

This striking photograph represents the three-year-old son of Mrs. Jess. Potter of 394 First Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., who says, under date of Sept. 23, 1899, regarding his cure of a disfiguring face humor: My baby's face was covered with ringworms. We could not lay a pin between the sores on his face and neck, and he was a sight to look at. Two doctors attended him for three weeks, without success, when I heard of Cuticura. I got a box of Cuticura Soap, and a box of Cuticura Ointment. I only applied them three days, when I could see his face was better, and in four weeks he was cured. His face is as clear as a bell, and not a mark on it.

Announcement sent out yesterday from the engineer's office, to all concerned: I have to inform you that, after careful consideration of the controversies between the logging and steamboat interests on the St. Croix river, Wisconsin and Minnesota, between Taylor's Falls, Minnesota and Stillwater, Minn., I have concluded that the logging and lumber interests are fairly entitled to the use of the St. Croix river during the season of 1900, except upon Decoration day, Independence day, and during the month of August, and that the steamboats are fairly entitled to the sole use of the river on Decoration day, Independence day, and during every day in the month of August, 1900; also that the steamboats are fairly entitled to have the river free from logs from the opening of navigation to the first day of September, 1900, in order that they may run if there is sufficient water to accommodate both interests. I will therefore vigorously prosecute against any parties infringing the provisions of sections 10 and 15 of the act of congress approved March 3, 1899, providing infringement consists of jams of logs previous to Sept. 1, or affects the navigability of the river from Independence day, or during any day in August, 1900; provided complaint is made by the logging interests, and that all alleged infringement affecting the river in the manner or on the day or days above mentioned, shall be deemed to be an infringement of the act of August 1, 1899, and the loggers are fairly entitled to conduct their operations in such manner as they may see fit, even if jams are thereby caused.
