W. G. Munro leaped from the Washington avenue bridge, Minneapolis, into the Mississippi river yesterday morning. Munro made his leap a few moments before 10 o'clock. Quiet in manner and attracting little attention, he strolled onto the bridge and the watchman thought nothing more of him than he did of the other pedestrians.

Fremo reached a telephone as soon as possible and notified the South side Minneapolis police station. Capt. Walton detailed a sergeant with a squad of officers to the scene, and they proceeded to search for the body.

Fremo's description of the man convinced the South side police that he was the same man who called at the station Tuesday, gave the name of W. G. Munro, and asked to be taken care of. The man appeared to be suffering from the effects of drink and the police gave him a quiet place to rest. He improved and left the station, but in the afternoon he again returned and asked to be allowed to remain over night.

In the mythology of Ancient Greece, Hymen, the god of marriage, was the half brother of Esculapian, the god of medicine. The ancients believed that marriage and health should go together, and as a result, the Greeks of that time have ever since been looked upon as types of physical perfection.

Sickly mothers should be allowed to remain over night. This permission was granted and he sought out a cell, but later in the evening he became more restless and the police locked him up. No charge was placed against him and yesterday morning, as he appeared perfectly well, he was released.

From the story learned at the Minneapolis central police station Munro was a visitor there also. He was taken to the station Tuesday afternoon by a North side officer, who claimed that he had been called into a boarding house near the market to take Munro out. He informed the station that a man was found slithering in torso behind the door leading to the cellar. As Munro appeared perfectly sane at the station, he was allowed his liberty.

From his story Munro hails from Auburn, N. Y. He claims to be a relative of Weed Munro, the well known attorney, and as soon as the police learned of the affair they notified him.

WOMEN AT ST. CLOUD

THE STATE FEDERATION OF CLUBS WILL ELECT NEW OFFICERS TODAY

INFORMAL BALLOT TAKEN

Four Candidates Are in the Field, and Indications Are for a Close and Interesting Contest—Sessions of the Convention Largely Attended—Variety of Papers on Attractive Topics—Northwest News.

ST. CLOUD, Minn., Oct. 18.—(Special.)—The sessions of the second day of the state convention of the Federation of Women's clubs were devoted largely to the reports of committees and officers, and other routine work pertaining to the internal interests of the federation.

The meetings continue to grow in interest, and at each session the seating capacity of the auditorium in Unity church is fully reached. The unanimous expression of those, not members of the federation, who are attending the meetings, is that the work of the federation, as shown by the contents of each programme, appears with significant importance to the highest public consideration and approval.

Today's sessions concluded with the informal balloting for officers. The regular election of state officers occurs Thursday morning, instead of on the evening of the same day, as many of the delegates will leave before that time. The balloting today was for the purpose of obtaining an expression from the convention as a criterion for the regular election. Interest runs high in the election of the state president and the executive committee, and the contest has already assumed proportions which indicate a stubborn and exciting fight. The candidates are Mrs. C. E. Conant, of Wells; Miss Laura A. Jones, of Lake Park, Minn.; Mrs. Williams, of Minneapolis; and Mrs. Dennis Follet, of St. Paul. Miss Jones and Mrs. Williams are undoubtedly the leaders in the race. Mrs. Williams is believed by the St. Cloud ladies to be an invulnerable candidate. Miss Jones will, however, pole a big vote from the St. Paul delegation, and give her rival a bitter race. It is stated that Mrs. Jones has secured the support of the undivided support of the St. Paul delegation, but is maintaining an independent candidacy.

There was no meeting this evening. The visiting delegates were entertained at the St. Cloud ladies at the home of Mrs. N. P. Clarke.

The morning session was a very busy one. It was opened by a club conference, in which method was discussed by Mrs. C. E. Collins in her report as corresponding secretary dwelt especially upon the successful plans for district work carried out in the various districts by the organization, and three subdistrict federations which hold annual meetings and bring many women into touch with the federation.

The most important work of the morning was given by Miss Anna B. Underwood, of Lake City, on the headquarters of the state by the federation. This was read by Mrs. W. M. Liggett, of St. Anthony Park. The plan is a co-operative one. The members of each district will material and paid all expenses, federation women doing the thinking, working and planning. The committee managed so successfully that the report was read by half of the appropriation, while nothing necessary to success was omitted. The experiment was pronounced a success and the fair managers wish to make the plan permanent. The report was made by the fair committee a standing organization.

Miss Isabel Lawrence, of St. Cloud, chairman of the educational committee, read a paper on "The Educational Work of the Federation." She set forth some of the dangers which club women have to cope in their educational work.

Another important report was that of the legislative committee, from the chairman, Mrs. Bramhall, whose report was read. She outlined the work done on the legislative committee, and the work done on the legislative committee, and the work done on the legislative committee.

REMARKABLE UTTERANCES OF EMPEROR WILLIAM AT HAMBURG

HAMBURG, Oct. 18.—A new German presence of Emperor William today in the presence of Kaiser Kaiser Wilhelm. She was christened Kaiser Kaiser von Grosse, by Dr. von Monckeburg, burgomaster of Hamburg. At a banquet given in the town hall, after the launching, Emperor William said: "Germany is in bitter need of a strong fleet. This mighty emporium of Hamburg recognizes what the German people do when they are united, and the other abroad, how necessary to our interests abroad is the strengthening of our naval forces. If that class of reinforcement had not been refused me during the first eight years of my reign, refused despite my urgent requests and recommendation, how different matters would have been now. We should be able to push our thriving trade and commerce over the sea. And yet the feeling of these things is only slowly gaining ground in the fatherland, which, unfortunately, is only slowly strengthening itself. Germans must watch the development of foreign states. They must make sacrifices for their position as a world power, and abandoning party measures, and standing united behind their principles and emperor."

JOURNEY ABOUT ENDED

PRESIDENT MCKINLEY LEAVES OHIO FOR PITTSBURGH ON THE HOMEWARD TRIP

CABINET HAD PRECEDED HIM

President Given a Cordial Greeting by His Former Neighbors in Ohio Towns Where He Passed His Boyhood—Adhered in His Speeches to Sentiments Expressed Throughout Western Trip.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Oct. 18.—President McKinley's special train arrived here at 5 o'clock this evening, and the chief executive delivered the last speech of his tour. The train was backed into a side track and the president and his cabinet went on foot to a platform near by. Apparently everybody in town had crowded into the two streets facing the platform, and it was with great difficulty the president could make himself heard. It is estimated that 20,000 people were packed into the narrow space surrounding the speakers' stand. As the president proceeded they became quieter, and enthusiastically cheered every point in his address. His speech was on lines similar to those followed at other points. Secretary of the Interior Hitchcock also spoke briefly.

Having taken dinner aboard the train the president, Mrs. McKinley, Miss Barbour were driven to the residence of Dr. Deetrick in North Phelps station, to attend the wedding of Miss Anna Viola Deetrick to Dr. William McKinley Duncan, son of Andrew K. Duncan, and nephew to President McKinley. The parties of the Deetrick home were "astorically" decorated with orchids and smilax.

The wedding ceremony was performed after 8 o'clock. Rev. S. R. Frazier officiated. An hour later the president and his cabinet entered carriage and were driven to St. Columbia station, where a public reception was given. President McKinley greeted hundreds of his boyhood friends with a hearty handshake and a kind word. The reception lasted until 10 o'clock. At that hour the party returned to the train, which left immediately for Pittsburgh over the Pennsylvania lines.

AT BOYHOOD HOME

NILES, O., Oct. 18.—In this town President McKinley first saw the light of day. Thousands of his boyhood friends gathered at the railway station this afternoon to cheer him on his journey back to Washington, after a tour which covered over 5,000 miles throughout the West and Northwest, and during which he delivered almost 100 speeches to thousands upon thousands of enthusiastic citizens. Only three of the cabinet members remained in the party, which appeared at the station almost 100 speeches to thousands upon thousands of enthusiastic citizens.
