THE BIG SUNBONNET.
Let others praise the picture hat. The tidy toque, or trim built sailor. Or any one of fashion's freaks! For me the mode like some grim jester So jealousy shuts Beauty in— Least eyes profane should dwell upon it— That, as for some hid gem, my eyes Go peering 'neath each big sunbonnet!

I own I've oft been taken in; Its promise many a time deceives me, A gruesome sight that greatly grieves me. Some say 'tis made for such-to hide The wreck that once as Beauty shone; It was first devised-a face sunbonnet! They'd bury 'neath a big sunbonnet!

But I take issue there. By what Of toll or timeoney cost, we measure The worth of things; and I, for one, Do dearly love to hunt for treasure; Were I the maker of the laws, The old or ugly ne'er dare don it— To rosebud girls I would restrict The right to wear the big sunbonnet!— Mary Norton Bradford.
