ECHOES OF ARMY LIFE
UNPLEASANT INCIDENTS THAT WERE EXPECTED TO FOLLOW MUSTERING OUT
MEN WHO HAD GRIEVANCES
Had Promised Themselves That They Would Square Off With Officers Whom They Considered Had Not Treated Them Right—Two Reports That Are Found to Be Without Any Foundation.

The mustering out of the Twelfth and Fourteenth regiments may be followed with more interest than usual, because it marks the active service of some of the companies. It has been no secret that there was friction between some of the men and the officers of these regiments. Many a man promised himself that if he ever got back to Minnesota and an independent citizen, he would square off with the officers who had not treated him as he felt he should be treated. It is said that this sentiment took tangible form in one of two companies when the Twelfth left for the front. The captain and two lieutenants were the special objects of attack.

In St. Paul one officer and a St. Paul man, too, is known to have been roughly treated on the way back. The man who was treated was thrown off a street car for being intoxicated and using insulting language. People who were in the crowd at the time of the riot to bring damage suits against the street railway company. This officer didn't bring suit, but he was found in a very bad way. It may have been a case of street car or that there was a particularly strong feeling against some of the officers. In fact the Globe is in possession of a number of unsigned letters from officers and men who are full of spite and anger. But so far as the Twelfth and Fourteenth regiments are concerned, the officers of these organizations have felt the same as the men.

Lieut. George J. Day, according to rumor, has incurred the displeasure of some of the men, but reports that he had been roughly treated last week was denied by the company.

Lieut. George T. Daly lives at 670 Jackson street, and when seen by a reporter for the Globe, last night, said he had been roughly treated last week was denied by the company.

"I hope the Globe will not say anything of the kind. Recently some one had an item put in that I was going to sue the company. I don't know where the item came from. The statement that I was ill and there is nothing in the statement that I was assaulted. I was assaulted by some of the men of the regiment and I imagined that I was responsible for it. It is my opinion that he has started to report the returns are not all from the company."

The captain of one of the Duluth companies was promised something when he got home. Whether it was a bonus or a gratuity, and the members of the company will not affiliate with the national guard again if he says so.

It was reported Friday night that Capt. Holmes of Company E, Fourteenth regiment, had not seen his home yet. He was seen at 155 1/2 North street, last evening, and said there was certainly a mistake somewhere.

"I don't know where the item was published and I don't know who was assaulted and beaten," he asked.

The reporter had to admit that there were no such things as a bonus or gratuity. The smiling face of Capt. Holmes, who was heard the story this morning, when I spoke to me about having been assaulted by members of my company, and that there was nothing in the story and no foundation for it, as far as the company is concerned.

"Another story started by some one this afternoon was to the effect that one of the officers of the Twelfth regiment, who was seated in a Robert street cafe Friday night, had been assaulted by private of the regiment. The man who was assaulted was with the story about my being assaulted."

ONE MORE DEATH.
