MRS. SARAH WORTHINGTON, WHOSE PEN NAME WAS ONCE WIDELY KNOWN
WRITER FOR EARLY PRESS
She Was on the Chicago Times During Storey Regime, and the Globe in Its Infancy.

After a protracted illness the life of Mrs. Sarah Worthington, who died at her late residence, 471 North street, at 11 a. m. yesterday.

Womanly and ladylike in every respect, she was a brilliant writer, and her brilliant writings, which entitled her departure to more than the usual passing comment on the newspapers.

Mrs. Worthington came to Minnesota as Sarah Cahill while it was still a territory. Gen. James Shields, the first United States senator from Minnesota, was induced to come to the territory and locate at Shieldsville.

After her marriage to Mr. Worthington she removed to Chicago, where she became acquainted with Wilbur F. Storey, editor and proprietor of the Chicago Times. Mr. Storey was a most excellent judge of newspaper talent and he at once recognized Mrs. Worthington as not only a brilliant writer, but also a woman who kept thoroughly abreast with all of the topics of the times.

ATTORNEY LANE STATES THE DEFENSE'S POSITION IN THE WISE CASE

MILLER IS BREAKING DOWN
Defendant in the Trial Is on the Verge of Collapse—Many Witnesses Were Examined Yesterday.

ANOKA, Minn., Nov. 2.—The defense opened in the Wise case this morning. Foreman P. Lane was brief in his remarks. He made points in stating that the defense had no theories. He did not conceive it the business of the defense to provide a theory. In fact, the defense was called upon to combat a theory, and nothing stronger.

Mr. Lane's statement was intended to show beyond peradventure that neither Harry Miller nor anything that passed in the Wise murder, for the excellent reasons that they were miles away from the scene of the crime when it was committed; that there would remain in the minds of the jury no doubt concerning the innocence of his clients when such testimony as he proposed to offer had been heard.

The first witness put on for the defense was Mrs. Lillian Miller, who corroborated testimony already given by Eliza and Martha. The woman became confused on cross-examination as to unimportant details.

Little Joe Wise gave the most interesting testimony. He said that on the Sunday night before the murder, when Harry Miller was in the house after the family had retired, Harry was there when he came down and immediately afterward his other wife into the room.

Mr. Wise asked Harry where Miller was and Harry replied that he was out behind the barn with the rig. Miller told him he didn't want to come up to the house because he wasn't dressed for company, but Joe persuaded him and at last he said he would go up as far as the porch. The boy testified to having accompanied Miller. He was the first to come down stairs. Harry was there when he came down and immediately afterward his other wife into the room.

GRAND JURY WANTS INFO FOR WHAT CAUSED HIS DEATH

CHARGED WITH THE MURDER OF JENNY BOSSCHUETTER AT PATKISON
ARE PROMINENT YOUNG MEN
May Be Necessary to Accept Confession From Two to Secure Conviction of the Others.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—The grand jury at Paterson, N. J., today heard the indictments against Walter McAllister, George Kerr, William Death and Andrew Campbell, who are charged with the murder of Jenny Bosschuetter, who was drugged to death on Oct. 15. There were two indictments against each of the young men, one for murder and the other for assault, the first, it is said, also embracing the latter.

Judge Barlow received the indictments and instructed County Clerk Winfield and the attorneys for the prosecution and assault be transmitted and delivered to the court of oyer and terminer, over which Supreme Court Justice Dixon presides.

It is not known when Judge Dixon will come to arraign the men. They cannot be arraigned before any other judge. It is probable he will come to Paterson before the January term.

It is said that while the grand jury was considering the case some of the members were disposed to find an indictment against Schulthorp on his own admissions as an accessory to the assault, but they were in the minority.

The hackman claimed to know nothing about the conditions of the girl when she was bundled into his rig and that she was coerced by two men, into doing as he was told.

HEART WAS WEAK.
It is alleged that in the course of the discussion of the case among the members of the grand jury it was said that Jennie's heart was weak and it was possible that this may have been the cause of her death. There was no evidence that she was not sane at the time of her death, and it is not possible to be determined by analysis of the stomach or by a confession from one of the accused men. The physicians who examined the body of the girl, however, stated that she was suffering from a weak heart, that on one occasion Jennie, while standing on a street corner talking to two young men, fell in a faint and remained unconscious for half an hour.

THE CHEMICAL ANALYSIS OF THE DEAD GIRL'S ORGANS IS BEING MADE AT A LABORATORY IN NEW YORK CITY, OF WHICH PROF. WITKOWSKI, WHO HAS FIGURED IN THE MOILNOUR, RICE AND POLK CASES, IS THE CHIEF. THE ANALYSIS HAS NOT YET BEEN COMPLETED AND NO REPORT HAS BEEN MADE TO THE COUNTY PHYSICIAN.

ON THIS POINT MUCH IS SAID TO DEPEND. It is said it may be useful to accept the confession of Campbell or Death, or both as witnesses and accept plea of guilty from the other two. It is said that the state may elect to eliminate that feature of the matter and proceed to trial upon the assumption that the violence of the assault caused heart failure and death, and that would entail the death penalty as such as the administration of the drug.

TRIED TO TURN IN AN ALARM.

WHAT CAUSED HIS DEATH

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Charles F. Jones, a personal attendant of the late William M. Rice, who attempted to commit suicide yesterday, was reported very much improved this morning.

Dr. Jones were retained this afternoon to determine the exact condition of the lungs of William Marsh Rice, the millionaire, after his death. Charles F. Jones, his valet, in fact, he made before he cut his throat in the Tomb, said he saw Albert T. Patrick holding a towel in the shape of a cone over the aged millionaire's face. Assistant District Attorney Osborne, who said he would communicate with Prof. Witkowsky about the matter, said the autopsy had revealed some condition consistent with the theory of another man, but the lungs were affected was not known at the district attorney's office today, but they with other organs were removed from the millionaire's body when it was cremated. David L. Short, who executed the will of Mr. Rice, the one in which he bequeathed the bulk of his fortune to Albert T. Patrick, today for the first time consented to be interviewed regarding the incidents leading up to a report of the doctor.

To a reporter who said he went to Mr. Patrick's apartments at the request of Mr. Patrick, Patrick sent a messenger to his office. He said over to Patrick's office. He said over to Patrick's office. He said over to Patrick's office.

Mr. Myers went with me. He went as a notary, I am commissioner of deeds. When we reached the apartment Jones led us in and escorted us to Mr. Rice's room. Mr. Rice was sitting at his desk, and from a sort of cabinet compartment that was open drew out the papers, he said to both of us: "This is my will, gentlemen. I have sent for you to witness my signature."

"He asked me to read one particular clause or paragraph in the will. I do not remember what the subject matter of the clause was. I did not pay any attention to the papers, but I have much confidence in Myers. He consulted him about his affairs frequently. I did not know the contents of the will, but I saw it. He said over to Patrick's office. He said over to Patrick's office. He said over to Patrick's office.

Mr. Short further said that he never talked to Myers or Patrick about the will or assignments. He had known Mr. Rice for about a year before his death, nor had Mr. Rice said anything to him about another will.
