hit Dammann any more," said Mike Kahoe.

To prove that Mike was not a prophet Preston hit the first ball pitched away down the field for a three-bagger, and in another second had scored on a long fly to center by Helme Spies. Then Good King Chauncey, much encouraged, soaked out a double and went around to third when Ball pitched to Stewart. Then Helme Geler hit hard down the field and Hartzell fumbled the ball on the ground a bit and before he got it back Fisher and Ball had scored. Ball rushing in like a steam engine.

Lally patted out a long single just to keep up his record, and that scored Gary. That was all, and that was decidedly enough. Motz and Foreman and the Great Asa knew that defeat was their doom, and half of the Hoosier team was in the bus ready for the home trip before the game was over, the others batting as a mere matter of form to finish a game they knew hopelessly lost.

And so Mike Dammann got no telegram last night to hurry back to Cincinnati to save Brother Brush's major organization. Score:

TRY FOR THREE STRAIGHT.

Saints Long to Score Another Victory Today.

Today the Saints will make an effort to throw Max Baer's men down for the third time—and it would appear that the task was quite possible. Jack Katoli will exercise his strong right arm on behalf of the Apostles, and either Scott or Kellum will pitch for the Hoosiers. The local fans are hoping that it may be Scott—but Mr. Kellum may be treated to a surprise if the Saints decide to keep on their runaway batting gallop.

There was a most commendable evidence of team work in the play of the locals. They played with speed and steam. It may be another case of the ship that found herself. There is no reason why the Saints should not be close to the top.

It was good to see Fisher in his old-time form. His one-time partners could not presume on former acquaintance yesterday.

With Fisher in his yesterday form there is no doubt that St. Paul has the best pitching staff in the league.

It is too bad that young Mr. Haskell is not as long on straight sight as he appears to be on good intentions.

And still they all laugh at Frank Foreman when he starts his callop.

Artie Ball played a remarkable game yesterday, accepting eight hit chances in his own territory, and making a bad error on an inexcusable attempt to take a ball right out of Geler's hands. His throwing to first yesterday was worth seeing.

Eddie Burke is playing the game for all there is in it. No one can accuse him of shirking. He plays with the right kind of spirit.

Hickey is about as fine a fielding third baseman as this league can boast this season. His work yesterday was little short of sensational.

Both pitchers had remarkable control. And both set a commendable example for other ambitious twirlers by pitching the game through without any waste of time. They worked hard and fast.

Kahoe made two brilliant running foul fly catches. Mike and Helme Spies are just about the best pair of backstop performers in the Western league.

The double play in the eighth from Hickey to Stewart to Motz, which caught both Lally and Geler, was a bit of extremely fast work. Hickey was exceptional trap-scoop of a slow hit ball and got it over to second with a dexterity that was surprising and which brought forth generous applause from the audience.

FRIEND IN FINE FORM.

Made His Debut at Minneapolis and Shut the Tigers Out.

Danny Friend made his first appearance in a Minneapolis uniform yesterday afternoon at Nicollet park, and presented the Detroit team with a row of nine goose eggs. Boss Stallings distinguished himself by getting the only hit credited to the visitors. With the exception the Tigers didn't succeed in getting anything in the nature of a safe base. Friend did present five men with free tickets to first base, but was simply to make the game more interesting. Big Cronin also was in good form and six hits were his. Carey got two of these and Fisher two, while Warden and Smith were credited with one each. Most of these hits didn't cut much in the score, but they were there. Cronin received good support. Six of the seven misplays made by Stallings proved instrumental in fattening the score of the Millers. Score:

GAMES SCHEDULED FOR TODAY.

Indianapolis at St. Paul.
Detroit at Minneapolis.

The well-groomed diamond dusters from Hoosier-ville were beautifully checked for the second time in their headlong rush toward the top of the ladder yesterday, and forced to receive with poor grace that reward which the good book mentions as meted out to those of haughty spirit.

In all the nine glorious innings during which they longed for ice water, only one little stray, hitting an illusory glimpse of hope did they receive. For one brief moment they were lifted from the depths of despair to the heights of ecstatic utterance—only to be immediately dropped with a thud that broke the hearts of all fandom in the metropolis of the Wabash country.

Good Sarah Motz and his lithe limbed heroes may take liberties with the popular form of government in Minneapolis, but they cannot do it in St. Paul. They came puffed up with the pride and prestige of having swiped the Champions for two mighty victories, and they had it down on the programme to get three straight here. Indeed they will—indeed they will! It looks much as if it might be three straight.

Yesterday's game was not the most remarkable exhibition of the season, to be sure, but it was a pretty good game of base ball—base ball played in the way it should be, and played by two teams that gave evidence of having some knowledge of the thing they were trying to do. This is in marked contrast with some of the alleged ball games of some few weeks ago, and is cause for general rejoicing in fandom.

The Saints played with a gingerly spirit that was good to behold, and proved beyond doubt that they are not in their class in the second division of the Western league. If Commy can keep them going, now that they have started down the pike, there is no reason why they cannot be camping in the green pastures before many moons.

Chauncey Fisher came back to earth yesterday—came in the flesh—and came in as if he meant to extend his stay here. For the first time in months he pitched as he used to pitch when he was the big twirler showed his '95 form and pitched as he used to pitch when he was the terror of all the sluggers in this part of the country.

Chauncey began right with the first ball pitched, and for the entire nine innings he scored the little leather over the plate with a regularity that was amazing. He did not give a single base on balls during the performance. He bent his body to the right and to the left, and fed the Hoosier batsmen curves they could not fathom with any success. For seven innings not a Hoosier could get a hit, and the Hoosier pitcher, like a Trojan hero, held the fort, despite the fact that he was being pelted with a rain of balls. Eddie Burke had been playing a brilliant sun-field game, and had caught three flies with the sun so dazzling in his eyes that he had to dodge immediately after catching the ball. In the eighth inning Hogreiver opened up with a long high one to Eddie's corner, and as it came to him he turned his back and away the ball rolled to the fence, while Hogry sprinted to third. This broke Fisher's heart, and for a moment things looked dark. The Hoosiers slugged out four singles together, tied the score. Then Chauncey pulled himself together, and not another Hoosier saw first base, while the Saints went gloriously into the fray and drove Mr. Dammann to the woods with a fusillade of hits that put them four to the good again.

Dan Lally was a fast, clean game. It was in reality a pitcher's battle, and the apparently large number of hits, Dammann pitched great ball himself, and showed for three innings the steam that he had kept up the steam that he had kept up. He pitched right along steady as a clock, and never quailed in the face of very poor support and fortuitous bunchings of hits. He and Fisher strove for the mastery with directness and precision that was artistic.

Both pitchers opened up their batteries for business the moment the game was on, and both pursued the same tactics. They put the Hoosier batsmen with the first three innings the plate. In the eighth inning the Hoosiers rolled out four runs—two by a single, by Lally, Spies, Fisher, Isbell, a triple by Lally and an error by Bob Allen. The Hoosiers in the same three innings went out one, two, three. Then Dammann settled down to business and began to put on steam, and from that out the Saints did little connecting. From the third to the beginning of the eighth it was a beautiful pitchers' battle with splendid flailing support backing up the twirlers.

With the score 4 to 0, and Fisher feeling certain of a shut-out, Mr. Hogreiver, of Indianapolis, stepped up to the plate in the eighth inning and landed viciously on high shoet. The ball went sailing out to Burke. Burke had had trouble with the sun three times before. He made an effort to gauge it and it looked as if he had it. But just as it was about to strike his nut-cracked head, he suddenly turned and dodged, and the ball went rolling down past the race track. Hogreiver made a great sprint and was perched safely on third when Burke got the ball back into the diamond.

Chauncey Fisher stood like one dazed. Chauncey had lost other games because of that terrible sun-field. He held the ball two minutes as if loath to go on twirling. He showed very plainly that his heart, so far as the game was concerned, was broken by the unfortunate accident. Then to make matters worse Mr. Hartzell, next up, nalled a fly to Lally that was cut out off Hogry's bat, for Lally attempted to score. But Handsome Dan muffed the fly and Hogry scored, and they were encouraged and they came out to do or die, almost quit. Motz hit away from center. Then McFarland hit to the track beyond Burke for a triple and scored. Hartzell and Motz. That tied the score, when McFarland crossed the plate on Allen's hit over second. Then Fisher bit his lips and jerked his trousers and put on a burst of speed, and when the side went out the score was still 4 to 4.

The Hoosiers, who had been sullen and downcast, suddenly took on good cheer and began to yell and exult and claim a cinch on the game. "They can never

SEILOFF STOPPED.

Did Not Care to See Matthews After the Ninth Round.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Matty Matthews, of Brooklyn, defeated Otto Seloff, of Chicago, in the ninth round of a vicious fight at the Coney Island Sporting club tonight. Matthews was far the cleverer and used both hands relentlessly on his opponent's anatomy. Early in the fight the blood came spurting from the Chicago boxer's nose, and his body was red with the frequent punishment the kidneys from the frequent punishment. Seloff was not idle meanwhile. He fought back much more cleverly than he went for him in a hard fashion, though the Brooklynite, and rubbed it into Matthews' body, and up to the sixth round he looked as if he was recording. Some of Seloff's blows raised marks on Matthews' body, and he held his own. In the seventh and eighth rounds he was overpowered by the Brooklyn boxer's onslaught. Seloff came up for the ninth in a very foggy condition, and Matty went for him in a hard fashion. There was nothing to it after a couple of mix-ups, and although Seloff stood his ground well he was unable to come up with the finish. Patterson was frequently cautioned for hitting low, and was disqualified in the twenty-third round for repeating the offense, but Smith begged the referee to let the bout go on, and so lost a favorable decision. The attendance was 6,000.

WHITMAN THE WINNER.

Defeat Larned in the Tennis Championship Contest.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Before a brilliant gathering of spectators "Mac" Whitman, of the Harvard giant, defeated W. A. Larned in the challenge round of the Middle States lawn tennis championship tournament on the courts of the Orange Tennis club this afternoon. The match was continued from the point at which it had been stopped by the rain on Saturday. At that time both players had won a set and the score stood at 4-1 in the third set, with Whitman leading. The Harvard player's style of play differed slightly from that of Saturday. He used the same deep balls to hold Larned back, and when his opponent pulled to the barrier showed his ability to pass him. It was in his speed that Whitman differed today. He constantly changed from fast to slow, and used a short chop stroke, which made his veteran adversary appear at a disadvantage, as he almost always knocked them into the net.
