SHOOTING WAS FATAL

WILLIAM LARSEN DIES AT THE HANDS OF YOUNG STEWART WEBB

STORY OF THE CRIME

Police Claim That Larsen Was an Ex-Convict - Victim Bore Up Bravely to the End, Hoping He Would Recover in Order to Even Up Things With the Man Who Shot Him.

Stewart Webb, the young man who shot William Larsen during a quarrel in a fuel office at 308 North Washington street Dec. 2, may have to stand trial for murder, as Larsen died yesterday afternoon from the effects of the wound inflicted by Webb. Larsen was wounded with a shotgun, a full charge of shot entering his left shoulder. The shoulder blade was shattered, and it is believed several of the shot penetrated the left lung or lodged dangerously near the heart. Several days after being taken to the hospital Larsen seemed to improve and hope of his recovery was entertained. Two weeks ago, however, he began to grow worse and continually became weaker until the end.

No ante-mortem statement was secured from Larsen by the authorities and toward those with whom he came in contact at the hospital Larsen maintained an obstinate silence regarding the shooting. His possessed a remarkable courage and instead that he would get well. When questioned about the shooting he would become silent, save declaring that he would get well to even things up with the man that shot him. As the end approached yesterday the physicians told Larsen he could not live, advising him to make a statement, but Larsen only smiled and weakly reiterated his determination not to die. He would not even consent to his relatives being sent for. The physicians have no hesitancy in attributing Larsen's death to the wound he received at Webb's hands.

The shooting occurred in a little fuel office conducted by young Webb's father, W. W. Webb. Only three persons—Larsen, Oliver Cornell and young Webb—were in the place at the time. According to Webb's story Larsen and Cornell had been hanging about the office some time when he ordered them to leave. He claimed Larsen refused to go and started to pull off his coat, preparatory to fighting. Reaching for the shotgun, Webb placed a loaded shell in the barrel and pointing the gun at Larsen he warned him not to approach. Webb claims Larsen started at him, when he pulled the trigger. Just as the gun went off, Cornell grabbed the barrel and turned it aside so that the charge struck Larsen in the shoulder instead of in the head. At the time Webb frankly said he intended to shoot Larsen, but claimed he was an expert shot and only intended hitting Larsen on the arm or "singling" his clothes to frighten him. After the shooting Webb tried to escape, but was captured near Rice park after a short chase.

Larsen was thirty years of age and lived at State and Tennessee streets with his mother and a sister. He claimed to be a horse trader, but the police say he was an ex-convict, claiming he served time at Stillwater for highway robbery. Webb is in custody on the charge of assault with intent to commit murder, but will now be called upon to answer the charge of murder.

RUNAWAY COUPLE

Menomonee Sheriff in St. Paul Looking for Elopers. Sheriff Miller, of Menomonee, Wis., was in this city yesterday looking for a runaway couple, or whose arrest he had warrants sworn out by the wife of the man in the case. The elopers are said to be Lake Blank, a farmer living near Menomonee, and his sister, Jessie Strattman, in company with Detective Sweeney. Sheriff Miller searched the hotels of the city. It was learned that the couple had been here and stopped at an uptown hotel. They had the key to the hotel, however, and as nearly as could be learned went to San Francisco.

According to Sheriff Miller, Blank deserted a sick wife and ran away with her sister. Blank is twenty years of age, while his sister-in-law is but a girl of sixteen years. It is alleged the elopement was carefully planned and that Blank sold and mortgaged property belonging to him, thus raising something over $2,000. He left his wife ill in a hospital at Menomonee.

RYAN FEASTS PATRONS

Proprietors Spread an Elegant and Bountiful 6 O'Clock Dinner. The Ryan spread a 6 o'clock feast last evening for the benefit of his patrons, and in celebration of the advent of the new year. The menu card was something astonishing, and contained everything in the way of delicacies obtainable at this season. The feast was served in fourteen courses, and guests were entertained between bites by the Siefert orchestra, which, stationed at one end of the dining room, rendered a number of musical selections during the dinner hour.

MAKE NO MISTAKE-SMOKE

El Modelo or Tennyson cigars. ONE DEGREE ABOVE NORMAL. Average Temperature of the Year in St. Paul. Observer Lyons' review of the weather for the year is as follows:

"The records of the U. S. weather bureau office show that the meteorological conditions at St. Paul and vicinity during the year 1899 were rather erratic and at times bordering on extremes, but in general the law of compensation prevailed, so that the general averages show nearly normal temperature, as well as precipitation. The extremes mentioned above were in temperature, which was abnormally low, averaging a daily deficiency of 5 degrees from Jan. 1 to April 8, but thence out, and especially during the summer months, normal conditions obtained, and it remained at or below that point at all times, both day and night, on 88 days. "The normal precipitation, or rain and melted snow, is 27.47 inches; the total for the year just ended is 27.25 inches, so that in precipitation the year was practically an average one, with a small surplus of only 1/100 of an inch. Rain or snow that yielded 0.1 of an inch or more of water fell on 129 days; snow to a depth of 1 foot or more fell on 31 days; the total depth of snow, if unmelting, would be 45.2 inches; there were 127 clear days, 131 partly cloudy and 107 cloudy. The average cloudiness, on a scale of 0 to 10, "0" representing a cloudless sky and "10" an entirely cloudy one, was 4.2; there were 8 days during which dense fog prevailed from 1 to an indefinite number of hours, and, remarkable to say, there were 60 such days in November. The mean barometer, or atmospheric pressure reduced to sea level, was 30.07 inches, which about normal; mean relative humidity, reduced to sea level, was 78.83 per cent; and, remarkable to say, there was not any other point; it did not attain a value as high as 80 per cent, and was lowest for the year being northwest 45 miles an hour, determined from 5 minutes record on June 12.

The last killing frost of the spring season was on April 8, and the first of the fall season came Sept. 23, making an interval of about five and two-third months that the temperature was not adverse to vegetation. All products of the farm and garden had matured long before the first killing frost of autumn. The number of electrical disturbances of the nature of thunder storms was not far from average, there being 41, of which March had 1, April 3, May 1, June 1, July 1, August and August 7 each, September 6 and October 2; a less demonstrative but more mysterious manner of lightning, however, was only once in a faint display of the Aurora or Polar light."

Mary Joffred, the eight-year-old daughter of Joseph Joffred, laborer, living at 693 Canton street, was badly burned yesterday afternoon through her clothing catching fire from a stove, while she was left alone for a few minutes. The child's lower limbs and torso were severely burned, but it is believed she did not inhale any of the flame, and the physicians at the city hospital, where she was taken for treatment, hope for her recovery.

The child was left alone in the kitchen, shortly after 4 o'clock, while Mrs. Joffred went into the yard. In a spirit of childish curiosity the little girl opened the stove door and stirred the coals within with a poker. Her clothing brushed close to the door and caught fire. In an instant the child was enveloped in flames. Screaming with terror, she rushed out of the house, when the wind caught the blaze and caused her clothing to burn more fiercely. Mrs. Joffred ran to the child's assistance and tore away part of the burning clothing, while smothering the flames about the child's head with her own dress. The mother's hands were painfully burned. In addition to the burns the child sustained a severe nervous shock, which aggravates the danger of her condition.

DIED AT SALT LAKE

Miss Annie J. Cope, Formerly a Resident of St. Paul. A private dispatch from Salt Lake City brings information of the death there Sunday of Miss Annie J. Cope. Miss Cope was a St. Paul girl, and for a time was connected with the city department of the Globe. In the winter of 1885-86 Miss Cope's health began to fail. She resigned her position and went to Utah, hoping to be benefited by the change. A pulmonary ailment, however, fastened itself upon her, and from this it is presumed she died. Miss Cope was a faithful, hard working girl of ability and a good newspaperer.

A large number of inquiries have come to State Dairy Commissioner Bowler from retail grocers asking if they will be prosecuted if they sell old stock baking powder without the required formal label attached to it in the new law which went into effect yesterday. The claim is made that some of the new companies have not furnished stickers, and state that they have no way of knowing what the ingredients of the powder are. In such cases Maj. Bowler states that the retailer who acts in good faith will not be interfered with. However, grocers should see to it that all new stock purchased is properly labeled.

We call the attention of our readers to the notice of The State Savings Bank under announcements. Remember that name when you want a delicious appetizing and good drink to take the place of coffee. Sold by all grocers and liked by all who have used it. Grain-O is a cereal grain which aids digestion and strengthens the nerves. It is not a stimulant, but a health builder and it does as well as so. It can be drunk with great benefit. Costs about 1/2 cent a cup. Ask your grocer for Grain-O.

For Men. Annual Sale of Shirts, Collars and Cuffs. These sales have become a popular feature of our business and we believe thousands of men, not only in St. Paul but throughout the Northwest, will read this announcement with interest and with profit to themselves. When there was little or no work in the factories—in their duller seasons, we placed large orders for these goods at liberal concessions from regular prices. That's why we make lower prices during this sale than can be made at any other time.

THE WELLINGTON SHIRT is made to our order according to most particular instructions, of genuine "Wamsutta" Muslin, with "1800" Linen Bosom and Bands, with felled seams and carefully made gussets. They come in all sleeve lengths, with long or short bosoms, and they're faultlessly laundered. Price 69c. LINEN COLLARS. Not-Cotton Collars, mind you, but genuine Irish Linen Collars, made by the best known makers in the United States. All the leading styles. Our price only 10c. Or $1.15 a dozen.

CUFFS. These cuffs are made by the same maker, but they're not Linen—they're made of good, strong Cotton which has undergone a finishing process that makes it look like linen. And they will outwear ordinary Linen Cuffs. Price—2 for a quarter. WHEN TO BUY. Any time this month. The stock is large and we hope to have full assortments throughout the month. But you'll be more certain to get styles wanted if you come early. MAIL ORDERS share in all these good things.
