

MEDICAL NOTES.

The question of railway hygiene and sanitation, although of the greatest importance to the public, has until recently, received but little attention. Aside from the comfort which might be increased by decreasing the amount of dust and cinders there is danger of serious eye injury and many "catch their death of cold" from over-heated, draughty and poorly ventilated cars. The possibility of contagious diseases being carried and disseminated by public conveyances is beyond any question a real danger. Dr. Grant, who has investigated these matters, has found that there are few, if any, regulations or instructions for the proper protection of passengers from contagious disease. In 1887, however, instructions were issued by the Pullman Car company that all cars running into California or Colorado should be fumigated at least once a month to prevent the carrying of consumption. By the present method of cleansing by compressed air, dust and light dirt may be effectively removed, but this has no action on disease germs. Dr. Grant suggests a valve-like arrangement of ventilators of fine wire screen to arrest dirt and cinders, and appliances to prevent direct currents of air on the passengers. The use of coke or methods to obtain complete combustion both of fuel and beyond the most efficacious remedies against dust and cinders, and sprinkling the roadbeds with crude petroleum will prevent dirt from that source. Proper methods of fumigating cars, which can easily be done by portable formaldehyde lamps, will effectively protect the public against infectious and contagious disease and if not voluntarily done by railroad authorities should be made obligatory by law.

In an editorial in the Philadelphia Medical Journal, entitled, "Dark Meats, White Meats or Less Meat," the writer refers to the prevalent opinion that light meats are more digestible and contain less deleterious constituents than dark meats and for this reason are better suited for the nourishment of sick people, especially in certain forms of kidney diseases. Analyses, however, have shown that this is fallacious and that the average constituents of dark meat and white meat do not greatly vary. Expts. and Rosenski, who have made experiments, conclude that it is much better to limit the amount of meat than to forbid any dark meat. There can be but little doubt that certain constituents of meat do have a bad effect on the kidneys, but that these constituents are present in larger amounts of meat than people of most other nations. Disorders of a certain class, especially Bright's disease, could be less frequently met with if we were accustomed to meat less freely.

Aside from the indigestibility of oranges there is danger in eating them on grapes which adhere to it. The little black specks, for example, often found on oranges, and which, under the name of rust, is a sort of guarantee mark of a fine Florida orange, are, in reality, colonies of fungi, which some experts claim are similar to the germs causing whooping cough. Dr. Tachamer, of Graz, who first discovered this, scraped some of these specks from an orange and introduced them into his lungs by a deep inspiration. The next day he was troubled with violent tickling of the throat, and at the end of the week he had developed an acute attack of whooping cough. All fruits are liable to carry germs upon the skin, or to be attacked by fungi, and for this reason should be eaten with the skin on. Bananas, as for example, contain many nutritive fruit known, are the most hygienic, for no one would think of eating a banana peel.

A cut is usually considered of slight importance, and a scratch is usually entirely disregarded, but even a pin scratch may be most dangerous, and even fatal. According to the germ theory of every abrasion of the skin, where its continuity is broken, opens a door to microbes, which may thus inoculate the system with disease. It is therefore very important that all wounds should be scrupulously cleansed and properly dressed. The wound should be at once bathed in water with carbolic acid or other antiseptic has been dissolved, and, having been sopped, not rubbed, dry, a light dressing should be applied to keep out dirt and germs.

Dr. Schull, of Erieburg, has something to say about the old adage, "After dinner sit still, and after supper walk a mile." Having made experiments in two normal subjects, a few hours after meals, some of which were followed by sleep and others not, he finds that sleep weakens the stomach's motility and increases the acidity of the gastric juice. Simple repose, however, in the horizontal position, stimulates the motive functions of the stomach, but does not increase the acidity of gastric juice. He therefore concludes that, while a man may stretch himself out for a rest in the horizontal position after a hearty meal, he should resist the temptation of Morpheus, especially if there is any gastric trouble.

A simple method of testing suspected water is to put five ounces in a perfectly clean, glass stoppered bottle, and add ten grains of pure granulated white sugar. This should be set in a well lighted window, but not exposed to the direct rays of the sun, the temperature being kept as near 70 degrees F. as possible. Organic matter is detected within forty-eight hours by the appearance on the surface of many white specks, varying in number according to the amount of the organic matter. An odor of rancid butter appears within a week or ten days if the water is very impure. Such water should never be used for drinking purposes.

very impure. Such water should never be used for drinking purposes. In epilepsy, according to Prof. Kocher, surgical treatment is often advisable where medicine and hygiene have failed. The mortality in these cases of surgical interference is small, and he believes that it is better to err rather on the side of too much operating than too little. He emphatically proclaims against the use of alcohol, believing in total abstinence in such cases. In cases of an injury to the skull, epilepsy may be almost entirely avoided in the majority of cases if proper treatment be made at the time of the injury.

According to Dr. Yale, in the New York Medical Journal, overstudy causes much less serious trouble in children than is generally attributed to it. He claims that exhaustion and break-down occur in the earlier years of study, when the tasks are comparatively slight, and few cases occur during the hard years of professional study. In all cases he thinks that break-down in a student is due more to inherent weakness than to excessive study.

Wentscher, a German physician, reports several cases of foreign bodies which have remained concealed in the body for long periods of time. One of these cases a man was stabbed in the breast with a penknife. The blade, breaking over the breast bone and the wound healing over it, remained for more than a year and then suddenly opened a small abscess. In another case a man was stabbed over the right temple, the blade being driven into the bone and remaining imbedded some time.

Where an alcoholic beverage is used or a medicine containing volatile constituents, Dr. Hawley recommends that they be kept in small bottles, well corked, that the volatile constituents may not escape through a poor cork or by frequent opening of the bottles. In this way the full effect of the various volatile ethers, which Dr. Hawley recommends highly, may be obtained.

By a recent decree of the minister of education in Russia, the admission of first-year students to the various medical schools is restricted to a limited number—256 at the University of Moscow, 200 at Kiev, 175 at Charkow, 150 at Dorpat, 100 at Warsaw, 120 at Tomsk and 100 at Kasan—the total number of first-year medical students being limited to 1,068, not including the St. Petersburg Medical-Military academy, which is allowed to admit 250.

PRESCRIPTIONS. In cough where there is more or less disturbance of the bronchi and lungs with viscid secretion the following expectorant is useful: Chlorate of ammonia, 1 drachm; sweet spirit of nitre, 2 drachms; syrup of ipecac, 4 drachms; solution of acetate of ammonia, 2 ounces; syrup of wild cherry, 4 ounces. The dose is a dessert spoonful in water every three hours.

In a general cough, where there is some fever and general debility, the flesh being dry and tender and the normal secretions being diminished, the following will give relief: Tincture of acetic acid and tincture of bryonia, of each 10 drops; tincture of digitalis, 1 drachm; nitrate of potash, 1/2 drachm; fluid extract of ipecac, 1/2 drachm; sweet spirit of nitre, 2 drachms; syrup of ipecac, 4 drachms; solution of acetate of ammonia, 2 ounces; syrup of wild cherry, 4 ounces. The dose is a dessert spoonful in water every three hours.

NOT EXACTLY NEWS. Before W. H. Tenick began to part his last name in the middle, and in the old times when he was playing not very high comedy roles in summer opera companies, he was called "The Tenick." He was called "The Tenick" because he was so light and airy and Augustus of this locality, he had an experience which showed him that it was possible for a man, if he would, to lose money without coming in contact with a high-woman.

The comedian who is now enacting "Foxy Quiller" thought he was foxy one morning in the little back room off the beach. He was sitting at a table, and a short distance from the local Bialto. There had been some discussion as to who had shot a man who had been injured at Fort Snelling. He claimed that it was done by soldiers, but it appeared that there was a hill between him and the soldiers, so that he could not have been shot by them unless there had been a trench or a ditch or some sort. The Tenick's companion insisted that such a thing was not within the range of possibilities. The Tenick insisted that a trench or ditch could not be very high, but that it was a very reasonable assumption.

Tens were let-it was a summer opera season, you know—so they engaged a big band to play in the city yesterday. They agreed to submit the richest question to a dashing young officer who had gained the entire to the stage on one or two occasions. He was to be the arbiter, and the winner was to settle the expense of securing the adjudication. That is to say, the winner was to pay for the hack. The referee decided for Tenick, but the next morning the common report of the rest of the day endeavoring to figure out how he had made any money by winning $10 and spending $12.

It is a trifle early for young married couples to be making honeymoon tours into the Northwest. Now and then a pair of combed turtledoves do, however, fly into the northern and snowy downs on both St. Paul and Minneapolis. A couple answering the above description were in the city yesterday. They were married in a small town in Michigan, and landed at one of the popular hotels with their trunks, several umbrellas, a camera, two, several traveling rugs and an alligator. The bridegroom registered and a bell boy escorted them to a room. This was before dinner. Having dined, the young man began to dispose himself by walking about the room, smoking a rather inoffensive cigar. The hotel clerk motioned to him, and when the youth had squared himself before the counter, said: "That lady with you is your wife, doubleless?" "But your sweet life is why?" replied the Michigan Benedict. "Please make it so on the register. You see you have registered 'and lady.'" The young man proceeded to follow instructions. Then he went away and was gone about fifteen minutes. He walked up to the clerk and said, menacingly: "Do you mean to insinuate that my wife isn't lady?" "Not at all. But the rule of the house requires me to correct any such little inadvertencies as you seem to have made. That's all. Here's another cigar." "Then you admit she is a lady?" "Certainly."

NEWS OF THE LODGE ROOMS. R. N. OF A. Capitola Camp 1310 held one of the most enthusiastic business meetings last Monday that the camp ever had, the order of business was gone through in a one style and the entertainment committee submitted a favorable report on the joint masquerade. After all business was transacted an agreeable surprise was given the camp and especially the oracle, Rosamond De Lestry and the recorder, Margaretta Hanson, it being the birthday of a few of the Royal Neighbors had, on the quiet, arranged for a Copenhagen pills party. Music by the Expert Minuet orchestra dancing was on the programme. Visitors from Minneapolis welcome.

At the close of January, 1900, the Royal Neighbors of America, auxiliary to the M. W. of A. had a benefit membership of 3,074 in absolute good standing. COURT OF HONOR. St. Paul District Court No. 82, at its last meeting initiated one candidate and received several new applications. Arrangements for a large class to be initiated in the near future is on foot. present. All enjoyed a roasting meeting and after the business was done the ladies of the St. Paul court served fruit. The fraternal spirit in the Court of Honor is being fostered by the regular meetings and the lodge is in a flourishing condition.

ODD FELLOWS. Union Lodge I. O. O. F. No. 48, conferred the second degree on two candidates last Thursday evening and will confer the third next meeting. Members are manifesting renewed interest and the lodge is in a flourishing condition.

RED MEN. Minneawaukans Tribe No. 2 killed its council fire in the city yesterday. Wednesday, every chief being present, and with an attendance of membership of nearly seventy-five, Great Sachem Meyers, Great Chief of Records Hehl, Great Keeper of Waumpun Forsell, and Past Great Sachem Mead and Score were present and gave long talks for the good of the order, after which the tribe went in social session for the balance of the evening. Vocal and instrumental music was rendered by Brothers Cassler, Henry Schack, L. Peplin and Forsell.

IRON CHAIN. meeting at Central hall last Wednesday evening. Two candidates were obligated. The chain will give a card party in the near future.

MACCABEES. A house warming will keep the sir knights busy next Monday night. The committee in charge has a surprise in store.

A delegation will take a trip to Minneapolis next Friday night, calling on Palestine tent. A full degree team and outfit will go out to the fort. It having been a class of thirteen was put through on last Monday. The stormy night kept the attendance down to about eighty-seven. Twelve applications were read, and about forty more are going in next Monday.

UNITED ORDER OF FORESTERS. Court Comm announces that at the next meeting, March 20, the new team of Court Hamline will confer the degree on several candidates. Considerable interest is being taken in the event, as the team makes its initial bow this occasion. A large turnout of members and visitors from local courts will be in attendance to welcome the team.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS. On Wednesday last Washington Lodge No. 74, K. of P., held a large and enthusiastic meeting. The committee on entertainment made final report, and paid over a very nice balance to the lodge treasury. The lodge passed a vote of thanks to the committee for its good work last Wednesday, and at the next convention announced to the members that the lodge was free from all indebtedness, and had a good balance on hand. Past Grand Representative Aaron Pomeroy was elected and installed master of work for the ensuing term, after which the lodge adjourned and held a social smoke.

Capitol lodge had work in the first rank last Wednesday, and at the next convention will do the second rank honors. MODERN WOODMEN. As indicating their rapid growth as factors in life insurance affairs, it may interest the St. Paul members of fraternal societies to know that the membership in eight counties, in eight states, carry a total Modern Woodmen insurance of $36,700,000. The figures are taken from the report of the head clerk of that society, rendered last June, and the list is as follows: At the last regular meeting of Maple Leaf Camp No. 331, held Thursday, March 8, there were over fifty members present. Four candidates were conducted through the mystic of the order. Several applications were received for membership. Business being suspended and the chairman of the entertainment committee given charge, a very fine programme was rendered, and ice cream and cake were served to the members of the refreshment committee, and the hearty welcome to the members of Maple Leaf so well known how to show was enjoyed. Remarks were made for the good of the order by the new and visiting members. The next regular meeting will be held March 22.

Missouri, Jackson county $8,118,000 Illinois, LaSalle county 6,534,000 Nebraska, Douglas county 5,130,000 Minnesota, Ramsey county 4,654,000 Iowa, Polk county 4,486,000 Michigan, Kent county 3,914,000 Wisconsin, Dane county 3,700,000 Kansas, Wyandotte county 2,894,000 Since the above figures were compiled the Woodman society has gained over 75,000 members, so it is safe to say that the Woodmen in the eight counties named now carry not less than $50,000,000 insurance. There are over seventy-five counties in the Woodman jurisdiction whose membership carries each over $2,000,000 insurance.

In this state, at the close of January, there were 35,139 members present, 2,629 social members and 586 local camps of the society of Modern Woodmen of America. The gain in membership and insurance in this state during the month of January was 570 and $87,500, respectively, a showing which will doubtless please the Woodmen of this section.

UNIVERSITY WORKMEN. University lodge held a business meeting last Wednesday, at which several matters of importance were discussed. A delegation from St. Anthony and Midway lodges were present. It was decided to celebrate the thirtieth anniversary at Central hall Easter Monday, and the committee was instructed to make all necessary arrangements.

FAVORS SUBSIDY BILL. PRESIDENT HILL TURNS HIS INFLUENCE FOR THE MEASURE. William E. Curtis, the Washington correspondent of the Chicago Record, wired the following to his paper yesterday: "James J. Hill, of the Great Northern railway, told me in New York the other day that he had withdrawn his opposition to the ship subsidy bill, because it had been amended to meet his objection, and he thought its chances of passage during the present session were very good. He had been at satisfactory conferences with Senator Frue, Senator Hanna and other members of the committee in charge of the measure, he said, and that with the representatives from the Northwest he had also been also satisfied with the bill as amended and would support it. Mr. Stevens, the representative from St. Paul, has introduced several amendments which, if adopted, will defeat the bill. One of them, which obtains more favor than the rest, provides that no subsidy shall be paid to any ship that belongs to a trust or to any ship that is built in a shipyard that belongs to a trust, and that if a shipyard goes into a trust the subsidies paid to ships built in it shall cease.

"Mr. Hill expects to establish a shipyard of his own at New London, Conn., where he proposes to build the four big cargo steamers which he has designed for the Pacific coast line, and which will be the terminus of the Great Northern railway on Puget sound and the ports of China, Japan and the Philippine islands. These ships will be built in the world, with the exception of the new ones recently built for the Atlantic trade by the Hamburg-American and White Star lines. They will be built in a shipyard of 70 feet broad, and have five decks capable of carrying 20,000 tons of cargo and 200 passengers. They are not built for speed, but for capacity. They will average twelve knots an hour under ordinary pressure and fifteen or sixteen knots in an emergency. The engines will develop 8,000-horse power. Mr. Hill expects to commence work on the ships this spring and have them completed within eighteen months. As the Lucania, the Campania and the other Cunarders carry only 2,300 tons, it is the magnitude of these new ships will be appreciated.

"The two new Pacific mail steamers now being built at Newport News will compete directly with the Great Northern vessels contracted for by the United States. They will be completed in December, 1900, and the other early next year. They are the largest steam vessels ever constructed for the United States, being considerably larger than the St. Louis and St. Paul of the American line, which are the largest now floating on our flag. They will cost $5,000,000 each. The length is 675 feet, the beam 83 feet, depth 40 feet, tonnage 18,000 tons, speed 18 knots (which is faster than the Great Northern steamers), and there will be accommodations for an hour under ordinary pressure and fifteen or sixteen knots in an emergency. The actual cargo capacity will be about 12,000 tons. The Spreckels Sugar Company of San Francisco has contracted with the Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, to build two steamships very nearly as large, of 10,500 tons and a speed of eighteen knots, which they will use on the Pacific coast line between San Francisco, Honolulu and Australia. These three companies, with their eight great ships, will furnish transportation facilities for an enormous amount of commerce upon the Pacific and will be in competition with the Nippon Yusen Kaisha line of Japan, which is also building several fine new steamers for its fleet.

It is now proposed to amend the Hay-Pauncefote treaty so that it shall conform to the Monroe doctrine and justify the United States in controlling and defending the Nicaragua canal by any methods it may deem necessary and making this government solely responsible for its neutralization. They will be acceptable to the president and Secretary Hay. The treaty has long been included, although it is the unanimous opinion among military experts that battleships are much better than forts for the protection of the canal."
