"Down in the South," remarked a man at one of the clubs, "there exists more of a religious atmosphere than there is here in the North. So most of these stories they tell have a sectarian flavor to them. One that I heard while in Charleston was entirely new to me, and it appears to be so in the circle of gentlemen where I heard it. It ran this way: A dignified old gentleman stood on one of the city wharves watching an old darkey who was fishing. No word passed between them until the darkey landed a good-sized fish. This was unhooked, and there was a look of disgust on the face of the fisherman as he threw the fish back into the water.

"Why did you throw that fish back into the water instead of keeping him, uncle?" queried the onlooker.

"He ho good, massa."

"What kind of a fish was it?"

"We calls 'em Baptist fish, sah."

"And why Baptist fish, uncle?"

"Ah couldn't say fo' sure, massa, but I spects it's bekase dey spiles soon as you gets 'em outen de water!"
