

ELECTRICITY AS A CURATIVE!

MILD, CONTINUOUS CURRENTS MOST BENEFICIAL.

The Power of Electricity Over Disease.

The knowledge gained in recent years from close study of the scientific treatment of disease has placed electricity in the foreground as the one and only successful remedy—the only remedy known to science which cures diseases without injuring the membranes of the stomach. With the growth of this knowledge electricity is fast superseding all other plans of treatment in the great variety of chronic, nervous and functional diseases, especially those that are due to a decrease of nervous vital power. Among the various remedies placed within the reach of man for these many disease conditions, none is so well adapted as electricity, since it is easy to ascertain its curative power in all diseases by observation and experiment: its effect upon the various functions is evident immediately upon application; it can be applied directly to the diseased or weakened function; and can be continued or checked in its action at a moment's notice; in powerful contrast to the use of drugs taken internally, which leave the patient in ignorance as to the probable effect or the extent of the good or bad results until the force of the drug has spent.

It must not, however, be used in a careless and haphazard manner. It is well known that of the various forms in which it has been used, there is none that compares in value to the even, continuous flow of the current into the system. The great disadvantage attending the application from the physician's battery is the inconvenience and inability of applying the remedy to the seat of the disease and the affected parts, and the impossibility of applying the current in a volume mild enough to be absorbed by the nerves. Be it understood that the human nerves and the vital organs dependent upon them are extremely sensitive, and electricity given from a battery shocks and jars them to such an extent that the result is more often injurious than beneficial, hence the need of the mild, soothing and invigorating currents of galvanic and voltaic force generated by Dr. Sanden's Electric Belt. From this appliance the power is absorbed by the entire nervous and organic system is saturated with its life-giving force; the nerves are kept for hours at a time, and can be regulated to any degree the patient may desire. It is by far the most modern and nearest perfect appliance known for the treatment of disease, and is today doing more to restore weak men and women to health and vigor than all other remedies combined.

A Case of Stricture Cured.

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 9, 1898.
Dr. A. T. Sanden: I found your belt all it was recommended to be. It entirely cured me of STRICTURE. I cannot help but advise my friends to use it. Yours truly,
B. F. BISHOP,

Used Successfully for Kidney Trouble and Lame Back.

Minneapolis, March 15, 1898.
Dr. A. T. Sanden—Dear Sir: I purchased one of your No. 5 belts some time ago and have used it successfully for Kidney trouble and Lame Back. I only used it four nights. I read lots about its curative power, but had no idea that it would cure me in such a short time, and I therefore take the pleasure in recommending the belt to any one suffering from the same disease. Yours very respectfully,
L. O. SHIBLEY,

It is Easy to Apply and Not Complicated.

Minneapolis, April 15, 1898.
For the past three years I have used a No. 5 Dr. Sanden Electric Belt off and on with entire satisfaction. The belt now is as good as new; is easy to apply and in no way complicated.

Is Very Grateful, and With Good Reason.

Neehe, N. D., Oct. 21st, 1898.
A little over a month ago I sent to you for a belt, which you sent me. I charged and put on the belt the same evening it was received, and have worn it every night since. I have received great good from it; my back and kidneys are entirely cured. My memory is better and so is my eyesight; life seems so much sweeter. I feel as though I could pick up a house and carry it. My heart was in the habit of stopping quite often. I cannot describe that awful feeling that came over me when it would stop. I think it is like death. My heart has not stopped since I first put the belt on, and this is worth so much that I shall ever feel grateful to you. Yours truly,

NICHOLAS SEDORE.

Consider It Far Superior to Any Medicine.

Dr. A. T. Sanden:
The belt I purchased seven years ago has given entire satisfaction. Used by myself for rheumatism and neuralgia, and by my wife for female weakness, giving permanent relief in both cases. I consider it far superior to any medicine in all cases for which it is recommended. Yours truly,

Worth Its Price Many Times Over.

Dr. Sanden:
The $15 belt I bought from you has been worth its price many times over. Like many railroad men I had been troubled with my back and kidneys. When I got the belt I was in such bad shape that had you laid $100 on the floor and told me to pick it up I could not have done it. But since using the belt I have had no more trouble with my kidneys, and one in a while when I feel a little pain in my back, I use the belt a few hours and it never fails to cure me.

THEY REMEMBER EUSTIS

Plenty of Men in Northern Minnesota Who Cannot Forget the Lumber Firm of Which He Was a Member.

Samuel Rothschild, of Minneapolis, Has a Few Souvenirs of the Days of Long Ago That He Is Showing His Friends.

William Henry Eustis' transactions as a member of the firm of Eustis, Neal & Co., and later of the Neal Carr Lumber company, has been a subject of frequent comment among lumbermen and river men during the present campaign. It is common talk among many of the men in that part of the state where the transactions were carried on that more than one man who did business with the firm of Eustis, Neal & Co., and later with the firm of Neal, Carr & Co., had a grievance. Some of them have more than a grievance. Some of them have souvenirs in the shape of scrip issued by Eustis, Neal & Co., and others have souvenirs in the shape of time checks which are still unpaid.

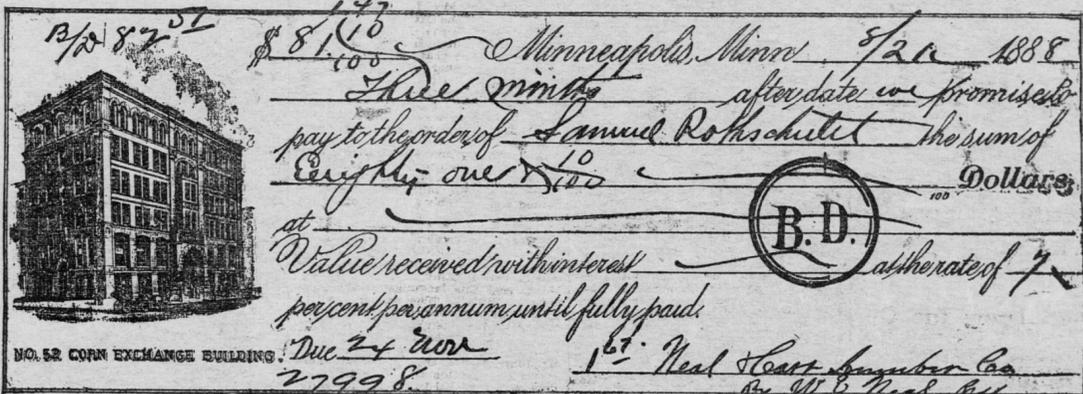

The Globe on Saturday morning, Oct. 15, contained an article giving the experience of C. C. Sutton, the Northern Minnesota lumberman with the firm of which the present candidate wanted him to join the Traveling Men's Eustis club.

"What, vote for Eustis? Not me," said Mr. Rothschild. "I have had business relations with Mr. Eustis and I wouldn't vote for him for governor if he was the only man left in the state. And Mr. Rothschild has told every man who suggested Eustis to him the story of his experiences.

"I accepted a number of time checks of the Neal, Carr Lumber company and they were paid. When the two checks (facsimiles of which are herewith given) were presented, I went to Mr. Eustis' office and asked him if they were all right. He told me they were; for me to have no hesitation in cashing them. I was then in business in Minneapolis, and for the $40 check I gave some article of wearing apparel and paid the balance in cash.

"The other was cashed also, a small purchase possibly having been made. But, when the time came when the

ANOTHER SOUVENIR.

Frank F. Price,
Attorney & Counsellor at Law
Grand Rapids,
Iasca Co. Minn.

October 6th 1898

Mr. Samuel Rothschild
404 Boston Block Minneapolis Minn

Dear Sir:
As per request of Mr. J. N. True & yourself I enclose you Promissory Notes dated 8/21/88 & 8/23/88 respectively for the sum of $81.00 & $40.00 respectively. These are sent to you upon the express understanding that if the amount due upon said notes is paid by W. H. Eustis or any other person in full or in part that the amount of fees and charges now due the firm of True & Neal & True & Price & Frank F. Price as successor to that firm are to be paid and satisfied in full. If claims are not paid the Notes are to be returned to me.

Yours truly

soldiers is that they are opposing Congressman Fletcher as well as Eustis. Heretofore your Uncle Loren has been able to coddle the vets more or less, but they are gradually "getting on to his curves" too. The Standard, the old soldiers' paper, in its last issue couples Fletcher with Eustis, and in connection with the refusal of Knute Nelson to appear at the "Breaker" meeting for Webster and Eustis says:

"Mr. Nelson doubtless remembers the time in the 'Blood' district, when the Republican candidate for governor had hands with kindred in probably the most corrupt campaign ever made in this state against him, and declined to assist in foisting him into the people of Minnesota.

"Then, as you know Eustis as a Guaranty Loan swindler, as he was presented the information by John H. Burke, and the memory of which tends to remind him that his administration as governor was not a howling success; and as a result he has no desire to further soil his political skirts by aiding W. H. Eustis, and Loren Fletcher, the Republican candidate for congress."

Propose of Fletcher's very disinterested (?) interest in war and soldiers, a story brought to light in the campaign of 1896 is again going around on Fletcher, as to his love (?) for the families of the soldiers during the war. Fletcher was then running a store on Bridge square, Minneapolis, and a well known woman of great patriotism, an Irish woman whose husband had laid down his all for the liberation of Ireland and sought a home in America—whose son was then at the front of Vicksburg—was in Mr. Fletcher's store, buying some of the calico that the shrewd merchant was then selling at 50 cents, more or less, per yard, when she cast her eyes over the large stock of goods on hand and asked Mr. Fletcher if he was not carrying a pretty large stock of goods for the war times. "Madam," replied Mr. Fletcher, gleefully rubbing his hands together, "if the war will only continue another year, I can afford to throw my goods all away."

And so he could, but he didn't.

Must Return to Finland.
State Agent Gates returned yesterday from Annandale, Minn., where he located the former home of Maria Tarkkanen, who came to this country from Finland, Dec. 15, 1837, on the steamer Mongolia. She went direct to Annandale, and later to Minneapolis, where she was turned over to the authorities as an insane patient.

Will Ship Butter East.
Minnesota's fame as a butter producing state is already attracting attention. Harvey King, a dairyman, of the east, was a caller at the dairy commissioner's office yesterday. He left last evening for a trip around the state, to visit some of the biggest creameries with a view to placing contracts with some of the standard creameries for butter, to be marketed in the East.

COCOANUT MILK

Used in Place of Coffee for a Time.
Some years ago I was one of a colony located in Costa Rica, a coffee growing country, and was finally made so ill by continued use of the berry, that I took to coccoanut milk, and thereafter noticed that I suffered considerably less than the others from fever, chills, etc.

Since returning I have been using Postum.
We have abandoned the use of coffee and tea altogether, and never expect to use them again as long as we can have the Postum Food Coffee.
We know how to make it into a delicious beverage, and the difference in our health is so marked that we shall never return to the old way. We have been compelled to send up Waco or Cleburne for Postum, as it has not been kept here, but, while the extra expense is something, we do not consider it sufficient to keep us from having our "cup that cheers."

By the way, the Rev. C. H. Rogers, of Elgin, Ill., has been so greatly helped by the use of Postum, to my knowledge, that his praises for it will do you a world of good. Our whole family is in love with Postum.

for governor on the Republican ticket was a member. Mr. Sutton had a bill which he tried to collect and couldn't. The defense was that the company had gone out of existence, although there was a suspicious mix up in the dates and all that sort of thing. But a change in the firm name didn't seem to carry with it improved methods. The firm of Neal Carr & Co. issued time checks in 1888 which have not yet been paid and may never be paid. How many of these checks are in existence The Globe says not. But there are enough to confound the business methods, so far as some of the men who had dealings with the firm are concerned.

There are many men around Park Rapids who remember Mr. Eustis' firm's logging operations and there are many other lumbermen in Aitkin county and elsewhere who are equally familiar with them. These men have been waiting many years for a chance to get at Mr. Eustis. They will get it next Tuesday. The men who were an element of strength two years ago to Gov. Clough, whose dealings with lumbermen were always up and up, are rallying to the standard of Hon. John Lind this year. They know Mr. Eustis, they do.

But, speaking about the unpaid time checks of Neal, Carr & Co., Samuel Rothschild, of Minneapolis, who has had an office in the Boston block for a number of years, has a couple of them. Mr. Rothschild had almost forgotten about these checks until a few weeks ago some of his fellow traveling men checks were due, I couldn't get the money and haven't been able to do so to this day. They were in the hands of an attorney, and a few weeks ago I sent for them. (The letter, which accompanied the checks on their return to Mr. Rothschild, is also herewith produced.)

"Now I suppose that Eustis will deny ever having told me to advance the money on the checks, but that doesn't alter the fact that he did so. But I haven't been able to get anything out of them. One of the men whom I talked with said that, if I would get in line and support Eustis, they would be paid. But I know they are not worth five cents, and, if they were, Mr. Eustis cannot get my support."

FLETCHER SUFFERS TOO.

Defection From Eustis Is Also Affecting "Uncle Loren."

It having been reported that the Eustis machine in Hennepin had been able to swerve some of the old soldiers from their opposition to the "coffee cooler" candidate, an officer of the Anti-Eustis club was yesterday asked regarding the rumor. He replied:
"I have not heard of a single case of change of heart on the part of members of the Old Soldiers' Anti-Eustis club, but, on the other hand, hear and know of changes every day in our favor. Our club membership last Saturday night was 1,243, more than 80 per cent of them Republicans."
A new turn of affairs with the old
