VESTS WON BY A STRIKE

NATIONAL DISTRICT TELEGRAPH MESSENGERS CARRY THEIR POINT AND MORE

GET BUTTONS AND BRAID, TOO

Short but Stirring Contest Between Juveniles and Corporation for Vests With Their Uniforms.

If the author of one of the latest popular "coon" songs, entitled "I Ain't Seen No Messenger Boy," could have dropped into this city yesterday he could have found practical inspiration for his theme, for the local messengers were on a strike, and nowhere could any of the nattily uniformed youngsters be seen except in a noisy crowd about the Western Union telegraph office, Fourth and Robert streets, where they walked out. The "kids" were terribly in earnest in their strike, and clamored about the ears of Manager Rudd, arguing and agitating among themselves with marvelous volubility.

The strike grew out of an order to the boys to procure uniforms, but before they had done so they had demanded a different concession from the company. Several of the lads refused to quit work and the strikers indignantly repudiated these and threatened them with all manner of dire punishment if they did not go out with "de gang." But the presence of two big policemen averted the strikers and prevented any of the attacks such as have characterized the recent labor troubles in Chicago, as under the eyes of the "coppers" all the don't appear as if der is any way to get together we 'tought we'd better arbitrate de matter. We wants to work, but de company's got to do de right thing, else we'll be up de hull works."

Manager Rudd assured the boys that the company would be pleased to meet all reasonable demands, even to letting the boys procure their uniforms wherever they wanted to, and that the chief cause of the trouble the youngsters were soon pacified. In a few minutes their belligerent spirits vanished, and the Manager Rudd explained that the company was also willing to furnish the buttons and braid for the new uniforms. In addition to extending the time for procuring the clothes, the boys gave a shout of victory and went back to work.

The boys struck because they say the company made arrangements with a local firm for their uniforms at a cost of $10. No vests were furnished with the uniforms, except for $1 extra charge, and the boys declared they would not stand this, so they struck.

Manager Rudd says the company had bought from four firms uniforms and awarded the contract to the lowest bidder. There was no objection, however, he said, to the boys procuring their uniforms anywhere else, if they could get them cheaper.

The young strikers are in the employ of the Western Union Telegraph company, which recently absorbed the T. M. messenger service. There are forty-five boys employed, those who struck constituting the day force.

TOWNE ON IMPERIALISM

Against the surrender been able to keep with the progress of events and to be just as bitterly opposed now to the attempted surrender of the government by that same organization, either by the trusts and the hosts of militarism. So far as I am concerned I am nothing but a man of letters, and I have no standard political economist that has ever lived during 2,000 years in any language or any country, and I have no abandonment of that principle to admit that circumstances may temporarily have obscured the importance of other issues, either by a relaxation of the rigors of monometallicism, or by the appearance of other issues which, because of their far-reaching importance, claim first place in the interest of the people, and they are settled and settled right. There are no tenacious misapprehensions or ignorant malice. The Republican party has followed up its surrender to the banks in 1896 as a base.

SURRENDER TO THE TRUSTS.

and, above and beyond all else, it has challenged the patriotism of the American people by laying an unbecomingly heavy burden upon the constitution and by proposing to divorce the flag from the glorious legends of our history and to substitute always waved upon its resplendent folds. I have not the slightest hesitancy in saying that all other questions are subordinate to this great problem of how to save the government of our fathers from its present decay and to amplify the present day leaders of the Republican party. In the days of Lincoln it was the spirit of our party to amplify liberty, to proclaim far and wide its sanctions and to prophesy the peaceful spread of the spirit of our party among mankind. Today we behold the chief representatives of that once liberty-loving organization attempting to narrow and curtail these great guarantees of freedom, to set up ideals of physical force in place of those earlier and nobler ideals of liberty and justice for all, upon which the greatness of the republic has been nurtured for 120 years. Believe me, New Englanders, I am neither an apologist and champion of modern

President Clark of the fire board, brought up the question of a deficiency in the water supply for fire purposes at the meeting of the conference committee yesterday afternoon.

"The chief of the fire department informed me," said Mr. Clark, "that at the fire on Minnesota street Saturday afternoon the department was hampered by there being no water. In fact, but two engines could secure sufficient water to make any headway."

President Wolterstorff, of the water board, on being asked for a solution of the trouble, answered quickly that the main was not big enough.

Mr. Clark, in reply to this, said the chief had told him the pressure was only about thirty pounds. There should be some remedy for this, Mr. Clark said, as a large fire was liable to do immense damage in this vicinity. Mr. Wolterstorff admitted that the only remedy would be to turn the Vadsnals water on in the district, as the pressure from the Phalen system, which was used in the territory, was not sufficient to furnish more water. This, Mr. Wolterstorff said, could be done with half an hour's notice to the water department, as all that would be required would be to open several gates located on Broadway.

Mr. Clark did not see how the fire department could be expected to put out fires if there was no water at hand to throw on the flames. He thought the suggestion of Mr. Wolterstorff about turning on the water in half an hour's notice was not at all practical, as in that time a fire could do about $100,000 worth of damage. Mr. Wolterstorff promised to have the matter brought up at the next meeting of the board of water commissioners, and the committee adjourned.

Margaret A. Tandy was granted a divorce from William L. Tandy yesterday by Judge Lewis on the ground of desertion.

STRIKERS DO TO WHAT THEY CAN.

Strikers could do was to give them surreptitious jabs in the ribs in passing or to tread on their toes, augmenting the punishment with lowering looks and contemptuous remarks. As soon as the strike was formally declared the youngsters, with few exceptions, marched demurely out of the office. Two of the boys assumed leadership, and a plan was mapped out that soon resulted in a strike being declared also at the sub-office on Fifth street. This swelled the ranks of the strikers to thirty members.

Then it was remembered that the company had one lone youth isolated at a branch office at Western and Selby avenues. A "picket" was dispatched to this point and within fifteen minutes the company was without anyone to deliver messages on St. Anthony hill. Meanwhile telegrams and messages were piling up in the office by the hundreds, but the obdurate young strikers only laughed gleefully in realization that they had effectively accomplished their object.

"When the boys had strengthened their force as well as possible they set about trying to influence the others to quit. While the crowd waited in the street, a little brown-eyed youngster, with flushed cheeks, went to the office to labor with the timid boys who remained at work. He returned shortly, disgusted evidently in every gesture and word.

"What do youse 'tink of dat stuff 'Reddy'?" declared the little fellow. "He ain't got de nerve to stick and has gone back wid de company. Any guy w'at deserts his feller laborers when dey strikes to better der condition is a lobster, ain't dat right, kids?" and the "kids" gave vociferous consent to what the young picket had said.

After "Reddy" had been roundly anatomized, the boys considered ways and means of carrying on the strike. Some wanted to go around in the alley and organize a union, while others suggested pairing off and "laying" for the "scabs." One of the lads suggested interviewing Manager Rudd, with a view to effecting a settlement, but the difficulty lay in finding a striker with the nerve to trace the general manager. After a while, however, the boys decided to beard the lion in his den and trapped into Manager Rudd's private office in a bunch. Some took off their hats, while all shuffled about meekly. No one took the initiative as spokesman, so after a short interval Manager Rudd asked the boys what he could do for them.

"Well, it's dis 'ere," Mr. Rudd spoke up one of the boys, "we fellers is got a grievance agin de company, an' as der Order of Ben Hur.

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind., April 9.—The supreme trial, Order of Ben Hur, is in session here. Delegates are here from all over the state. The representative of the supreme chief shows that in 1896 the total number of beneficial certificates in force was 248, with a profit of $3,551.20. Up to that time death losses aggregating $10,500 had been paid, and the reserve fund was $18,000. On April 1, 1900, 30,279 beneficial certificates were in force, representing an improvement of 12 per cent in the assessment district. If the cost of the improvement exceeds 25 per cent of the assessed valuation of the property owned by the district, the council is authorized to make payment of the excess from the general fund. The balance is to be paid by assessing the property benefited.

MAUD GONNE'S ATTACK.

Article Upon Which the United Irishman Was Seized.

NEW YORK, April 8.—According to a Dublin correspondent the copy of the United Irishman which was seized contained the following extracts from an article by Maud Gonne, entitled "The Famine Queen."

"In truth, for Victoria, in the decrepitude of her eighty-one years, to have decided after an absence of half a century, to revisit the country she hates, whose inhabitants are the victims of the criminal policy of her reign, the political necessity must have been terribly strong, for, after all, she is a woman, and however vile, selfish and pitiless her soul, she must sometimes tremble as death approaches when she thinks of the countless Irish mothers, who, helpless and watching their staving little ones, have cursed her before they die.

"Every eviction during sixty-three years has been carried out in Victoria's name, and, if there is justice in heaven, the shame of those poor Irish emigrant girls, whose very innocence renders them an easy prey to the vilest of men, and who are perishing in the terrible struggle for existence on a foreign shore, will fall on this woman, whose bourgeois virtue is so boasted, and in whose name their homes were destroyed.

"Taking the shamrock in her withered hand, she dares to ask Ireland for soldiers to protect the exterminators of their race."

KETTLE-CURLEW SHARES

Have been on the market just two months, and we have sold 6,500 shares, and received in cash $6,000, and placed on our installment books over $60,000 payable monthly, all within ten months.

The Curlew town lots have been on the market but one week, and we have sold over 600 lots, receiving in cash over $1,000, and placing $20,000 on the monthly installment books. This is profit for shareholders.

We have bought the Kettle-Curlew mines and townsite of Curlew, in the Colville Indian reservation, Wash., which will be thrown open to settlement in a few days, when thousands will rush to that Curlew business center.

While the people have been paying us $6,000 in cash on Kettle-Curlew we have earned for them, in solid profits, over $1,000, and on April 2 our company declared a dividend of one mill a share, or 10 per cent on the investments of shareholders. Three more dividends at least of a like amount this year.

Over 375 shareholders attended our annual meeting on March 27, 28 and 29, from the five Northwestern states, and in convention assembled unanimously passed the following resolution reported by a strong committee:

"Lycium Theater, March 28, 1900.

"We, your committee on resolutions, having made a careful and thorough examination of the plans and methods, titles and contracts, books and records of the American Mining Investment Company as to its Kettle-Curlew and Susquehanna mining enterprises, make no hesitation in heartily endorsing the same. We recommend the Company's plan of investment and its mining certificates and contracts to the public, believing the management to be honest and the plan commendable.
