

PRESERVING.

A carpenter has his saw and chisel, hammer and square, to do any little job, and you say his tool is in a workmanlike manner. His wife has an old kettle of some kind with part of the enamel chipped off in spots, a battered dipper, a few measuring and sundry things and scales for a cent.

MEASURES, ETC. Quart and Pint. Special Plans for putting up fruits in jars.

STRAINERS. Good for preserving, but useful all the year around.

SPOONS. A wooden spoon is just the thing. We have a half dozen sizes of maple and white holly. Also of aluminum. That's the best spoon for kitchen use.

KETTLES. This is the heart of the kitchen. We have special kettles for preserving and can suit you if you want a good one.

FRUIT PRESSES. For Jolly, Wine, etc., etc. Just as practical a tool as a carpenter's saw. You should see it.
