PATIENT DRESSED OUTDOORS

CITY HOSPITAL NEIGHBORS EX-CITED OVER THE INCIDENT

Women Saw, as They Thought, a Sick Man Turned Out in the Rein Naked.

According to the story of two restdents living adjacent to the city hospital, James Ryan, a patient at the institution, was turned out in the rain Tuesday afternoon in a nightgown and compelled to dress out of doors. Dr. Ancker says the story of the women who claim to have witnessed the incident is incorrect and misleading.

The women say that between 2 and o'clock Tuesday afternoon they saw a bundle of clothing thrown out of a rear door at the hospital. A few minutes later, they say, a man came out, clad only in a nightgown, and dressed himself in the rain. The sight so shocked the women, they say, that they went to the hospital and asked the ward master what was the meaning of the affair. The latter told them, say the women, that the man's clothing was said: full of vermin and that he would not longer be allowed to remain at the institution. The women say they then interrogated the patient and learned that his name was James Ryan. He told them, according to their story, that he was in the last stages of consumption and that he had been thrown out of the hospital without friends or a place of shelter.

In addition to the charges made by the women in the Ryan case, one of dows and killed himself. Ancker said last evening that the for you cannot make people believe stories told by the women reflected unterease great issues when they do justly on the hospital, inasmuch as discharge from the hospital, and that the man had dressed himself outside of his own accord. Said Dr. Ancker:

the police in the rear of a saloon on time. St. Peter street. The history sheet shows that the odor of liquor was about him at the time. Rvan claimed to have lived in St. Paul fifteen years. From the clinical history sheet I found that Ryan's case was diagnosed as acute alcoholism and consumption. From the facts in the case, as I learned them. I decided that Ryan had no legal claim to care in the hospital and ordered his general hospital, treat the man for consumption, and if he was suffering from the effects of alcohol and was not entitled to care here, we did not want him. For this reason only, and not because he had vermin about his clothing. I discharged him. When I did so I did not know that his clothing was infected with vermin. This was not discovered until he had been informed of his discharge. Ordinarily when a patient comes to the hospital his clothing is fumigated. A new ward tender was on duty when Ryan came in, and the man's clothing did not undergo the fumigating process. It was taken to the clothing room where the apparel of over 100 other patients is kept, and here when the ward tender went to get his clothing he found it literally alive with "The rest of the story can best be told by the wardrobe tender himself," said Dr. Ancker, calling to a young man in another room who gave his name as Victor Holm, and said: "I went to the clothing room to get Ryan's clothes, the same as I do when any patient has received his discharge. I found the clothing covered with vermin. I took the clothes down stairs and put them on the steps, just outside of the back door, on the ground floor, of supporting, in part at least, both the where Ryan's room was. I told him his state and county ticket. clothes were full of vermin, and that he must remain at the hospital another day until the clothes could be cleaned. He said he would not do so. I gave him his underclothes, and was then called to another part of the hospital. When I returned Ryan was standing on the back steps where I had eft his outside clothing, and was dress-Ing himself. He had gotten up in my absence, after being told that he could not leave for another day, and instead of being ordered out, had of his own accord gone to work putting on his clothing. He was not in a night dress, but, on the contrary, had on his un-derclothing, a pair of slippers and had wrapped about him a blanket such as patients wear when about the halls. It was not raining, as the women say."

At the conclusion of Holm's version of the affair, Dr. Ancker said the y ung man had been employed at the hospital for two and a half years, and that he considered Holm trustworthy and one of the most reliable assistants about

In speaking of the case referred to by the women when a patient had jumped from a window, Dr. Ancker said it was true that a man with de-lirium tremens had jumped out of a window last spring, but Dr. Ancker says the fall did not kill him. The man lived several hours after the fall, Dr. Ancker said, and a post mostem examination had shown that he died from natural causes. This was the first case of the kind, Dr. Ancker said, during the sixteen years he has had charge of the hospital. He figures that 17,000 patients have been cared for during this time, many of them raving maniacs, and the fact that one such escaped the vigilance of the attendants and jumped out of a window, while unfortunate. Dr. Ancker says does not reflect on the institution. The cause of the charges made by the women, Dr. Arcker says, is due to the resentment of the presence of the hospital by some few residents of the neighborhood.

IT WAS A WARM ONE.

Last Night's Democratic Meeting in the Eighth.

The meeting of the Lind and Willis club at Jarosz' hall last night was attended by 200 residents of the Eighth abruptly. ward, and was sufficiently enthusiastic in character to show that there will be plenty of interest in the Democratic campaign in the ward, and that there will be an old-time majority on election day. The club was organized only two weeks ago, but the membership roll has grown greatly, and it was said that within a few days the membership would reach 400 or more. Aaron Poupeney was in the chair, and on the platform with him were the other officers of the association, Chairman Esch and Secretary Heintz and several of the candidates. In the audience there were a number of Republicans, who avowed their intention state and county ticket. Chairman Poupeney in calling the meeting to order pointed to the need for effective organization, and put the club in evidence of what could be done if attention was given to the work. He pointed to the record of the club in past campaigns and said that he expected that the members would be able to turn out a parade, if occasion required, that would settle the attitude of that portion of the Eighth and demonstrate that the ward was going to give a Democratic majority that they could be proud of as Democrats. He introduced J. C. Michael as a coming ornament to the Ramsey county bench. Mr. Michael was received with great applause, and he made an earnest, forceful talk on the necessity for the Democracy standing together now when the assurance of victory was offered. He gave some of the issues involved in the state, county and legislative campaigns, and was given assurance of hearty support in everything he said.

James A. Meade, Democratic candidate for clerk of the court, was intro-duced and made a brief speech, in which he reviewed the situation and urged a cordial support for the entire

Herman Oppenheim said that it was evident that the next presidential campaign must be made on the question of imperialism, but that the duty of the people now was to rescue the state and county from the hands of the politicians who now control.

Oscar Tankenoff made an earnest talk, in which he said he trusted that the Democrats would give their support to the whole ticket and vote it from top to bottom-or they could reverse that order if they liked and vote it from bottom to top, as he was very near the end of the ticket.

W. B. Hennessy, candidate for the legislature in the district in which the meeting was held, invited comparison between the gang wile of the country. between the gang rule of the county at the present day and the rule under the Democracy, and urged his hearers to elect such officers as would be in accord with John Lind, who would mest assuredly be the next governor.
M. J. McCarthy, W. T. Scandell and Frank Kelly contributed each a few remarks, and the meeting adjourned. The club will meet again in regular session next Wednesday evening, and on Thursday evening of next week will hold a mass rally in Jarosz's hall.

TONIGHT'S RALLY.

There Is Every Indication of a Big One.

The rally scheduled for this evening at Mozart hall will be the formal opening of the Democratic campaign in the county, and it is regretted by the county committee that no larger place of assemblage could be had. The hall will be packed without regard to the weather, and the beggarly showing made by the Republicans on their opening night will necessarily be contrasted with the turnout tonight. The meeting will be given up to a fair, plain discussion of the issues of the campaign, and, of the candidates, only Judge Willis will be among the speakers.

The speakers will be Humphrey Barton, Judge Willis, Pierce Butler and F. W. M. Cutcheon. The addresses will be brief, but will fully cover the ground, Mr. Butler addressing himself principally to the state campaign, Judge Willis to the congressional, and Mr. Cutcheon to the county issues. E. A. Young will preside, and there will be a large list of vice president. There will be a band in attendance, and the affair promises to be not only

The meeting was called to order promptly at 8 o'clock, but only twenty-seven members responded to their names. E. R. Bryant acted as temporary chairman, and Oscar Christian as temporary secretary. Chairman Bryant announced that the purpose of the meeting was for the organization of a regular Republican Central Sixth Ward club. E. G. Rogers pictured how annoyed President McKinley would feel if a Democrat should be elected governor, and said the country would go to ruin if Congressman Stevens should not be returned to congress to back up the president in his policy of peace or war. in a great crisis.

The real good thing was the address by John Swift, of Minneapolis. Mr. Swift recited from memory page after page of Macaulay's history, dovetailed with sections from congressional reports, and wound up by comparing William Henry Eustis with Napoleon, giving the Minneapolis man the best of the comparison.

This story was gotten from the woman by questioning and as she speaks very poor English it is not clear as to the nature of the alleged assault.

An assistant city physician committed. An assistant city physician examined the woman and had her sent to the city hospital. Last evening her case had been diagnosed as typhoid fever. Dr. Ancker said, however, that the woman had reiterated her story of the assault at the hospital and that the case might develop serious complications.

Relief Agent Hutchins took charge of the woman's children and turned the little ones over to an Italian family, where they will be
