two-line note and submit a report, which is claimed, the governor should have had at once.

Mr. Lind make it strong enough?

Due Oct. 25, '98.—William Bickel. (Signed.)

On the back of the note is written, "No. 20, '98. Paid on within note $1,000." When the receivers of the Minnesota Savings bank had examined all the papers turned over to them and began to try to realize on the assets, Senator Sheehan, one of the receivers, wrote a letter to Mr.
