THEY DON'T SPEAK,

Though They Worked Together Three Years.

St. Louis Republic. Like the two De Cadeau brothers, who are said to have lived for years in the same chateau in Southern France without ever exchanging a word, are Conductor William Walsh and Motorman Benjamin Lindsay, who operate the single car which runs on a spur of the Suburban railway over Union avenue to Forest park.

In the three long years during which the two street railway men have run the car they have not been upon speaking terms, and although their duties throw them constantly together, never a word is exchanged between them. It is not because the men are dumb, for both are good conversationalists. The cause of the silence is a coolness which has existed between them for three years. Before that time Bill and Ben were known as inseparable in fact, had been school mates together and had purposely arranged it so as they might operate upon the same line.

The primary cause of the estrangement is not known even to the most intimate friends of the men. It is believed to have been some trivial affair, which an explanation would easily have set right. Both, however, in fact, too much pride to take that step. The first intimation that anything was amiss between the two which their acquaintances and fellow employees had seen that they were not seen as much together after working hours, and ceased to visit each other.

At last, so it is said by employees of the road, Walsh reported his cool friend for some slight fault, and a few weeks after Lindsay reported Walsh for the same error. From that time on greetings and conversation were at an end between the two men.

Among the other employees of the line the two are spoken of as the "mutes." They furnish much amusement to their fellow-workmen, who have many wagers up as to which shall first break the silence. At noon, when it is time for the motor-car to eat his dinner, the conductor goes to the front platform and touches him on the shoulder with his finger. The signal is readily understood, Lindsay leaves his seat and, while the car is waiting, takes charge of the car. On his return the conductor takes his leave. This thing is kept up for 365 days in the year. Both men have been in the service of the company for many years, and the managers say that both stand high upon the books.

Rifle Record.

DENVER, Nov. 12.—A record at rifle shooting which, it is believed, is unequalled, was made at a regular meeting of the Denver Rifle club this afternoon. C. C. Ford, the secretary of the club, scored 129, out of a possible 200, on a 500-yard range, with the exception of eight bulls' eyes, following this with thirty-one consecutive bulls' eyes.

Fatal Collision.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Nov. 12.—A double-headed Pittsburgh & Lake Erie freight of which five loaded cars crashed into the caboose of another train at McKeesrock tonight and piled the wreckage up high. Three men were in the train. One of them was taken out dead. Another had one foot crushed and both legs broken and a third was so badly injured that he may die.

SPORT ON SUNDAY

CUBANS DO NOT SEE WHY THERE SHOULD BE ANY OBJECTION

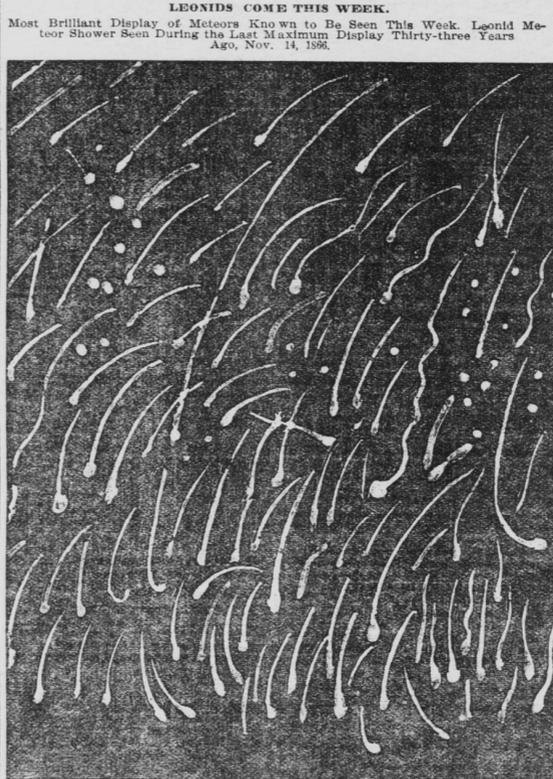

CUSTOM OF LATIN NATIONS

Planters' Association of Havana, So Far as Means Will Permit, Will Encourage Immigration to the Island From Italy—Plan to Pension Gomez—Incendiary Meeting Held by Havana Labor Unions.

HAVANA, Nov. 12.—The local newspapers object to the criticisms made by some American journals upon Sunday racing in Havana. They point out that after mass on Sunday all Latin countries take a holiday, and assert that if the Americans wish the Cubans to popularize some sport as a substitute for bull fighting Sunday must be devoted to it, because saints' days are kept strictly for religious observances and at other times there is no great number of Cubans wealthy enough to forsake business for the sake of amusement. The Discussion, which urges the high let out on shares to men all over the territory. A later governor, Bartolomeo Baca, had nearly as many. An old Mexican is still living who used to be one of Gov. Baca's mayordomos and had charge of 500,000 sheep, with 700 shepherds under him. All the shepherds were armed with flintlock muskets, and frequently had to use them against the savages, as well as in keeping down the bears, cougars, wolves, coyotes, and other animals. The old Spanish governor of New Mexico before the United States had taken the territory, was not a bad sort of millionaire, and neither wealth nor power spoiled him. Besides his enormous holding of sheep, he owned a great proportion of the whole territory, and had mortgages on a large part of the remainder. The little hamlet of Cebollita was for twelve successive seasons devoured by the grasshoppers, which left no green thing. The people would have perished but for Don Bartolomeo. He gave them 10,000 sheep, and the whole town turned shepherd. They drank the milk and ate the lambs and wethers, and, in fine, lived off the sheep. When the plague of grasshoppers ceased and good times came again for Cebollita, the whole 10,000 sheep and their natural increase had been devoured, and not one was left to repay Don Bartolomeo. Nor did he ever ask a reckoning. When this gallant old czar of the Southwest was upon his death bed his sons begged him to arrange his affairs—which were all at loose ends. He bade them bring all the papers; and after a grand ransacking of the house the expectant heirs brought him in a Navajo blanket

LEONIDS COME THIS WEEK. Most Brilliant Display of Meteors Known to Be Seen This Week. Leonid Meteor Shower Seen During the Last Maximum Display Thirty-three Years Ago, Nov. 14, 1866.

WILLIAMS BAY, Wis., Nov. 12.—Prof. Barnard, of the Yerkes observatory, reports the appearance of three or four meteors which are undoubtedly Leonids, the first heralds of the approaching army. A close watch is being kept for straggling Leonids, but the apparatus for photographic observations will not be complete and in place until Monday night. The prospects now are that the weather conditions will be favorable for observing the Leonids. The threatening storm of yesterday has been succeeded by a clearing northwest wind, leaving the probabilities for clear and cool nights. The Yerkes observatory has been unfortunate several times in having cloudy weather on important occasions like this.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 11.—In the belief that scientific knowledge of meteors will be revolutionized by observations taken during the great shower of the Leonids to be taken the coming week, the Yale astronomers have just completed their arrangements for making the most elaborate set of photographs ever taken of shooting stars. It will be remembered that Yale is the pioneer college in the matter of meteorology. Prof. Hubert Anson Newton, who died two years ago, being the leading American authority on the subject. Prof. Newton's successors, Drs. Eikins and Chase, have continued his investigations on the subject and have perfected methods for photographing and observing meteors superior to those in existence in any other American observatory.

American officials in the island to continue to patrol "a noble sport," says: "When 7,000 people brave the prospects of a rain such as was before us, our best people of Havana, their course is sufficient proof of the attitude of the American people is heartily endorsed by our representative society." The patria proposes that ten of the leading municipalities each give Gen. Gomez $30 a month, as his health is poor and he is in need of funds. The Cuban newspapers are urged to support the proposal, which "is small return indeed for the services of the liberator of Cuba."

At the meeting of the Planters' association regret was expressed that in consequence of a depleted treasury the association could not maintain in Italy a bureau to promote the emigration of Italian labor to Cuba, by issuing weekly bulletins in Italy. It was also pointed out that at present most Italian workmen go to Brazil and Argentina, where they have proved very desirable acquisitions. So far as the funds at its disposal will allow, the Planters' association will encourage Italians to come here.

A meeting of the labor unions was held today to commemorate the fate of the Chicago anarchists, characterized by the speakers as "the Chicago martyrs." About 300 persons attended the proceedings at the headquarters of the unions. To each was handed a special number of the Jornada, the labor organ. Its leading article referred to Lines, who committed suicide in his cell with a fulminate cartridge, as "an immortal who preferred to blow his head to atoms and thus disappoint his murderous would-be executioners." Many heated speeches were made, the speakers abusing capital and the tyranny of the rich and calling upon workmen to have faith in the future.

NEW MEXICO SHEEP KING.

Gov. Francisco Chavez Owned Over 1,000,000 Animals. Chicago Inter Ocean. New Mexico was the first "sheep country" in the United States. Juan de Onate, the founder of Santa Fe and the first colonizer of the territory, brought fine Spanish merinos with his costly expedition, and sheep have never failed in New Mexico in spite of the wild beasts and nomad Indians. Coronado, by the way, had brought sheep to the territory in 1540; but they were killed by the savages as soon as he returned to Mexico. In time sheep became almost the only wealth of the lonely and harassed territory. A few wealthy men had enormous herds; and though the Apaches and Navajos swept off sometimes as many as 20,000 sheep in a single raid, the wool industry has remained through so many adverse centuries the chief reliance of New Mexico. In 1822 Francisco Xavier Chavez, then governor, better known as El Guero ("the blond"), owned over a million sheep, says Sunshine. These were

The veteran said: "They who have given me these papers not suffer, and to avoid litigation, there is his bed he hung the great mass of papers into the blazing fireplace. It was the fitting last act of a cavalier's life. Don Bartolomeo's daughter Lucrecia, by the way, married Don Jose Luna, uncle of the ex-delegate to congress from New Mexico. Both were immensely wealthy, but put all their money in sheep and lost them all by Indian depredations. The last I knew of them, the aged couple—over 100 and she in the 90s—were living in abject poverty in a little adobe room, and would long before have starved but for their daughter-in-law. A strange irony of fate for the heirs of the big-hearted Don who had been for a generation the practical king of a territory 300 miles square!"

OPIUM SMOKING IN ORIENT.

"Hitting the Pipe" in the Chinese Empire and in Formosa. Shanghai Mercury.

To learn the actual number of opium smokers is impossible, but we know the amount of the foreign import of this drug, and the naive confessions of reformed opium smokers tell us precisely the amount of opium required to raise New York or China. It is one-fifth of an ounce daily. An ounce or liang is consumed in five days, and a catty suffices for eight days. Four catties are smoked for 320 days, and another half catty will carry the smoker to the end of a year with comfort. A picul is enough, then, for only twenty and a half, or 50,000 piculs is sufficient for more than 100,000 persons. The law of compulsion in the smoker is just as imperative for native opium as for foreign. It is a matter of great interest to know the extent of the evil.

In regard to Szechuen, that very populous and wealthy province, Mr. Schjoth, in the Trade Report for 1888, informs us that Szechuen produces 100,000 piculs of opium, and the cultivation is always increasing. At Chungching, where he is commissioner, he is told that 30,000 piculs suffice for consumption in the province and that 65,000 piculs are exported. We may conclude that the smokers of that province cannot be less than 650,000. Since the population is 57,000,000, the number of smokers is one in a hundred.

WAITING ON COUNT

NO PROSPECT OF AN EARLY RELIEF FROM TENSION IN KENTUCKY

DOWN TO A CLOSE FINISH

Both Parties Still Claim the State, but Neither Side Now Expects a Margin of More Than Three Thousand—Counts Will Be Called Upon to Decide the Contest Before It Is Settled.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 12.—The second week of uncertainty regarding the result of the balloting for governor of Kentucky begins with little prospect of immediate relief. The official count has been in progress for two days, and official returns from a large majority of the 119 counties have narrowed the contest down to a nose finish. Each side claims the election of its ticket, but the estimated plurality of either does not exceed 3,000.

While the returns so far received favor Taylor, the result of the count may hinge on the decision given by the county election commissioners in several places where contests have been begun on the ground of alleged irregularities. One of these contests, that in Nelson county, has been decided adversely to the Republicans. It involves 1,193 votes—nearly as many as either side claims as its plurality. The Democrats will contest the vote of some of the mountain counties which return large Republican pluralities. The most important county involved is Knox, which gave Taylor 1,338 plurality. There are also contests in three precincts in Louisville which went Republican.

In any event it is difficult to see how a bitter contest before the legislature and the courts can be avoided. All the contests now being considered by the county election officers will have to be argued before the state board of county commissioners, which must meet at Frankfort within a month. Both sides are preparing for this with all the legal talent at their command. Meanwhile everything hangs on the official count, which will consume a large portion of the week. In Jefferson county (Louisville) the work is especially slow. Only one ward has been completed in the two days' work.

The Commercial tomorrow will print a statement from Chairman George W. Lange, of the Republican state committee, claiming a plurality of 3,411 for Taylor. These figures are based on the official returns of 110 county election boards, upon returns signed by the precinct election officers, and need only tabulating. In the remaining county Lewis, there is a plurality of 704 for Taylor.

The Courier Journal will print a statement from Mr. Goebel at Frankfort, declaring there is no doubt of his election, but gives no figures, the announcement being made that no returns have been received since last night, when Goebel's plurality was figured at 155.

HORRIBLE JOKE

In a Dissecting Room That Unhinged a Young Man's Reason.

Philadelphia Inquirer. A lightly closed carriage drove up to the Reading Terminal entrance shortly before noon Tuesday. An emaciated man, with eyes that seemed to hold the terror of some charnel horror unspoken, issued from the station. Two men of professional appearance accompanied him. The carriage door was slammed and the vehicle driven rapidly away. When it stopped it was before a private institution for the insane in this city. And it closed the last chapter of a story—grievous, horrible, tragic.

The occupant of the carriage one month ago was a brilliant young lawyer in a city of New York state. He was utterly without fear. He boasted of it. Time and again tests were made to break his iron nerve with no avail. It needed the ingenuity of a group of medical students to consummate his fate and to crush his spirit as a piece of steel in the crushers.

In his city is a college of medicine. Some of his friends were students therein. Secretly they formulated their plan. When all was ready a challenge was made and accepted. The terms were these: The lawyer was to enter the dissecting room of the college at 9 o'clock that night. He must be unaccompanied. A dim light would be burning in the room. As he entered he was to be permitted one glance around the room. Then he was to proceed at once to the opposite side of the room and take his seat with his back turned toward the dissecting room. At the end of every half hour he was to be permitted one glance around. This must continue until daybreak. No second look would be allowed until the half hour had expired.

At 9 o'clock the young man entered the room. The fetid smell usual to the place greeted him. A lamp burned dimly, throwing its feeble rays on the dissecting table. On it lay a shrouded cadaver. The corners of the room were filled with gretsome shadows. But one look could be taken. The young man drew up his chair and resolutely turned his back to the room. The half hour passed. He raised his head and glanced over his shoulder—the eyelids of the cadaver
