RIOTING IN HAVANA

IT WAS INAUGURATED BY THE ACTION OF SPANISH TROOPS EM-BARKING FOR SPAIN

COLLIDED WITH CUBANS

Demanding That They Should Shout for Spain and Fighting Followed—Ringleader Arrested Before the Affair Had Assumed Serious Proportions—Spanish Bandits Captured—Many Soldiers Paid.

HAVANA, June 10.—An immense Spanish flag, with a picture of Gen. Weyler painted on it, was borne today by a party of fifty Spanish soldiers who were on their way to embark for Spain.

The cab strike is still on. Numerous complaints have been made to the mayor, Senor Perfecto Lacoste, by retail merchants, whose business suffers greatly in consequence of the strike, as people who are not absolutely compelled to come to the heart of the city prefer to remain at home and leave their shopping to be done at some future time.

Jose Maria Gomez, governor of Santa Clara, telegraphs to Senor Domingo Mendez Capote, secretary of government in the rural guard at Yaguajay has captured three Spanish guerrillas—Senor Juan Leon Perera and Juan Prado, who have terrorized the inhabitants of that vicinity of late, threatening lone travelers and taking off horses and mules.

Cuticura REMEDIES THE SET $1.25

Consisting of CUTICURA SOAP, for the bath, CUTICURA Ointment, for the skin, CUTICURA RESOLVENT, for the blood, is often sufficient to cure the most torturing, disfiguring, and humiliating skin, scalp, and blood humors, with loss of hair, when all else fails.

CUTICURA SYSTEM OF TREATMENT.—Cuticura Resolvent purifies the blood and circulates fluids of Boreo Ganga, and thus removes the cause, while warm baths with Cuticura Soap, and gentle scoldings with Cuticura Ointment, the great skin cure and preserver of emollients, cleanse the skin and scalp of crusts and scales, ally itching, burning, and inflammation, soothe and heal. Thus are speedily, permanently, and economically cured the most torturing, disfiguring humors of the skin, scalp, and blood, with loss of hair, when the best physicians and all other remedies fail.

WELCOME TO GUAM

NATIVES HAIL THE AMERICAN'S OCCUPATION WITH LOYAL ENTHUSIASM

PEOPLE ORDERLY AND CLEAN

They Were Crushed to Earth by Spanish Tyranny and Taxation—The Roads of Guam Excellent—But Few Bright and Showy Flowers, Though Vegetation Is Luxuriant.

Correspondence New York Times.

GUAM, March 11.—"It is nice to once more plant one's foot on American soil and to see Old Glory unfurled to the breeze. What a satisfaction it is to doff one's cap to the glorious banner of the free, and know that it floats over Uncle Sam's territory and several thousand loyal enthusiastic citizens who breathe contentedly now that they have no longer to fear the rule of the Don, but in its place have donned that spirit of freedom and peace that ever accompanies our flag.

The common people say that oppression and a system of taxation that squeezed out the last cent have been the

and the magnificent appearance of hundreds of forest trees covered with masses of colored blossoms—will probably be surprised to hear that vegetation, though luxuriant and varied, and with an abundance of fine and curious plants to adorn our borders, includes but few bright and showy flowers, certainly not enough to produce much effect on the general scenery.

Flowers in the torrid zone are as a rule less abundant, on the average less showy, and far less effective in adding color to the landscape than in temperate climates. You seldom, if ever, see such masses of color as we have at home in our daisies and buttercups. Such waving carpets of yellow, white and brown the tropics but rarely exhibit. These are characteristic of our climate; they have not to be sought for, but they gladden the eye of everybody but the hazy-makers at every step. In the regions of the equator, on the other hand, whether it be forest or field, a somber green clothes universal nature. Flowers are so rare that anything of striking is only to be met with at distant intervals.

FISHING BY TORCHLIGHT

There is one feature of the landscape that always attracts the eye at once, and that is the beautiful light green of the rice fields, which are the most luxuriant here, rice being quite the staple among the products. Possibly copra, the meat of the coconut from which oil is pressed, may be equally valuable, and may bring in more money as an export, but for home consumption rice takes the lead. One of the members of our party, somewhat absent-minded and a native of the Emerald Isle, was not paying particular attention to the conversa-

BABE WHICH WEIGHS FORTY-FIVE POUNDS.

This is the picture of "little" Maggie Pargiale, a Jersey City baby, who is now one year and four months old. She was taken Feb. 2, 1898, when she had attained to the dignity of her first birthday. At that time she weighed as any one who looks at the photograph will easily believe, forty-five pounds. Since the picture was taken she has gained two pounds, Miss Maggie seldom cries, frequently order of the day here for many years. If ready money were not forthcoming to pay the excessive taxation, then the delinquents were hauled up before the authorities and sentenced to so much hard labor on government work until the amount levied was worked out. Meanwhile the individual suffered through the enforced neglect of his own crops, the only means in his power to pay his taxes. Additional fees had then to be paid, which, without the wherewithal to settle, made his case a desperate one. Now they say they will be treated differently, and there will probably be no more such inquisitorial impositions.

BEAUTIES OF THE TOWN.

Somebody with an eye to beauty and symmetry must, at one time or another, have been at the head of affairs here, as the roads are excellent, the smooth and free from dust, and during the rainy season at all events, as one could wish. The main street has houses with gardens both in front and back, and houses built after the same general plan, to admit the cool trade wind which brings life and health to the people. The lawns are cultivated, and the green shrubbery sets off most picturesquely the dazzling white of the houses. Side streets cut the main street at regular intervals and some posts at the corners tell one which street it is.

As you pass along every one is most civil, and a hat is raised or a knee slightly bent, while a few words of salutation invariably accompany the greeting. If the owner of one of the tempting looking houses happens to be in his grounds as you pass you are always sure of an invitation to enter, and are equally sure of a most hospitable reception. The absolute cleanliness would appeal to the model housekeeper at home, and quite sure. I do not think such cleanliness and orderliness are confined to the guest room, either, as care and attention to details are everywhere in evidence.

It seems strange at first to see cows used for carriages, but they seem to answer the purpose and make good speed. There are small horses here, and now and then animals that look like the hybrids of this part of the world are hitched up to the carts.

WAITING FOR THE BAND.

The governor's house, which we understand, is soon to be occupied by Capt. Leary, of the navy, is a fine large house, roomy and airy, and with a good deal of ground around it, plenty of back buildings, and the barracks close by for the housing of the marine guard and the band of musicians that are said to be a part of the governor's outfit. The young women of the place will simply go half wild with the music, and, as many of them are half-breeds, this will make them wholly wild. Still, let's have the band at all events. The prospective governor is devoted to music, and is particularly fond of the soft, rhythmic music of some of the Spanish dances, so he will have no difficulty in pleasing the audience.

There is a whole lot of fun to be had here in the way of shooting. Game abounds most plentifully and in satisfactory variety. Birds of several species and deer are the chief sport, and a drive or ride of a few hours will take one right into the midst of the fun. The birds not of the game species have most beautiful plumage, and differ radically from ours at home. The bright coloring of the Baltimore oriole comes nearer the mark than any other. Some of the species here are beautifully ornamented with soft, velvety feathers of a delicate straw yellow, with here and there emerald green. Then there are deeper greens, having a rich metallic gloss, with pale blue or ash pink. In some the contrast of colors is most striking, but at the same time attractive.

FLOWERS NOT ABUNDANT.

About the gardens and here and there one sees more beautiful red flowers, and now and again some purple and red, but seldom are there any great masses of coloring. Persons who have formed the usual ideas of the vegetation of the tropics—who picture to themselves the abundance and brilliancy of the flowers on by the Catholic priests, put every possible obstacle in the way. This culminated in the burning of the residences and school buildings of the missionaries, the destruction of native churches, which had become popular, and the forbidding of the missionary vessel, the Morning Star, from entering an island port.

In order to make it as difficult as possible to enter the harbor, the beacons, buoys and other aids to navigation were removed from the entrance channel. Greatworks four feet thick and nine feet high were erected, and cannon were mounted in the most advantageous positions to prevent the landing of an armed force and to make it impossible for it to advance into the interior.

The directing engineer of all these works may possibly have had close at hand the plans used in our Civil war, which resulted in putting the ditch inside of the

ENJOYING A VACATION.

An Outing for the White House Oranges and Lemon Trees.

Washington Star. The lemon and orange trees of the White House have been put out in the sunshine for a vacation from the greenhouses. These trees are of great interest to the few visitors who see them. There are five or six orange trees and three or four lemons, and they are all bearing fruit at this time of the year. The lemon trees produce splendid specimens of fruit, and the lemons are likewise doing their duty. Some of the orange trees are large and juicy. They are not over two feet high and bear small oranges, unfit to eat. The larger ones, the tallest being about five feet six inches, bear luscious, juicy oranges, which are sometimes placed before the president and his wife. The largest tree is twenty years old. So is the largest lemon tree, which is about forty feet tall. These trees have been at the White House that number of years.

Whenever the weather is at all cool the trees are kept in the greenhouses, but when the warm season comes on they are taken out for several months. The trees are not taken immediately from the greenhouses to the sunshine and the open air. Supt. Pfister says that would be likely to kill them. The long winter residence in the greenhouse makes them tender, and to subject them to the heat of the sunshine would be dangerous. They are first put in a shady place, under ing people, finally rose in revolt and killed the governor, a number of officers, marines and soldiers, sixty-five in all. More prudent administrator succeeded in somewhat pacifying the natives, though the whole effort of the government tended toward undoing a great deal of good done by missionaries. The troubles continued, and matters went so far that the Spaniards made an assault on one of the important villages of the Metalanin tribe, which, after a desperate fight, the Spaniards took and burned.

From that time on and until the latest news from Ponape the priests have tried everything possible to make things unpleasant for all who will not come into their fold. They have recently declared that every person on the island must be baptized, or he will be a heathen, and as a result another outbreak seems imminent. Should it occur it will certainly become a war of extermination, so bitter is the feeling.

PANIC-STROCKEN SPANIARDS.

When the news that Admiral Dewey's grand victory at Manila became known in the Caroline islands the Spanish were run-ning to and fro like a lot of escaped lunatics. What little money they had was carefully hidden away. There were some few vessels in the anchorage, so a large number of men were sent to work to make a channel deep enough to tow these vessels as far up into the bush as it was possible to get them, where it was thought they could be hidden from the invader. They then removed all that was of value from the vessels and carefully hid it away.

the covered ways of the greenhouses. They are thus in the open air but not in the sunshine. After a week in this position they are put in the sunshine, and usually in a place where the sun shines all day and gives the greatest heat. Supt. Pfister calls this hardening them, and he knows his business, as he has been in charge of the conservatories for many years.

Costly Railroad Station.

Buffalo's new Union railroad station, to cost $5,000,000, is to have a waiting room 80 by 225 feet, said to be the largest in the world. The other accessories and the train shed arrangement are on the same liberal scale.
