With one of our Blue Serge Suits, and ten to one your friends will admiringly ask: "What tailor made it?"

Tell your friends, if you will, that you really had it "made to order." They'll believe it. And that it cost you thirty dollars or so. They'll believe that, too. Could you ask for more clothing satisaction?

Turn the true light on. Tell them it's a ready-made suit; right out of Browning, King & Co.'s. They'll doubt you. Tell them what you paid for it-$8, $10, $12 or $15, as the case may be. Again they'll doubt you, for they'll not believe such good looking and good fitting clothing could be ready-made; not any where or most wheres, but only here.

STROM CASE OCCUPIED SEVERAL HOURS

WALL OF OBJECTIONS RAISED

But the County Attorney Succeeds in Getting Some Facts Before the Jury - Former Commissioner holders Tell What They Know About the Concern.

The second day in the trial of Andrew P. Swanstrom on an indictment charging he larceny of $625.25 from the funds of the Order of Minnehaha, of which he was upreme secretary and treasurer, was tedious and uneventful. All the forenoon and part of the afternoon were spent by the state in trying to show that Dr. Ginner, the state's principal witness, kept a record of the money taken in from members of the order on assessment calls and in introducing the records in evidence. Every move on the part of County Attorney Bigelow was met with a storm of objections by Attorneys W. H. McDonald, John H. Ives and r. J. McDermott, representing the defendant. Judge Lewis finally became tired of the incessant fire of recriminations and several times brought the attorneys up with a round turn

As on the preceding day the court room was packed with interested spectators, many of whom had been policy holders in the defunct Order of Minnehaha, During part of the afternoon Judge Kelly appeared in the court room and occupied a seat on the bench with Judge Lewis, listening to the testimony. The appearance of the defendant, who was seated with his attorneys, indicated that the strain of the trial is having an appreciable effect on him. He looked hag-

Ginner, former supreme president of the order, was recalled by the state and shown a postal card that he identified as one of the assessment cards sent out n 1897. Then County Attorney Bigelow offered in evidence the policyholders' record, which was also identified. "All the entries were made by authorized persons," said the witness. The book was finally received in evidence after a long argument, and Dr. Ginner was temporarily withdrawn to be succeeded by former Insurance Commissioner Elmer H. Dearth, who testified that he had issued a license to the Order of Minnehana in 1897 and 1898. He had kept the articles of incorporation on file at his office. Then state exhibit "E" was offered, showing the transfer of all the assets and liabilities of the Minnehana and the two Dakotas," said Col. Sullivan and the two Dakotas," said Col. This was in the spring of 1898, before the license was issued, and they explained to me the general standing of the order. The license was issued about March 1, 1898, based on the statement made by the officers in 1897, which I passed upon and approved."

Cross-examined by Attorney McDonald, the witness testified that at the time the articles of incorporation were filed in his office there was no certificate of the attorney general attached, as required Mr. Swanstrom came to my office to-
