A Case of Constipation Cured by Using the Oxydonor.

For many years I was troubled with chronic constipation and severe headaches. I heard of the Oxydonor, and was induced to purchase one in January last. It began improving after a few days' use of it and my bowels began to act naturally. Since that time I have never failed to have free evacuation of my bowels, without use of medicines or pills of any kind. I consider this most remarkable. I have frequently had to take as many as a dozen pills at a time before my bowels would move. I must say candidly that I have realized more benefit from the use of the Oxydonor than from any other treatment I received. My general health has improved to such an extent that I am forced to say that the Oxydonor is worth many times its price. —Rice Co. Engineer, U. S. Army Building, St. Paul. C. S. Wilson, 611 New York Life Building, sells the Oxydonor.

FLAMES CLEARED AMONG THE UNION MATTRESS COMPANY'S STOCK

LOSS COVERED BY INSURANCE

Several of the Employees Have Narrow Escapes in Floeing From the Rooms of the Building.

The plant of the Union Mattress company, occupying a four-story building at 505 Minnesota street, was damaged by fire to the extent of $10,000. The loss is covered by insurance. For a time it looked as though the building would be completely destroyed, but concentrated work by the fire department kept the flames from reaching above the second floor. The nature of the stock, however, made the loss from smoke and water heavy. The damage to the building is estimated at $2,000. The mattress company consists of J. W. McHose and George A. Pardoe. The building formerly belonged to E. M. Halliwell, the carriage manufacturer, but is at present in the hands of the St. Paul Title and Trust company. The loss on the building is covered by insurance.

When the fire broke out much excitement prevailed about the building, and some of the employees had a narrow escape from the rapidly spreading flames. A number of young women ran from the building without stopping to don their wraps. Miss Mary Mathian, a stenographer, was overcome by smoke and was carried unconscious from the office by the firemen. She soon recovered sufficiently to go home. Some delay was experienced by the fire department in getting water on the flames, and the fire communicating readily to the inflammable stock, spread with great rapidity. Before the fire reached the third floor, the flames smoke poured from the openings of the four stories, and volumes of flame leaped from the lower openings. Anticipating a fierce fire, Chief Cook summoned every available command, and effective service was done, once the firemen got to work.

The fire started in the basement, directly under the office, where a "picker," a machine used for separating the material to fill mattresses, was in operation. A spark caused by friction of the machine, falling among the loose inflammable material being prepared quickly, developed a lively blaze. Before steps to extinguish the fire could be taken it had spread beyond control and the plant appeared doomed. As the flames caught the materials in the stock, such as hair, feathers and paints, clouds of black smoke poured from the buildings and almost obscured the structure. In a short time the basement was like a furnace of flame, and despite the efforts of the department, the fire spread to the second floor. Following an elevator shaft the fire reached the third floor, but was here headed off. That there was not much fire in all of the upper stories, however, was not known by the firemen and water was thrown into the building from every available source, so that much of the stock was damaged in this way. The building is immediately adjacent to the Mount Zion synagogue, and it was feared the fire might communicate to the edifice. The fact that the seat of the fire was in the end of the plant most removed from the synagogue, however, coupled with the work of the department, obviated a danger, though the church interior was slightly damaged by smoke.

When the fire was finally gotten under control an investigation showed that the flames had not spread beyond the third floor. The heat throughout the building had been intense, though, and with the water used at a show room, where the stock was more or less damaged. The company estimates the value of its stock at the present time at $20,000. The machinery and fixtures in all of the material there was totally destroyed. On the first floor the firm kept wire mattresses and beds. This part of the stock was also badly damaged. On the second floor was a quantity of half-valued at $2,000 that is a total loss and many complete mattresses stored here were also badly damaged. The third floor was used as a show room, where much completed stock was kept. The damage here was mostly from the intense heat, that blistered the painted goods, and from smoke and water. A large stock of feathers on the fourth floor and much surplus stock stored here, were seriously damaged by smoke and water.

The fire carries $14,500 insurance, placed by Strickland & Doolittle and B. F. Knauff. The loss is distributed among fifteen companies represented by these agencies. Mr. Doolittle declined to give out a list of the policies.

Field, Schlick & Co. HIS HONOR WAS OUT.

Refuses to Sign Resolutions for a Couple of Bay Windows.

Ald. Blomquist, of the First ward, was much put out yesterday over the act of the mayor, who refused to sign a resolution allowing Dr. Earl to put two bay windows on the second floor in a new brick building being erected on Payne avenue. The charter prohibits the erection of a bay window which projects over the sidewalk line, and to allow this to be done on the Earl building a resolution was passed through the council granting permission.

Mayor Klefer sent word to the First ward alderman that the resolution was contrary to the charter, and consequently he would be obliged to veto it. Ald. Blomquist called to see the mayor, but his honor was out at the time.

Witness Failed to Appear.

Martha Atkinson, arrested for the alleged theft of $18 from a white man, was discharged in the municipal court yesterday because the prosecuting witness failed to appear.
