

WORTH DEDICATING TO PRINCIPLES LAID DOWN BY WASHINGTON AND JEFFERSON AS TO ALLIANCES SO URGES DANIEL W. LAWLER

In the course of an address on Lafayette at St. Joseph's Academy he recommends that... So URGES DANIEL W. LAWLER

Lafayette day was duly observed yesterday in response to the suggestions of the Lafayette monument commission.

The services in honor of America's French compatriot in the various schools of the city, and at the instance of Gov. Clough the offices at the capitol were closed during the afternoon.

At St. Joseph's academy last night there were also exercises of a patriotic character, the chief feature being an address by Daniel W. Lawler, who eloquently reviewed the career of Lafayette and some of his associates.

In this connection there is another thought which might be well to express, and the purpose of evoking the latent hostility of Americans to any foreign power, but in order that the true history be spoken and claims of international gratitude be admitted.

The United States is now a mighty force on land and sea. With her vast resources our country has emerged from the isolation of the past, and in the cause of humanity and human progress she has become a part of the world that henceforth America must be reckoned with in wide-world affairs.

With power comes responsibility, and it is the duty of all the citizens of this republic to be true to the principles of the fathers, America has remained true to the principles of the fathers, and she will remain true to the principles of the fathers.

At the central high school exercises were held during the fourth period in assembly hall, where the entire school assembled and listened to a couple of addresses on the life of Lafayette.

Gov. Clough's proclamation, issued a couple of weeks ago, urging the general observance of the day, was read by Miss Mary Doyle.

MURDERER IS STOLN STEENBERG SAYS HIS VICTIM NEED ONLY HAVE GIVEN HIM THE MONEY RUTH PARISH WAS HER NAME

Her Mother Lives in the South, and the Dead Woman Has Been a Conspicuous Figure in Certain Circles, Both Here and at Paris—Inquest Will Be Held Today.

Apparently wholly indifferent to the self-confessed crime of murder, John Steenberg, the young Norwegian who killed Ruth Parish, Tuesday night, was formally arraigned in the police court yesterday on the charge of murder in the first degree.

The occasion was the celebration of a public jubilee in honor of the centennial of the death of George Washington. The university chapel was hung with national colors, and the rostrum was festooned with bunting of red, white and blue.

Proceeding Dr. Wright's address, President G. H. Bridgman, of the university, addressed a few words to the audience in the nature of a welcome to the speaker.

One of the valuable lessons which had been taught the American people by the glances of Steenberg, and an ardent lover of latent patriotism, but few had ever dreamed that the United States would be able to equip and put in the field an army of nearly a quarter of a million men in a few months.

"Peace and war are vital subjects in the minds of the people now, and I deem it a great honor to speak before an audience of college men on an occasion of this kind."

"The war has marked a renewal of patriotism and cemented together the North and the South. Old animosities were buried, and the ties which were severed by the war have been reknit."

"The church and state must not be looked upon together. One is of God, the other is of man. One of the results of this country is the separation of church and state and a broadening of the principles of the governmental functions."

MISS EGAN'S DEBUT. St. Paul Girl Appeared with the Morton Opera Co. Last Evening.

Miss Sylvia Egan, the daughter of P. F. Egan, of this city, made her first appearance on the professional stage at the Metropolitan last night.

As near as could be learned the woman was the daughter of the man who gave the name of George Woodworth about five weeks ago.

Miss Egan had chosen to sing "A May Morning" by Benz, and her rendition of the pretty ballad was most pleasing.

She was known, however, by the name of George Woodworth, the name of the man with whom she lived for several weeks in the room where she was killed.

The postoffice mark on the card showed that the letter was mailed in Birmingham, Ala. The message read to the effect that the mother had gone to Memphis, Tenn., for a visit, but would come to St. Paul in a few days.

HAMLIN'S PEACE JUBILEE. METHODIST COLLEGE REJOICES IN CESSATION OF HOSTILITIES

Rev. John Wright yesterday afternoon, at Hamline, discussed territorial expansion in the university chapel before a large audience of patrons of the institution and citizens of that suburb.

The occasion was the celebration of a public jubilee in honor of the centennial of the death of George Washington. The university chapel was hung with national colors, and the rostrum was festooned with bunting of red, white and blue.

Proceeding Dr. Wright's address, President G. H. Bridgman, of the university, addressed a few words to the audience in the nature of a welcome to the speaker.

WILLIAM CUNNINGHAM, A PIONEER DEALER IN HORSES AND CATTLE

Commercial circles in St. Paul, and, indeed, throughout the Northwest, will be shocked this morning to learn of the sudden death at his home, 441 Virginia avenue, last night, of William Cunningham, one of the most prominent figures in the live stock trade in the section of the country for many years.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. Cunningham was around his place of business at South St. Paul as usual, but soon after he returned home, feeling seriously ill and expired in a brief interval. Heart disease is the supposed cause of his death.

Mr. Cunningham was fifty-four years of age and had been in business in and around the city since his early manhood. In the days when the old Minnesota Transfer was the great distributing point for cattle and horses and other live stock, the firm of Cunningham & Haas was one of the most prominent.

Mr. Cunningham leaves a wife and family. The funeral arrangements have not yet been made.
